Arms of
THE UNIVERSITY OF
NEW SOUTH WALES

Granted by the College of Heraldry, London, 3
March 1952

In 1994 the University title was added to the Arms to create the new University Symbol shown.

THE UNIVERSITY OF
NEW SOUTH WALES

Heraldic Description of the Arms

Argent on a Cross Gules a Lion passant guardant between four Mulletts of eight points Or a Chief Sable charged with an open Book proper thereon the word SCIENTIA in letters also Sable.

The lion and the four stars of the Southern Cross on the Cross of St George have reference to the State of New South Wales which brought the University into being; the open book with SCIENTIA across its page reminds us of its original purpose. Beneath the shield is the motto 'Manu et Mente' ('with hand and mind'), which was the motto of the Sydney Technical College, from which the University has developed. The motto is not an integral part of the Grant of Arms and could be changed at will; but it was the opinion of the University Council that the relationship with the parent institution should in some way be recorded.

Vision

Our vision is to be Australia's leading international research university with a reputation for excellence in scholarship, learning and the student experience.

Purpose

To excel in research as a contribution to a productive and sustainable economy, the prosperity of our nation, the health and well-being of its people, and the protection of our environment.

To advance human knowledge through our research, teaching, and scholarship and our engagement with the community.

To contribute to the development, the well-being and stability of our region of South-East Asia through scholarship, collaboration, consultation, training and exchange.

To enable all our students to have an outstanding learning experience to ensure they reach their full potential and assure the quality of their contribution to our society as citizens, employees and future leaders.

To be a dynamic point of contact for the life-long learning and social engagement of our alumni.

To think ahead.

Preface

UNSW

The University of New South Wales occupies 38 hectares in Kensington, an inner south-eastern suburb of Sydney. It also has campuses in Canberra and Paddington as well as a number of research stations and teaching hospitals in other parts of New South Wales. In addition, plans began in August 2005 to establish a new campus in Singapore, to be known as UNSW Asia.

The University consists of eight faculties: Arts and Social Sciences; the Built Environment; Commerce and Economics; Engineering; Law; Medicine; Science; and the College of Fine Arts. The Australian Graduate School of Management is a joint venture between the University of New South Wales and the University of Sydney. UNSW also provides undergraduate and graduate courses through the University College at the Australian Defence Force Academy (UNSW@ADFA).

UNSW offers a wide range of first degrees, higher degrees, graduate diplomas and other programs and possesses substantial research facilities.

The total number of students in 2005 was 38,915 made up of 23,915 Bachelors, 10,332 higher degrees, 3,077 graduate diplomas, graduate certificates and postgraduate qualifying programs and 1,591 in non-award or cross-institutional studies.

The number of staff supporting these students was 6,215 of whom 3,213 were academic staff and 3,002 were general staff.

The University Library contains 2.7 million items. The library website receives more than 11.3 million hits per year and provides access to almost 40,000 electronic journal titles.

Governance

The University is governed by a Council of no more than twenty two members including Parliamentary and ex-officio members, members elected by staff, students and graduates of the University, and members appointed by the NSW Minister for Education and Training or by Council itself. The principal academic body is the Academic Board which receives advice on academic matters from the faculties and UNSW@ADFA. The faculties are responsible for the teaching and examining of degree programs within their scope and the Academic Board coordinates and furthers their work.

The principal executive officer of the University is the Vice-Chancellor and President. The Deputy Vice-Chancellors and Pro-Vice-Chancellor are responsible for the provision of student services, research policy and management, education policy, educational enterprise, international enterprise, development, and resources and infrastructure. The Chief Financial Officer is responsible for strategic business advice and the provision of financial services. The Chief Information Officer is responsible for developing and implementing strategies for maintaining and enhancing infrastructure systems and telecommunications to support information management. There are eight full-time Faculty Deans as well as the Dean of Graduate Research, the Rector of UNSW@ADFA and the Dean and Director of the Australian Graduate School of Management. The Deans have considerable delegated authority in relation to their areas.

General Information

University Organisation

The University's academic organisation includes eight faculties based in Sydney, NSW, the University College at the Australian Defence Force Academy in Canberra, ACT (UNSW@ADFA) and the Australian Graduate School of Management. The faculties are groupings of schools, according to academic disciplines, through which the academic staff conduct teaching at undergraduate, postgraduate and higher degree level, and pursue research and scholarly investigations.

Faculty Boards are established under the University Rules. They are responsible for supervising teaching, conducting examinations and encouraging scholarship and research in relevant areas of study. Each Faculty Board comprises professors, associate professors, senior lecturers, and associate lecturers in the relevant departments, ex officio members, elected students, and other persons whom Council appoint as members. Faculty Boards and their committees meet several times each year on scheduled dates.

Each Faculty has a Dean who is appointed by Council to direct the activities of the faculty. The Dean is responsible to the Vice-Chancellor for administrative, financial and academic affairs.

The University also provides teaching and research activities at its teaching hospitals; field stations; the Manly Vale Water Research Laboratory; the Randwick Campus, where some of the schools have facilities and the Institute of Languages is located; and the Cliffbrook campus, where Atax is located.

Detailed information on each faculty and school and the programs offered at UNSW is available in the Undergraduate and Postgraduate Handbooks and in the Online Handbook (www.handbook.unsw.edu.au).

Australian Graduate School of Management

The Australian Graduate School of Management (AGSM) is regularly rated as Australia's pre-eminent graduate management school, internationally renowned for its research-based and highly relevant management education. In 1998, the University of New South Wales and the University of Sydney formed a joint venture to merge the AGSM at UNSW with the Graduate School of Business at the University of Sydney to form a new Australian Graduate School of Management. From 1999, the AGSM became a School of both universities. Its students become graduates of both universities.

The AGSM offers a full-time Master of Business Administration (MBA). The full-time MBA program is undertaken over 15 or 18 months. In addition to the courses offered at the UNSW campus, the full-time MBA offers a student exchange program with leading international business schools and management projects for students to work with external organisations. The part-time MBA (Executive) Program is offered nationally and may be completed in a minimum of three years. The first stage is a modular sequence of courses by distributed learning with weekly classes synchronised in major mainland Australian cities. The first stage leads to a Graduate Diploma in Management. Students may then elect to take the second stage, the Executive Year, focusing on strategy and general management, leading to the award of MBA (Executive). Eligible Sydney-based students are also able to transfer from the Graduate Diploma in Management to the elective phase of the full-time MBA. This option allows students to tailor their studies by choosing a sub-set of electives from the full-time program and leads to the award of MBA. An on-line Graduate Certificate in Change Management is also offered.

The AGSM admits students to a PhD program. This research doctorate is designed for those who seek to develop their research skills and establish a deep understanding in one of the key disciplines of management.

The AGSM provides executive and corporate training through AGSM Executive Programs. Internationally renowned experts teach a range of courses that include leadership, communications, marketing, finance, brands and e-commerce in a range of intensive residential courses for experienced managers. These extend from short advanced courses in specialised fields of management to extended general management programs of two-weeks duration. Specially designed programs are also delivered for corporate clients.

The AGSM operates from sites at the UNSW campus in Kensington and at its campus based in the Sydney CBD. The AGSM also offers its MBA in Hong Kong on a part-time basis.

University College, Australian Defence Force Academy

The University College is located at the Australian Defence Force Academy (ADFA) in Canberra and was established in 1981. Academic programs are delivered through the University College (UNSW@ADFA), a faculty of the University of New South Wales, in a range of degree discipline areas. UNSW@ADFA provides programs of study leading to the award of degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Business, Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Engineering at Pass and Honours level, and Bachelor of Technology at Pass level.

Entry to UNSW@ADFA's undergraduate programs is by selection. Candidates must have reached an approved academic standard and have met the particular requirements of the branch of the Services to which they have been recruited. UNSW@ADFA's undergraduate programs are restricted to Midshipmen and Officer Cadets, certain other members of the Regular Armed Services, and approved members of the armed forces of other countries.

UNSW@ADFA also offers postgraduate research and coursework programs to serving members and other employees of the Australian Defence Organisation, as well as to civilians including international students. Full-time and part-time programs are available from graduate certificates through to coursework masters and research degrees. Some programs are available by distance and flexible education.

A summary of the programs offered by UNSW@ADFA can be found in the section 'Schedule of UNSW Programs' in this Calendar and is published in detail in the annual Australian Defence Force Academy Handbook. For further information, refer also to the website www.unsw.adfa.edu.au/student or contact Student Administrative Services, telephone (02) 6268 6000, email sas@adfa.edu.au

The University Library

The Library offers access to information resources and services to assist UNSW students and staff with their research and study. Resources and services include books and journals (print and electronic) and databases, along with computers, printing facilities photocopiers and scanning. An interlibrary loans service is available for postgraduate students and university staff. Institutes

Garvan Institute of Medical Research

In 1963, the establishment of the Garvan Institute of Medical Research fulfilled a long held desire of St Vincent's Hospital to contribute to the international body of scientific knowledge in addition to its role as a provider of medical care. Incorporated as an autonomous Institute under its own Act of Parliament in 1984, the Garvan is NSW's premier research institute. It is the only Institute in NSW to receive 'Centre of Excellence' status with block funding from the National Health and Medical Research Council and is formally affiliated with St Vincent's Hospital and UNSW.

The Garvan Institute of Medical Research seeks to relieve human pain and suffering through intensive research into the molecular basis of health and disease. The Garvan integrates its basic and clinical resources to target five main areas:

- cancer;
- diabetes, obesity and cardiovascular disorders;
- neurobiology;

- osteoporosis;
- arthritis and Inflammation;
- pituitary disease.

These are all complex diseases with enormous social and financial costs for Australia and which depend on the application of a wide variety of sophisticated medical research techniques.

The Garvan is internationally recognised for its research achievements. Significant findings over the last few years have included:

- the exciting discovery of neurotransmitter receptors which may provide keys to unlock the secrets of how the brain controls appetite, anxiety, bone synthesis and hormone levels;
- development of an understanding of the relationship between the levels of different growth factor and hormone receptors in breast cancer;
- identification of new genetic markers that predict disease outcome in prostate, ovarian and pancreatic cancer;
- the finding that certain types of fat are closely related to the effectiveness of insulin - this discovery not only has significance for diabetes sufferers but also for those afflicted with functional metabolic problems related to obesity, high blood pressure and heart disease;
- the identification of a gene responsible for determining bone density, and hence the risk of developing osteoporosis;
- mapping of a gene responsible for susceptibility to manic depressive illness.

With over 300 staff, including 45 PhD students and over 60 highly specialised post-doctoral researchers, the Garvan believes that medical research is a vital part of the Australian health care system where it can be integrated with both educational and full community service programs.

UNSW Centres

The University has established a range of centres to encourage research, teaching and community service in areas not readily covered by individual schools and faculties. Most centres concentrate on multidisciplinary or interdisciplinary fields and bring together cognate groups of academics, researchers and students, traversing traditional faculty-school boundaries, to collaborate and deliver valuable, mutually beneficial activities in research and development. The amalgamation of expertise and resources to build up critical mass in centres has been essential in many of UNSW's areas of research strength. Centres also provide a common and easily identifiable "brand" external to UNSW. Most centres focus on themes where research or teaching excellence has been developed and are supported by substantial and continuing funding independent of the University's operating grant.

A listing of UNSW centres can be found in the 'Centres, Institutes and Associate Organisations' section earlier in the Calendar. For further information on UNSW centres please contact the relevant centre director.

Visiting Committees

Visiting Committees provide one important avenue through which the needs of external key groups can be taken into account in shaping the development of the University. The role of these committees is to review program developments and appraise particular educational programs in relation to the needs of industry and professional practice; to receive and discuss the annual report of the Head of School; report to Council on any special problems and opportunities facing the School; and aid the development of the School in any other way possible. Membership consists of an appropriate mix of practitioners and community representatives, together with the professorial staff of schools and representatives from the Alumni Association.

For further information on the role or memberships of Visiting Committees, contact the Office of the Pro-Vice-Chancellor (Education & Quality Improvement).

CONTACT

CONTACT is an information and referral service operated by student volunteers. Contact volunteers are available to answer questions from students or visitors to UNSW. They can provide information that covers academic, financial, recreational, social and personal issues. The volunteers can direct students and visitors to resources or locations, or refer them to organisations on campus or elsewhere for further information or advice. CONTACT also has a supply of information brochures, and health promotion items such as condoms, tampons and first aid items for student use.

Volunteers at the CONTACT desk are all students who have encountered the same issues, queries, and problems themselves, and are trained to provide accurate and immediate information in a friendly, informal manner.

International Exchange Program

UNSW actively encourages all students to undertake part of their study overseas through one of our formal reciprocal exchange agreements. Students have over 170 different exchange opportunities to choose from in 32 countries. In 2005, around 350 students studied overseas at one of our partner universities and UNSW is committed to the active expansion of its international exchange program.

Under the program, students can spend one or two semesters at a partner university in Asia, Europe, USA, India, Canada, or Latin America. Studies completed at the overseas university are credited towards the student's UNSW degree. This means that no extra time is required to complete the degree.

Local and international undergraduate and postgraduate students with a satisfactory academic record may apply to participate in the exchange program after one semester of study at UNSW. During their period of exchange, students remain enrolled at UNSW and pay normal activity fees and HECS, local or international fees. The overseas university waives tuition fees for exchange students, but students are responsible for their own travel, accommodation and living expenses.

To assist students to gain overseas experience, the University has numerous International Exchange Scholarships available, valued at $1,800 each; more than 80 were made available in 2005. In addition, students with demonstrated financial need may apply for an exchange Bursary of up to $5,000 to assist them during their exchange. Students who receive Youth Allowance or another types of scholarships may usually continue to receive these benefits while on exchange.

The International Exchange Program is part of UNSW International and is located on Level 2, East Wing The Red Centre H16, Engineering Road. Telephone (02) 9385 7276, fax (02) 9385 5927, email intex@unsw.edu.au, website www.international.unsw.edu.au.

International Student Services

International Student Services (ISS) helps international students adjust to living and studying in Australia and promotes understanding between people from different cultures through a wide range of social and cultural activities.

Students can have a personal and confidential discussion with an advisor on any matter of concern, including decisions students have to make (study, finances, personal), assistance with practical difficulties (housing, health, finance, bureaucracy), personal relationships or issues affecting the student's dependants in Australia. Where necessary advisors can act as advocates for students on administrative and academic matters or mediate with the University and government departments.

Specialised programs offered by ISS include: pre-departure information; airport reception and arrangement of temporary accommodation; personal assistance in finding long-term accommodation; comprehensive orientation program and handbook for new students; academic preparation program for postgraduates; workshops focusing on specific issues related to study or personal matters; returning home seminars and valedictory function for graduates.

Throughout the year various social and cultural activities are organised to help students mix with Australians or other international students. Volunteering opportunities and community events are organized for students to gain a better understanding of the Australian culture. These activities include social sports meets, sight-seeing trips, Sydney social and community events, fund raising events, local council community projects, and cultural exchange talks by students in nearby schools and hospitals.

Support for dependants of international students is also provided by ISS. Special orientation briefing and information are provided on school education, English classes for dependants and community support services.

In particular, ISS is committed to fostering the activities of international student groups and organisations on campus so that they can assist one another. ISS offers a peer mentor program for senior international students to assist new students. Students from individual countries are also linked up with students from the same country to help each other.

A printed newsletter is sent to students once a session, an e-bulletin is updated monthly on the ISS web page and an electronic mailing list is set up to facilitate communication amongst international students and to keep them informed of relevant developments and activities of interest. An online trading facility for students to buy/sell/exchange furniture and books is also accessible on the ISS web page. An events album of photos of various student activities is also on the web page for students.

Advisors are available Monday to Friday from 9.00am - 5.00pm throughout the year. During February and July, the office is open from 8.00am - 5.00pm weekdays and from 9.00am -12 noon Saturday mornings to receive new students. International Student Services is part of UNSW International and is located on the first floor, East Wing of the Red Centre, H16, Engineering Road. Telephone (02) 9385 5333, fax (02) 9385 6369, email international.student@unsw.edu.au, website www.international.unsw.edu.au.

Religious Services

The University Religious Centre has been established to serve the religious needs of the University community, through the chaplains and specified student religious organisations. The Centre is located on the 3rd floor of the Squarehouse Building.

A chaplaincy service is available through the Centre for the benefit of students and staff. This service offers worship, fellowship, personal counselling and guidance, together with formation in leadership, biblical and doctrinal studies. The chaplains maintain close liaison with student religious societies.

The following faith traditions are represented: Anglican, Baha'i, Buddhist, Catholic, Greek Orthodox, Islamic, Jewish, Mormon, Pentecostal, Salvation Army and Uniting.

Sports Association

The Sports Association is a student organisation within the University comprising 40 constituent sporting clubs. These clubs provide sporting and recreational opportunities for both men and women in a wide variety of sports. These range from traditional sports such as soccer and netball to the more recreation oriented clubs such as scuba-diving and rock-climbing. Many clubs are involved in weekly competition and each club provides for all levels of participation, with coaching for the novice or beginner in most sports. Clubs also organise accompanying social activities for their members to broaden the range of people they meet.

The Sports Association offers a range of recreation courses that aim to encourage participants to try something new. They are open to students, staff and the public and include courses such as horse-riding, belly dancing, golf and yoga. Also available are social sports (usually played around lunchtime) for staff and students, including team sports such as soccer, touch football, basketball and netball.

Membership is compulsory for all registered students. Membership is also open to all members of staff, graduates of the University and members of the public on payment of the fee which is prescribed in the By-Laws of the Association. All members are encouraged to participate in the activities arranged by the Association and to make use of the University's sporting and recreational facilities.

The Association covers much of an individual's expenses for participating in sport, including capital equipment (e.g. ski boats, scuba gear and sailboards) and compulsory fees. This gives students the opportunity to participate in a diversity of sports at a reasonable cost.

The Sports Association is affiliated with Australian Universities Sports Incorporated (AUS) which is the controlling body for sport in all Australian universities. University Sports teams compete in Australian University Championships which are sporting competitions between universities from across Australia with competitors being provided with subsidised travel. UNSW has an excellent record of competition at the Championships and is respected for the competitiveness of its teams and willingness to take a leadership role in the development of University sport.

The Association also seeks to offer elite athletes the opportunity to participate at the highest level in their sport, through initiatives such as the Ben Lexcen Scholarships, which increase playing standards and attract good players to University Sporting Clubs. The scholarships facilitate the continuance of an academic and sporting career while assisting the personal development of students who have achieved sporting excellence.

The Sports Association, administered by a General Committee, includes delegates from each of the constituent clubs. Its office bearers are elected annually.

The Sports Association Office is located in the Sam Cracknell Pavilion (H8, lower campus), telephone (02) 9385 4880, email sport@unsw.edu.au, website www.sport.unsw.edu.au.

The Equity and Diversity Unit (EADU) is a division of the Office of the Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic). The role of the EADU is to provide advice and assistance to staff and students on equity concerns, formulate appropriate policies and programs, and to promote good equity practices, so that students and staff at UNSW have a fair and equitable opportunity to fully participate and succeed in their studies or employment.

The Unit provides a range of programs and services for staff and students, including:

Staff and students with any queries or concerns about equity and diversity matters can contact the EADU, Level 9, Applied Sciences Building, telephone (02) 9385 4734, email equity-diversity@unsw.edu.au. After-hours consultations are available (by appointment only) for those unable to make appointments during business hours. Issues can be discussed confidentially, if needed. The EADU also has information on its website: www.equity.unsw.edu.au.

Equity & Diversity Policy Statement

The University of New South Wales is committed to the goals of equal opportunity and affirmative action in education and employment. It aims to provide a study and work environment for staff and students that fosters fairness, equity, and respect for social and cultural diversity, and that is free from unlawful discrimination, harassment and vilification as determined by legislation and by University Council.¹

In fulfilling this commitment, the University will:

- foster a University culture which values and responds to the rich diversity of its staff and students;²
- provide equal opportunity by removing barriers to participation and progression in employment and education so that all staff and students have the opportunity to fully contribute to University life;³
- offer programs which aim to overcome past disadvantage for members of staff and student equity groups;³
- promote clear and accountable educational and management policies and practices to engender trust between managers, staff and students;

- enhance the quality of students' learning through the provision of culturally, socially and gender inclusive education in areas such as curricula, teaching methods, assessment and review provisions, written and audiovisual material and support services; and
- ensure that its staff and students are aware of their rights and their responsibilities as University members.

To achieve these goals, the University depends on the continued co-operation of all members of the University community.

The Vice-Chancellor as Chief Executive Officer and Director of Affirmative Action is responsible for compliance with all relevant legislation. He is assisted by the Executive and the Director, Equity and Diversity.

Explanatory Notes:

1. Currently the grounds of unlawful discrimination and harassment are:

- age;
- compulsory retirement from employment;
- disability (physical, intellectual, psychiatric, sensory, neurological or learning disability, physical disfigurement, the presence in the body of an organism capable of causing disease, and current, past, future or imputed disability).
- homosexuality (male or female, actual or presumed);
- marital status (single; or, with reference to a person of the opposite sex, married, separated, divorced, widowed or in a de facto relationship);

- responsibilities as a carer;
- sex; sexual harassment;
- transgender or transsexuality (anyone who lives, has lived, or wants to live as a member of the opposite gender to their birth gender including people who are assumed to be transgender);
- actual or imputed characteristics of any of the attributes listed above; and
- association with a person identified by reference to any of the attributes listed above.

It is also unlawful to terminate employment on any of the grounds listed above, and also on the grounds of temporary absence from work because of injury or illness, membership or non-membership of a union, participation in union activities, and absence from work during maternity or other parental leave.

The grounds of unlawful vilification are:

- HIV/AIDS;
- homosexuality;
- race; and
- transgender (transsexuality).

The University is complying with the following statutory requirements with regard to unlawful discrimination and vilification: The NSW Anti-Discrimination Act, and The University of New South Wales Act; and The Federal Disability Discrimination Act, Racial Discrimination Act, Sex Discrimination Act and Workplace Relations Act.

(ii): Under the Federal Human Rights and Equal Opportunity Act there are a number of further grounds of discrimination in the area of employment or occupation:

- criminal record;

- medical record;
- national extraction or social origin; and
- trade union activity.

However, discrimination on these grounds is not made unlawful by the Act, and the grounds do not apply where the discrimination is necessary because of the inherent requirements of a particular job. The only avenue of redress for a complaint under this Act is conciliation.

2. In compliance with the NSW Charter of Principles for a Culturally Diverse Society endorsed in 1993 and reaffirmed in 1995 by the NSW Government.

For students, in compliance with Federal Government policy as outlined in A Fair Chance for All, AGPS, 1990 and subsequent amendments as outlined by DEST. The identified equity groups are: Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people; people with disabilities, from socio-economically disadvantaged backgrounds, from rural and isolated areas, from non-English speaking backgrounds; and women in non-traditional areas of study.

Equal Opportunity in Education Policy Statement

Under the Federal Racial Discrimination Act 1975, Sex Discrimination Act 1984, and Disability Discrimination Act 1992 and the NSW Anti-Discrimination Act 1977, the University is required not to discriminate against students or prospective students on the grounds of age, disability, homosexuality (male or female), marital status, pregnancy, race (including colour, nationality, descent, ethnic, ethno-religious or national origin, and immigration), religious or political affiliation, views or beliefs, sex, and transgender or transsexuality. Under The University of New South Wales Act 1989, the University declares that it will not discriminate on the grounds of religious or political affiliations, views or beliefs.

University Commitment to Equal Opportunity in Education

As well as recognising its statutory obligations as listed, the University will eliminate discrimination on any other grounds which it deems to constitute disadvantage. The University is committed to providing a place to study free from harassment and discrimination, and one in which every student is encouraged to work towards her/his maximum potential. The University further commits itself to course design, curriculum content, classroom environment, assessment procedures and other aspects of campus life which will provide equality of educational opportunity to all students.

Special Admissions Schemes

The University will encourage the enrolment of students who belong to disadvantaged groups through programs such as the University Preparation Program and the ACCESS Scheme. Where members of disadvantaged groups are particularly under-represented in certain disciplines, the responsible faculties will actively encourage their enrolment.

Support of Disadvantaged Students

The University will provide support to assist the successful completion of studies by disadvantaged group members through such means as the Aboriginal Education Program and the Learning Centre. It will work towards the provision of other resources, such as access for students with impaired mobility, assistance to students with other disabilities, the provision of a parents' room on the upper campus, and increased assistance with English language and communication.

Course Content, Curriculum Design, Teaching and Assessment, and Printed Material

Schools and faculties will monitor course content (including titles), teaching methods, assessment procedures, written material (including study guides and Handbook and Calendar entries) and audiovisual material to ensure that they are not discriminatory or offensive and that they encourage and facilitate full participation in education by disadvantaged people.

Equal Opportunity Advisor Scheme

The University will continue its Equal Opportunity Advisor Scheme for students who feel that they have been harassed or who consider they have been disadvantaged in their education by practices and procedures within the University.

Harassment Policy

The University is committed to ensuring freedom from harassment for all people working or studying within the institution. It will continue to take action, including disciplinary action, to ensure that freedom from harassment is achieved.

Government Policies

The NSW Health Department and the NSW Department of Education and Training have special requirements and policies of which students of health-related and education programs should be aware. The requirements relate to:

- clinical/internship placements which must be undertaken as part of your program and
- procedures for employment after you have completed the program

Health-related Programs

Criminal record checks:

The NSW Department of Health has a policy to carry out criminal record checks on all students undertaking clinical placements or who require access in any capacity to facilities operated by the Department. (This includes all the Teaching Hospitals used by UNSW in its Medicine program.) It undertakes these checks, as it has a duty of care to all patients and clients receiving services from the Department. The check is conducted by the NSW Police Service and is coordinated by the Department of Health and the University. Further details can be obtained from your program authority.

Infectious diseases:

Students required to complete clinical training in the NSW hospital system will be subject to various guidelines and procedures laid down for health workers by the NSW Department of Health relating to immunisation, infection and blood-borne viruses. Further details can be obtained from your program authority.

Education Programs

Criminal record checks:

It is a requirement that a check of police records be conducted for all teacher education students applying for an unsupervised internship placement in a NSW government school. Contact your program coordinator for further details.

Working with Children

Under the Commission for Children and Young People Act 1998 and the Child Protection (Prohibited Employment) Act 1998, students who as part of their enrolment are required to work with children must declare whether they are a 'prohibited person', that is they have been convicted of a serious sex offence. It is an offence for a 'prohibited person' to work with children.

International Students (ESOS Act)

The Education Services for Overseas Students (ESOS) Act 2000 is Commonwealth Government legislation that ensures providers of education and training are regulated in the delivery of education services to international students.

All providers and programs available to international students are required to be registered on the Commonwealth Register of Institutions and Courses for Overseas Students (CRICOS). A National Code of Practice has been established which provides for consistent standards for the registration and conduct of registered providers and the conduct of persons who deliver educational services on behalf of registered providers.

The Act also provides for obligations and restrictions on students to comply with the conditions of their student visa. Under the Act, the University is required to monitor and report on some of these conditions to the Department of Immigration, Multicultural and Indigenous Affairs (DIMIA).

The ESOS Management Unit at UNSW is responsible for coordinating the monitoring and reporting requirements under the Act and is available for advice to students on any of these requirements. For further information, please refer to the following website or contact the Unit via phone (+61 2) 9385 3065 or email esos@unsw.edu.au: <https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/resources/ESOSstudent.html>

2006 Tuition Fee Schedule

Identification of Courses and Course Fees 2006

A course is defined by the Academic Board as 'a unit of instruction approved by the University as being a discrete part of the requirements for a program offered by the University'.

Each approved course of the University is identified by a sequence of eight characters, consisting of a four character alphabetical prefix which identifies the subject area, and a four digit numeric suffix which identifies the course. Each course has a unit of credit value defined.

Course identifiers are approved by the Registrar and the system of allocation is based on the following guidelines:

1. A four character alphabetical prefix is used to indicate the subject areas. This usually correlates with the authority offering the course (normally a School of the University), but in some cases identifies subject specialisations or cross-disciplinary subject areas.
2. Each course identifier is unique and is not used for more than one course title.

Courses taught are listed in full in the Undergraduate and Postgraduate Handbooks and in the Online Handbook. The subject areas and organisational units for each identifying alphabetical prefix are also described in the Handbooks and the specialisation pages in the Online Handbook.

Course Prefixes and Associated Fees Per Unit of Credit

A standard session academic load is 24 units of credit (48 UOC per annum).

Fees for courses are charged by unit of credit according to the classification of the course (that is undergraduate, postgraduate, research) and then the classification of the student.

To calculate the charge for a course - refer to the course prefix, appropriate course classification, and student classification to determine the fee per unit of credit.

Non-award courses will also be charged according to the classification of the course as above.

For Example: An International student is enrolling in a Faculty of Commerce and Economics course, ACCT3563, which has a value of 6 units of credit and the course is classified as undergraduate.

The fee for this course will be $6 \times $400 = \2400.00

The fees listed are applicable to students who commenced study from Summer Session 2003 onwards.

General Education Program

UNSW requires that undergraduate students undertake a structured program in General Education as an integral part of studies for their degree. The University believes that a general education complements the more specialised learning undertaken in a student's chosen field of study and contributes to the flexibility which graduates are increasingly required to demonstrate. Employers repeatedly point to the complex nature of the modern work environment and advise that they highly value graduates with the skills provided by a broad general education, as well as the specialised knowledge provided in more narrowly defined degree programs. As well, over many years graduates of this University have reported that they greatly valued their General Education studies, which are found to be relevant to both career and personal development.

The General Education Program at UNSW intends to broaden and deepen students' understanding of the environment in which they live and work and to enhance their skills of critical analysis. Above all, the program presents students with interesting, challenging and enjoyable opportunities to pursue their own intellectual curiosity.

Objectives of the General Education Program

The following objectives were approved by the Council of the University in December 1994. (Minor changes were approved by Council in 2005).

1. To provide a learning environment in which students acquire, develop, and deploy skills of rational thought and critical analysis.
2. To enable students to evaluate arguments and information.
3. To empower students to systematically challenge received traditions of knowledge, beliefs and values.
4. To enable students to acquire skills and competencies, including appropriate written and spoken communication skills.
5. To ensure that students examine the purposes and consequences of their education and experience at University, and to foster acceptance of professional and ethical action and the social responsibility of graduates.
6. To foster among students the competence and the confidence to contribute creatively and responsibly to the development of their society.
7. To provide structured opportunities for students from disparate disciplines to interact cooperatively within a learning situation.
8. To provide opportunities for students to explore discipline and paradigm bases other than those of their professional or major disciplinary specialisation through non-specialist courses offered in those other areas.
9. To provide an environment in which students are able to experience the benefits of moving beyond the knowledge boundaries of a single discipline and explore cross and interdisciplinary connections, and cross-cultural contexts.
10. To provide a learning environment and teaching methodology in which students can bring the approaches of a number of disciplines to bear on a complex problem or issue.

General Education Requirements

The University's basic requirements are the same for students in all single degree programs. Students must:

- (a) satisfactorily complete a minimum of 12 units of credit in General Education courses or their equivalent (unless otherwise entitled to exemption). Combined undergraduate degrees offered with another faculty and leading to the award of two degrees satisfy the first requirement (12 units of credit in General Education) within the program.
- (b) undertake additionally 56 hours of study which examines the purposes and consequences of their university education and which fosters socially, ethically and professionally responsible behaviour. The extent to which individual programs meet this requirement varies from program to program. In the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, for example, this requirement is satisfied in the BA degree through an ARTS3000 course.

In some other degrees of the Faculty of Arts, it is distributed throughout the program. Most programs in the Faculty of the Built Environment fulfil the latter requirement as part of the normal program curriculum. However, in the case of both the BBCM and BSc(Arch) programs, students are required to take BENV1382, Social Responsibility and Professional Ethics.

Because the objectives of General Education require students to explore discipline and paradigm bases other than those of their professional or major disciplinary specialisation, all students are excluded from counting courses toward the fulfilment of the General Education requirement, which are similar in content or approach to subjects required in their degree program.

Each faculty has responsibility for deciding what courses are not able to be counted towards the General Education requirement for their students. This may mean that courses offered by the faculty in which a student is enrolled, or courses which are a required part of a degree program even though offered by another Faculty, are not able to be counted toward the General Education requirement.

The Undergraduate Handbook, Online Handbook, faculty brochures and booklets provide information about what courses may and may not be taken to fulfil the General Education requirements for each degree program offered by that faculty.

Procedures

The University, in common with other large organisations, has established rules and procedures which are designed for the benefit of all members of the University. In some cases, there are penalties (e.g. fines or exclusion from examinations) for non-compliance.

Students should refer to the front section of the 2006 Undergraduate and Postgraduate Handbooks where University policies and procedures are listed in detail.

Outright and Deferred Gifts and Bequests for Beneficial and Endowment Purposes

Since its foundation in 1949 the University of New South Wales has contributed to the prosperity and development of industry and commerce in Australia through its teaching, research and community outreach. While it receives a measure of support from governments, the University relies to a considerable extent on funds from a diverse range of other sources in order to continue its vital role of high-level teaching, scholarship and research on which so much of society's development and ongoing success depends.

In 1988, the University established the University of New South Wales Foundation Limited as the principal vehicle for its fundraising activities. The UNSW Foundation gives particular emphasis to growing its endowment, while the capital base generates funds for use in perpetuity. An endowed gift today will still deliver benefits into the next century, whether by supporting scholarships, enabling research or rewarding other aspects of the University's aspiration and mission.

The Endowment Fund has grown from $3m in the mid 1990's to almost $40m in 2005. The Foundation annually distributes over $3 million in earnings from the endowment and from current use gifts for the specific purposes intended by its donors. Over the same period, resources have also been generated for immediate and specific projects (the Beneficial Fund). These have totalled over $23m since 1996. The UNSW Foundation ensures that the highest standards of financial probity and accountability are applied to its activities.

Individuals and private foundations, corporations and organizations that wish to foster the University's advancement through philanthropic support are encouraged to contribute to the Foundation, which can be contacted through the Director Marketing and Development who is also CEO of the Foundation. Visit the website at www.dvcie.unsw.edu.au or telephone 61 2 9385 3277.

The UNSW Foundation is a registered Charity (Charity No 12473) and gifts to the Foundation are tax deductible.

(2) In exceptional cases an applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional qualifications as may be approved by the Committee may be permitted to enrol for the degree.

(3) If the Committee is not satisfied with the qualifications submitted by an applicant the Committee may require the applicant to undergo such assessment or carry out such work as the Committee may prescribe, before permitting enrolment as a candidate for the degree.

Enrolment

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the degree shall be lodged with the Registrar at least one month prior to the date at which enrolment is to begin.

(2) In every case before making the offer of a place the Committee shall be satisfied that initial agreement has been reached between the School¹ and the applicant on the topic area, supervision arrangements, provision of adequate facilities and any coursework to be prescribed and that these are in accordance with the provisions of the guidelines for promoting postgraduate study within the University.

(3) The candidate shall be enrolled either as a full-time or a part-time student.

(4) A full-time candidate will present the thesis for examination no earlier than three years and no later than five years from the date of enrolment and a part-time candidate will present the thesis for examination no earlier than four years and no later than six years from the date of enrolment, except with the approval of the Committee.

(5) The candidate may undertake the research as an internal student i.e. at a campus, teaching hospital, or other research facility with which the University is associated, or as an external student not in attendance at the University except for periods as may be prescribed by the Committee.

(6) An internal candidate will normally carry out the research on a campus or at a teaching or research facility of the University except that the Committee may permit a candidate to spend a period in the field, within another institution or elsewhere away from the University provided that the work can be supervised in a manner satisfactory to the Committee. In such instances the Committee shall be satisfied that the location and period of time away from the University are necessary to the research program.

(7) The research shall be supervised by a supervisor and where possible a co-supervisor who are members of the academic staff of the School or under other appropriate supervision arrangements approved by the Committee. Normally an external candidate within another organisation or institution will have a co-supervisor at that institution.

Progression

4. The progress of the candidate shall be considered by the Committee following report from the School in accordance with the procedures established within the School and previously noted by the Committee.

(i) The research proposal will be reviewed as soon as feasible after enrolment. For a full-time student this will normally be during the first year of study, or immediately following a period of prescribed coursework. This review will focus on the viability of the research proposal.

(ii) Progress in the course will be reviewed within twelve months of the first review. As a result of either review the Committee may cancel enrolment or take such other action as it considers appropriate. Thereafter, the progress of the candidate will be reviewed annually.

Thesis

5. (1) On completing the program of study a candidate shall submit a thesis embodying the results of the investigation.

(2) The candidate shall give in writing to the Registrar two months notice of intention to submit the thesis.

(a) it must be an original and significant contribution to knowledge of the subject;

(b) the greater proportion of the work described must have been completed subsequent to enrolment for the degree;

(c) it must be written in English except that a candidate in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences may be required by the Committee to write a thesis in an appropriate foreign language;

(d) it must reach a satisfactory standard of expression and presentation;

(e) it must consist of an account of the candidate's own research but in special cases work done conjointly with other persons may be accepted provided the Committee is satisfied about the extent of the candidate's part in the joint research.

(4) The candidate may not submit as the main content of the thesis any work or material which has previously been submitted for a university degree or other similar award but may submit any work previously published whether or not such work is related to the thesis.

(5) Four copies of the thesis shall be presented in a form which complies with the requirements of the University for the preparation and submission of theses for higher degrees.

Note: Policy with Respect to the Use of Higher Degree Theses

The University holds that the deposit copies of a thesis submitted for a higher degree and retained in the Library should be retained not only for record purposes but also, within copyright privileges of the author, should be public property and accessible for consultation at the discretion of the University Librarian. As digital theses are freely available to the public, candidates must obtain permission for use of copyright material and signoff accordingly. Otherwise such material will need to be restricted. The University also recognises that there may be other exceptional circumstances requiring restrictions on copying or conditions of use of paper copies, and restrictions or partial restrictions of digital copies. Another option is that digital theses may be restricted to the UNSW campus domain. It is expected that restricted digital theses will still be submitted with metadata, such as the abstract, being publicly available. There may be exceptional circumstances when even the metadata will not be made available.

Requests for restriction of access to a thesis for a period of up to two years must be made in writing to the Registrar, prior to deposit of the final copies in the Library. Requests for a longer period of restriction may be considered in exceptional circumstances if accompanied by a letter of support from the supervisor or Head of School.

31. Procedure if no candidate has absolute majority of votes

(2) The Returning Officer is to declare elected any candidate who, on completion of the count under subclause (1), has received an absolute majority of votes.

(3) If 2 or more candidates have an equal number of votes at the time that it is necessary to exclude one of them, the candidate to be excluded is to be determined as follows:

(b) the slips must be folded so as to prevent identification and mixed and drawn at random,

(c) the candidate whose name is first drawn must be excluded.

32. Process to continue until candidate elected

The process of excluding the candidate who has the fewest first preference votes and counting each of the ballot papers counted to that candidate to the continuing candidate next in order of the voter's preference is to be continued until:

(a) one continuing candidate has an absolute majority of votes, in which case the Returning Officer is to declare that candidate elected, or

(b) there are only 2 continuing candidates who do not have an equal number of votes, in which case the candidate with the larger number of votes is to be declared elected, even if the number of votes is below an absolute majority of votes, or

- (b) the total number of ballot papers of the elected candidate showing the next available preference for a particular continuing candidate is to be multiplied by the transfer value,
- (c) the number so obtained (disregarding any fraction) is to be added to the number of first preference votes of the particular continuing candidate,
- (d) all those ballot papers are to be transferred to the particular continuing candidate.

(2) The Returning Officer is to declare elected each continuing candidate who, on the completion of the transfer, has received a number of votes equal to or greater than the quota.
