In 2000 the students entering UNSW Law School will be a mixture of school-leavers, graduates from other disciplines, students who have begun but not completed another university course, people who left school some time back and are returning to study, and law graduates enrolling for a postgraduate degree. For the academic and administrative staff of the School, it is a pleasure to welcome a new intake of richly varying backgrounds. We hope that you enjoy your time at the School and that it proves to be an intellectually stimulating experience in which your talents find rich and fulfilling expression.

Distinctive elements

No two law schools are alike. Each has its distinctive ethos and aspirations. Let me outline those that shape UNSW and will affect your experience here.

First, the School emphasises active learning. Lectures to large groups of students are unknown. The bulk of teaching is done in groups of no more than 40. Students prepare material before classes and participate actively in classroom discussions. This is not only the best educational approach for intending lawyers, whose future careers will regularly make demands on their capacity to explain and argue about the law, but it also develops superior skills of analysis, understanding and facility with legal materials. You will also find it a more stimulating educational experience.

Second, we are committed to the principle of a relatively small compulsory core of subjects in the LLB curriculum complemented with a wide choice of electives. This breadth of choice is necessary if legal education is to provide the foundation for different specialisations within legal practice as well as for the wide variety of other careers for which it has become a prized form of preparation.

Third, the UNSW law curriculum has a national outlook and character. That national outlook, bolstered by an international dimension in many areas, prepares students for careers in a diversity of jurisdictions and occupations.

Above all, the School firmly believes that students matter and that their intellectual and professional development is a central justification and focus for its activities. In small-sized class groups we get to know each other as individuals, with first names being used by students and teachers. We appoint special tutors to assist indigenous students and those whose first language is not English. Student representatives are actively involved in School governance. The UNSW Law Society organises a wide range of activities including a program of distinguished guest speakers, moot competitions, the UNSW Law Journal and participates in conventions of Australasian law students. The School also helps students to obtain summer clerkships before final year and employment after graduation. Law Library staff are always willing to assist students to locate materials. The School also has a strong cohort of postgraduate research students whom it draws into the intellectual life of the School.

The mixed goals of legal education

Legal education at UNSW is essentially a hybrid of two elements. The Law School is part of the great university tradition of scholarship and intellectual inquiry for its own sake. In that character, legal education emphasises reflection, critical discussion and systematic analysis of legal phenomena. On the other hand, the Law School is also a professional school which prepares its graduates for a diverse range of careers in and beyond the practice of law. In this latter character, it seeks to nurture a facility with legal principles and doctrines that is technically adroit, creative and imbued with high ethical standards. The theoretical and professional dimensions of legal education are interdependent, albeit in healthy competition and creative balance.

An important dimension of the School's character lies in the pervasive recognition of the aspirations for social justice that underpin law's domain. In his welcome to the first students of this law school, the Foundation Dean, the Hon Hal Wootten AC QC, wrote in the 1971 handbook to readers such as yourselves:

We believe that a law school should have and communicate to its students a keen concern for those on whom the law may bear harshly, either because they cannot afford its services, or because it does not sufficiently recognise their needs, or because they are in some way alienated from the rest of society. The poor, the Aborigines, the handicapped, the deviants, all need their champions in the law as elsewhere.

This commitment to law being in the service of the community's yearning for justice, and being in dialogue with politics, morals, philosophy and the institutions of economic action, is a central faith in the Law School. It shapes teaching programs, research activity and the wider engagements of its members. We hope that you will contribute to those engagements and to the great discourse, across the generations and with the central questions of the age, in which law is intimately engaged.

May you receive a legal education that brings out your deepest talents, capacities and understandings. We hope that you take much from the Law School. May it also be a richer place for your presence.

Changes to Academic Programs in 2000

From the start of 2000, the University will move to a new academic structure that will be common to all undergraduate and postgraduate programs. The new structure will lead to greater flexibility and improved educational opportunities for students.

While many programs are already structured in a way consistent with the new direction, others have been revised for 2000 to take advantage of the benefits of the new structure.

What is the New Academic Structure?

The new academic structure is based on units of credit, which replace credit points. A full-time enrolment for one year is defined as 48 units of credit. A normal full-time enrolment for one semester is 24 units of credit. (You will be regarded as full-time if you enrol in at least 18 units per semester.)

Courses (subjects) will also change to reflect the new structure. Most courses will be worth 6 units of credit. Some courses will have a higher or lower value: for example, undergraduate General Education courses will be worth 3 units of credit.

A full-time student in an undergraduate or graduate coursework program will typically enrol in four x 6 unit courses per semester.

How Are the Changes Being Implemented?

The changes take effect from the start of 2000. Handbooks, forms, program specific enrolment materials, and timetables will all reflect the new structure.

You will notice the changes when you enrol for 2000. Your program office will give you information specific to your program as part of the enrolment process.

How Will These Changes Affect Me?

If you do not complete requirements for your program in 1999, and need to re-enrol in 2000 your remaining program requirements will be measured in units of credit. Similarly, courses you have previously taken will be reported in terms of a conversion to the new units of credit.

Units of Credit

From January, 2000 the University will move to a new academic structure based on units of credit. A full-time enrolment for one year is defined as 48 units of credit (24 per semester). A course will have the same unit of credit value and generate the same load for HECS and fees irrespective of the program or stage in which it is taken. All courses will be measured in whole units of credit. The normal workload expectations are 25 - 30 hours per semester for each unit of credit, including class contact hours, preparation and time spent on all assessable work.

Terminology

Along with the change from credit points to units of credit there will be other changes in terminology from 1 January 2000. What you know as your course (Example: 3502 Bachelor of Commerce) will become your program and what you know as a subject (Example: ACCT2522) will become a course.

Further Information

For information specific to your program, including advice about enrolment, your standing and study options contact your program office.

This Handbook is divided into two main sections comprising undergraduate study and postgraduate study. Initially, course outlines are presented in each section, providing a guide to the degrees within organisational units. Read the opening sections of the handbook first, and then read the information contained under Course Outlines (Undergraduate or Postgraduate as appropriate). Detailed information on each subject can then be found under Subject Descriptions which provides full details of subject content, contacts and session/prerequisite details. Rules for progression through offered courses follow the subject description entries.

As changes may be made to information provided in this Handbook, students should frequently consult the noticeboards of the schools and the official noticeboards of the University.

Information Key

The following key provides a guide to abbreviations used in this book:

UoC	Units of Credit
F	full year (Session 1 plus Session 2)
HPW	hours per week
L	lecture
P/T	part-time
S1	Session 1
S2	Session 2
SS	Single Session, but which Session taught is not known at time of publication
T	tutorial/laboratory
U	unit value
WKS	weeks of duration
X	external

Prefixes

General Faculty Information and Assistance

Enquiries about enrolment, degree requirements, progression within programs, career advice or any other general Faculty matters should be made in the first instance to the staff in the Faculty Administration Office on Level 10. If the Office staff are unable to assist, you will be referred to another member of staff who will be able to respond to your enquiry. Faculty timetables, examination information, requests for special consideration and official University forms are all available from the Faculty Administration Office.

Faculty of Law Enrolment Procedures

All students re-enrolling in 2000 should obtain a copy of the free leaflet Re-Enrolling 2000 which is available from January 2000 from NewSouth Q (Student Enquiries). This leaflet provides detailed information on enrolment procedures and fees, enrolment timetables by faculty and program, enrolment as a miscellaneous student, and late enrolment. In order to assist the staff to get to know individual students, all new students are required to present a passport sized photograph when enrolling.

Provisional re-enrolment

With the exception of new students, all students must provisionally re-enrol with the Faculty in October/November of each year.

Guidelines for Maximum Workload

The sequence of study for each program is set out in the Faculty Handbook. Any student wishing to vary their program (law or non-law) by enrolling in extra courses, in a reduced program or in courses which do not conform to the normal sequence, must seek approval from the Associate Dean. Permission is given only in exceptional circumstances and on the basis of a written application submitted in advance of the relevant session or sessions outlining all the circumstances.

Full-time Status

Students are reminded that a full-time program is intended for students who devote the principal part of their available time to their program. Any additional commitment, in the form of paid work, training for sport at a significant level of achievement or voluntary work in community organizations, is bound to have an effect on a student's work. Past experience shows that commitment beyond 10-15 hours per week almost invariably has an adverse effect on student performance and in some cases has led directly to failure. Students are strongly advised that, if an outside commitment of this order is likely to be maintained consistently over a session, the commitment should be discussed in advance with the Associate Dean. It should be noted, however, that it is the individual teachers who determine whether outside commitments should constitute grounds for consideration in meeting the requirements of particular courses.

Part-time Status

Students undertaking the part-time program for Bachelor of Laws are expected to attend classes on two afternoons per week during the academic year, usually between 2pm and 6pm on Tuesday and Friday.

Assessment of Student Progress

Formal examinations are not the only method the Law School will use to assess students. Other methods of assessment include research projects, class participation, essays and moots (mock trials).

General Education Program

UNSW requires that all undergraduate students undertake a structured program in general education as an integral part of studies for their degree. The University believes that a General Education complements the more specialised learning undertaken in a student's chosen field of study and contributes to the flexibility which graduates are increasingly required to demonstrate. Employers repeatedly point to the complex nature of the modern work environment and advise that they highly value graduates with the skills provided by a broad general education, as well as the specialised knowledge provided in more narrowly defined degree programs. As well, over many years graduates of this University have reported that they greatly valued their General Education studies, which are found to be relevant to both career and personal development.

The General Education Program at UNSW intends to broaden students' understanding of the environment in which they live and work and to enhance their skills of critical analysis.

Objectives of the General Education Program

The following objectives were approved by the Council of the University in December 1994.

1. To provide a learning environment in which students acquire, develop, and deploy skills of rational thought and critical analysis.
2. To enable students to evaluate arguments and information.
3. To empower students to systematically challenge received traditions of knowledge, beliefs and values.
4. To enable students to acquire skills and competencies, including written and spoken communication skills.
5. To ensure that students examine the purposes and consequences of their education and experience at University, and to foster acceptance of professional and ethical action and the social responsibility of graduates.
6. To foster among students the competence and the confidence to contribute creatively and responsibly to the development of their society.
7. To provide structured opportunities for students from disparate disciplines to co-operatively interact within a learning situation.
8. To provide opportunities for students to explore discipline and paradigm bases other than those of their professional or major disciplinary specialisation through non-specialist courses offered in those other areas.

9. To provide an environment in which students are able to experience the benefits of moving beyond the knowledge boundaries of a single discipline and explore cross- and interdisciplinary connections.

10. To provide a learning environment and teaching methodology in which students can bring the approaches of a number of disciplines to bear on a complex problem or issue.

General Education requirements for Law Students

The basic General Education requirements are the same for students in all programs:

- Four (4) session length courses carrying a minimum of 3 units of credit each or their equivalent, in combinations of session length and year long courses
- An additional fifty-six (56) hours of study which foster acceptance of professional and ethical action and social responsibility. This fifty-six hours of study may be distributed throughout the program, or exist as a separate course, depending on the program. (In the Faculty of Law this is met through the completion of the compulsory course Law, Lawyers and Society.

As from 26 July 1999, law students enrolled in combined degree programs (except for Jurisprudence/Law) are exempted from 100% of the General Education studies which would ordinarily be required. Students may be granted advanced standing for the General Education Program on the basis of satisfactory completion of courses at another tertiary institution which meet the objectives of the UNSW General Education Program. Law students enrolled in the Bachelor of Jurisprudence and Bachelor of Laws program must complete General Education requirements.

Each Faculty has responsibility for deciding what courses are not able to be counted towards the General Education requirement for their students. Students within the Faculty of Law are given a wide choice in their General Education studies and may choose from any courses except

- courses offered by the Faculty of Law,
- courses offered by any faculty in which they are currently enrolled, or in which they have previously completed tertiary studies,
- courses where the discipline or paradigm base is considered too close to their present or past areas of study. Courses offered by the Australian Taxation Studies Program (ATAX) and the School of Business Law and Taxation are excluded for this reason.

Students should consult the General Education Handbook for detailed information about what courses may and may not be taken to fulfill the General Education requirements for each program offered by the Faculty. The General Education Handbook is freely available from all Faculty Offices.

Additional information for undergraduate students who first enrolled before 1996.

Transitional arrangements

It is intended that no student will be disadvantaged by the change to the new General Education Program. The old Program had specific requirements to complete four session length courses (or their equivalent) in designated categories A and B. The new General Education Program does not categorise courses in the same way.

As a result, students who enrolled prior to 1996 will be given full credit for any General Education courses completed up to the end of Session Two 1995.

From the summer session of 1995-96, students will be required to satisfy the unfilled portion of their General Education requirement under the terms of the new Program.

The exemption of General Education requirements for some double or combined degree programs will continue to apply for students who enrolled in these exempt programs prior to 1996.

Professional Associates

In addition to full-time teaching staff in the Faculty of Law, each year there is a small number of distinguished members of the legal profession in New South Wales who work in close association with full-time teachers. They participate in all aspects of the presentation of programs covered by their professional specialisation.

Prizes

A number of prizes are awarded annually. A full list appears in the last section of this Handbook.

Advanced Standing

The policy of the Law Faculty is to grant credit for courses which have been successfully completed in another Law Faculty where those courses, in the opinion of the Faculty, are equivalent in content and depth to comparable courses at the UNSW. Applicants who have completed a full law degree in another country are normally granted credit equivalent to one third of the UNSW degree. All matters regarding credit are at the discretion of the Faculty.

Cross Institutional Studies and Exchange Programs

Students enrolled at UNSW may be permitted to undertake some studies at overseas or interstate institutions ('Cross-Institutional Studies') provided that they are equivalent in content and depth to comparable courses at UNSW.

Courses which have been successfully completed at another law school (either in Australia or overseas) may be credited to the student's degree. Students must note that the Faculty generally requires that at least 50% of law studies be completed at UNSW.

The Faculty participates in several overseas exchange programs, and encourages students to take advantage of these. Information regarding these programs can be obtained from the administrative staff or the Associate Dean.

Students should discuss their plans for cross-institutional studies with the Associate Dean in order to determine both their eligibility to undertake such studies and the 'credibility' of the courses under consideration.

Financial Assistance to Students

Full-time students within the Faculty of Law in need of temporary financial assistance at any time during their studies should be aware of the existence of certain grants and loans sponsored by some Sydney law firms. Students who feel they may need assistance of this type are invited to discuss their requirements on a strictly confidential basis with the Dean.

Other financial assistance

In addition to AUSTUDY financed by the Australian Government other forms of assistance available include short term cash loans and financial assistance to Indigenous students. Full details appear in the University Calendar. Enquiries should be directed to the office of Student Services, Room G19, the Chancellery.

Commitment to Equal Opportunity in Education

It is government and University policy not to discriminate against students or prospective students on the grounds of sex, marital status, pregnancy, race, national or ethnic origin, colour, homosexuality, disability or religion. The University has committed itself to program design, curriculum content, classroom environment, assessment procedures and other aspects of campus life which will provide equality of educational opportunity to all students.

The University's policy of equal opportunity in education includes seeking wherever possible to ensure maximum participation of students with disabilities.

The University offers a range of assistance: examination support; specialized equipment; educational support; parking provisions; library assistance.

A Resource Guide for students and staff with disabilities and a map showing wheelchair access is available from the Adviser to Students with Disabilities, the EEO Unit, the Library and the Students Union.

It is advisable to make contact with the Adviser to Students with Disabilities prior to, or immediately following enrolment, to discuss your support needs. The Adviser can be contacted on 9385 5418 or at Student Services, Quad-rangle Building.

The Law Faculty has endorsed the University's policy statement on Equal Opportunity in Education. The University operates a special admission scheme to encourage enrolment from members of disadvantaged groups. Questions relating to discrimination are included in the program and teaching performance questionnaires completed by students at the end of most courses. The Faculty Curriculum and Teaching Committee monitors all program outlines detailing objectives and assessment strategy on a range of criteria including compliance with EOE policy. The Faculty is considering other ways in which the University policy might be developed and supported, including the establishment of a Faculty Equity Committee.

Equal Opportunity in Education Policy Statement

Under the Federal Racial Discrimination Act (1975), Sex Discrimination Act (1984), and Disability Discrimination Act (1992) and the New South Wales Anti-Discrimination Act (1977), the University is required not to discriminate against students or prospective students on the grounds of age, disability, homosexuality (male or female), marital status, pregnancy, race (including colour, nationality, descent, ethnic, ethno-religious or national origin, and immigration), religious or political affiliation, views or beliefs, sex, and transgender or transsexuality. Under the University of New South Wales Act (1989), the University declares that it will not discriminate on the grounds of religious or political affiliations, views or beliefs.

University Commitment to Equal Opportunity in Education

As well as recognising its statutory obligations as listed, the University will eliminate discrimination on any other grounds which it deems to constitute disadvantage. The University is committed to providing a place to study free from harassment and discrimination, and one in which every student is encouraged to work towards her/his maximum potential. The University further commits itself to program design, curriculum content, classroom environment, assessment procedures and other aspects of campus life which will provide equality of educational opportunity to all students.

Special Admissions Schemes

The University will encourage the enrolment of students who belong to disadvantaged groups through programs such as the University Preparation Program and the ACCESS Scheme. Where members of disadvantaged groups are particularly under-represented in certain disciplines, the responsible faculties will actively encourage their enrolment.

Support of Disadvantaged Students

The University will provide support to assist the successful completion of studies by disadvantaged group members through such means as the Aboriginal Education Program and the Learning Centre. It will work towards the provision of other resources, such as access for students with impaired mobility, assistance to students with other disabilities, the provision of a parents' room on the upper campus, and increased assistance with English language and communication.

Program Content, Curriculum Design, Teaching and Assessment, and Printed Material

Schools and faculties will monitor program content (including titles), teaching methods, assessment procedures, written material (including study guides and handbook and Calendar entries) and audiovisual material to ensure that they are not discriminatory or offensive and that they encourage and facilitate full participation in education by disadvantaged people.

Equal Opportunity Adviser Scheme

The University will continue its Equal Opportunity Adviser Scheme for students who feel that they have been harassed or who consider they have been disadvantaged in their education by practices and procedures within the University.

Harassment Policy

The University is committed to ensuring freedom from harassment for all people working or studying within the institution. It will continue to take action, including disciplinary action, to ensure that freedom from harassment is achieved.

Special Government Policies

The NSW Health Department and the NSW Department of Education and Training have special requirements and policies of which students of health-related and education programs should be aware. The requirements relate to:

- clinical/internship placements which must be undertaken as part of your program and
- procedures for employment after you have completed the program

Health-related programs

Criminal record checks

The NSW Health Department has a policy that all students undertaking clinical placements, undergo a criminal record check prior to employment or placement in any capacity in the NSW Health System. This check will be conducted by the NSW Police Service and will be co-ordinated by the Department of Health.

Infectious diseases

Students required to complete clinical training in the NSW hospital system will be subject to various guidelines and procedures laid down for health workers by the NSW Department of Health relating to vaccination and infection control.

An information sheet is available from your program officer and further details can be obtained from your Program Authority.

Education programs

Criminal record checks

It is a requirement that a check of police records be conducted for all teacher education students applying for an unsupervised internship placement in a New South Wales Government school. Contact your program co-ordinator for further details.

Student Equity

The University of New South Wales is committed to providing an educational environment that is free from discrimination and harassment. Both commonwealth and state anti-discrimination law requires the University not to discriminate against students or prospective students on the following grounds: sex, race/ethnicity, age, disability, sexual harassment, racial harassment, disability harassment, marital status, pregnancy, sexual preference, HIV/AIDS. Also included are acts of vilification on the grounds of: race and HIV/AIDS.

Complaint/Disputes

The University has internal dispute handling procedures to deal with complaints against staff or other students. The Discrimination and Harassment Grievance Procedures are handled by the Student Equity Unit of the Equal Employment Opportunity Unit. Complaints that largely concern academic matters are usually handled through the Head of School.

Advocacy and Support

Students can seek assistance getting disputes resolved, either in relation to discrimination or academic matters. Assistance can be sought from various areas in the University including:

Student Equity Unit; Student Guild Advocacy Service; Student Counselling; Equal Employment Opportunity Unit; Program Coordinators; Senior Academic Staff; Heads of School.

Students may be confident that their interests will be protected by the University if a complaint is lodged. This means that students should not be disadvantaged or victimised because they have, in good faith, sought to assert their rights to equal opportunity in education.

Student Clubs and Societies

Students have the opportunity of joining a wide range of clubs and societies. There are numerous religious, social and cultural clubs affiliated with the Students' Union and also many sporting clubs which are affiliated with the Sports Association.

Clubs and societies seeking to use the name of the University in their title, or seeking University recognition, must submit their constitution either to the Students' Union or the Sports Association if they wish to be affiliated with either of these bodies, or to the Registrar for approval by the University Council.

The Law Society

The Law Society is the students' body which you automatically join on enrolling as a law student. The administration of the Society consists of the Executive, the Council and various committees.

Members of the Executive, the Council and the committees are your representatives within the Law School. As such they are there to help with problems that may arise such as assessment. They are also there to ensure that an effective voice is presented to the School.

The Law Society organises social events, student publications, competitions and various other activities. The social events include first year camp, Law Ball, harbour cruise, sports events, intersarsity trivia quiz and regular drinks nights and barbecues. The Law Society publishes a magazine with contributions from students, called Poetic Justice; a weekly newsletter with the faculty known as Innominate; the Law Annual; the Alternative Law Handbook and a careers guide. The internal mooting, witness examination, client counselling and petty sessions competitions are also run by the Law Society.

A speakers' forum with guest speakers from the judiciary, legal practitioners and public figures; is held weekly in the level 9 common room. Law Society has officers representing the concerns of International Students and grads and is involved in the Australasian Law Students' Association.

The Law Society office is Room 1112, Tel: 9385 2271, Email: <mailto:lawsoc@unsw.edu.au>

Law Library

The Law Library is situated on the eighth and ninth levels of the Library Tower and contains approximately 150,000 volumes.

During the first week of session, guided tours of the Library are conducted for all first year students as a component of Legal Research and Writing.

The librarians and the other staff members are always ready to assist readers to make the best use of the Library's collection. Further useful information may be found in the Library Guide, found on our internet home page: <http://www.library.unsw.edu.au/~law/law/html>.

The Law Faculty acknowledges generous sponsorship of the Law Library by the law firm Freehill, Hollingdale & Page.

Computing at UNSW

The Division of Information Services (DIS) encompasses information technology and the University Library at UNSW.

Specific University information which is frequently updated is available on the World Wide Web (WWW) in the UNSW home page at <http://www.unsw.edu.au> which has an index to its contents which includes URLs <http://www.ascu.unsw.edu.au> and <http://www.misu.unsw.edu.au>.

The faculty manages a multimedia computer laboratory equipped with 26 PCs for instructional purposes. In addition law students have access to two multi-media computer workspaces which contain 15 networked computers and smart-card controlled laser printers.

Postgraduate students have two dedicated computer workspaces containing 25 computers. The faculty maintains a World Wide Web server, a CD-ROM server and a document scanning and Character Recognition facility. All students have access to a range of research tools from the computer desktops including E-mail, On-line and CD-ROM based national and international legal databases, Library catalogues and WWW access.

For more information, please refer to the booklet IT Resources for Students or visit the Faculty web site at <http://www.law.unsw.edu.au>.

courses are available over summer. Students take instructions from clients, prepare necessary documents, undertake legal research and are responsible for preparation of any Court hearings. In this way, students can consolidate their study of the law by practical application. Small group classes and constant consultation with the lawyers provide an opportunity for students to analyse both their role as lawyers and the role of law in society. 40 volunteer solicitors and barristers participate in public advice sessions in the evenings and provide a legal mentoring scheme for students at the Centre.

All students enrolled in the course Law Lawyers and Society LAWS6210 undertake 2 sessions at the Centre assisting volunteer lawyers in advising clients and completing a file management session.

In its community legal centre function the Centre has been prominent in several areas, particularly anti-discrimination and domestic violence. Students are also involved in reform campaigns, policy work and education services to the local community.

The Centres' postal address is 11 Rainbow Street Kingsford NSW 2032 Australia. The Centre's contact numbers are telephone (02) 9398 6366; Facsimile (02) 9399 6683; TTY (02) 9314 6430 and Email address: legal@unsw.edu.au.

Indigenous Law Centre

Established within the Faculty of Law in 1981, The Centre aims to develop and coordinate research, teaching and dissemination of information in the multi-disciplinary area of the relationship between Indigenous peoples and the law.

Some of the objectives of the Centre are:

- to provide a focus for, and to foster research concerning Indigenous peoples and the law;
- to achieve publication of the results of research undertaken by individuals working with the Centre or independently of the Centre;
- to disseminate information concerning Indigenous peoples and the law to interested individuals and bodies throughout Australia and abroad;
- to organise and participate in conferences and seminars from time to time;
- to encourage the development of curricula and teaching materials in the field of Indigenous peoples and the law for use in the University of New South Wales and elsewhere.

The Centre publishes the Indigenous Law Bulletin nine times per year and the Australian Indigenous Law Reporter four times per year. For further information contact Ms Neva Collings. (Tel: 9385 2252)

Australian Human Rights Centre

The Centre was established in August 1986. The objectives of the Centre are: to undertake, encourage and facilitate research (including postgraduate research) in the field of human rights; to coordinate and develop courses in the field of human rights including the establishment of cross-faculty teaching linkages; to conduct specialized human rights courses of a continuing education nature for various professional groups; to promote and stimulate informed thinking about human rights and their implications for law and society through excellence in analysis and research; to organise occasional conferences for both specialist and non-specialist groups and assist in similar activity by others; to assist, in association with other relevant bodies, in the dissemination of information about human rights to the broader community; and to collaborate with a variety of bodies and individuals working in the human rights area at the national, regional and international levels.

The Centre publishes the Australian Journal of Human Rights and the Human Rights Defender. The Centre has promoted the

Kingsford Legal Centre

Kingsford Legal Centre is the Faculty of Law's law clinic. The Centre provides a clinical teaching program for law students where students are able to analyse the operation of the legal system and lawyer client relationships while working on cases for real clients.

The Centre is one of over 35 community legal centres in New South Wales and students work with Centre lawyers in acting for members of the local community who cannot afford private legal assistance.

The Centre provides legal advice in a wide variety of matters and takes on cases in areas such as domestic violence, discrimination, housing, wills and estates, employment, family, criminal law and victims compensation. The Centre assists over 3,000 people a year.

The Centre began operation in July 1981. It has four lawyers, one of whom (the Director) is a lecturer in the Law Faculty. The Centre is jointly funded by the Faculty of Law and the Legal Centre Funding Program through the Legal Aid Commission of New South Wales and with assistance from Randwick City Council. In addition, the law firm Freehill Hollingdale & Page maintains the permanent secondment of a solicitor's position to the Centre.

The courses LAWS2303 Clinical Legal Experience (Intensive) and LAWS2304 Clinical Legal Experience, are electives for later year students; students can take a course in either session. Both establishment of an Australian Human Rights Information Centre which is setting up a comprehensive database and document collection on human rights.

For further information contact the Director, Dr Sarah Pritchard, (Tel: 9385 2224).

European Law Centre

The European Law Centre was established in 1996. The Centre's objectives are to advance research into, and the graduate study of, European Law and European legal and political institutions particularly with a view to fostering interdisciplinary studies in:

- European Community Law.
- European Comparative Law.
- European and Comparative Human Rights.
- European Integration.
- The framework of economic, trade and political co-operation between Europe and the Australasian region.
- Workable models for regional economic and political co-operation which may be of use in Australia's own region.

For further information contact the Director, Dr Stephen Hall (tel: 9385 2189), or Professor George Winterton (tel 9385 2245).

Australian Taxation Studies Program (ATAX)

This major distance education program was established in 1990 by the Faculty of Law and the Faculty of Commerce and Economics. A separate handbook is produced for ATAX programs.

Continuing Legal Education Centre

The Continuing Legal Education Centre (CLE) provides high quality professional education for lawyers and other professionals. CLE provides an important link between the Faculty of Law, the legal profession in Australia and the wider national and international community.

The objectives of the CLE program are:

- to provide programs which meet the legally-related educational needs of professional groups, especially but not limited to, lawyers;
- to develop the image of the Faculty as being in the forefront of legal development in key areas and active in legal criticism by running high quality educational programs in these areas; and
- to derive income from the conduct of programs for the Faculty's purposes.

The range of programs offered includes:

- day time or evening seminars designed to update the knowledge of legal practitioners and other professionals;
- conferences which provide a forum for discussion of and training in new or developing areas of law and legal practice;
- legal skills and accreditation programs for lawyers and non-lawyers in areas of practice and procedure such as, immigration law and legal research;
- short programs that can be accredited to one of three postgraduate legal degrees
- short programs in substantive law for particular professional groups, including professionals from foreign jurisdictions.

For further information on particular CLE activities please contact Manager, Katrina Partridge (Tel: 9385 2267 or Fax: 9385 1155). <http://www.law.unsw.edu.au/centres/cle/index.html>

Communications Law Centre

The Communications Law Centre is a public interest research, teaching and public education centre, specialising in media and communications law and policy. It also operates a specialist legal practice. It seeks to integrate these different activities to develop new ways of looking at communications issues and new solutions to the public policy questions they raise. The Centre's role is to ensure that the public interest in media and communications is articulated and advanced.

Particular areas of law in which the Centre specialises include; broadcasting, radiocommunications, telecommunications, defamation and free speech, media complaints processes, freedom of information, and privacy.

The Centre regularly makes submissions to government and other inquiries on communications matters. Located on campus at UNSW, the Centre cooperates with the Law School in research and teaching, as well as organising seminars and conferences, collecting and disseminating specialist legal information, and publishing research papers and a monthly magazine, Communications Update. It publishes a comprehensive guide to Australian Telecommunications Regulation and maintains a specialist library, which is open to students and the public. Volunteer assistance from students and other is welcomed in appropriate projects.

The Centre was established in Sydney in 1988 and Melbourne in 1990. It is affiliated with the University of New South Wales and the Victorian University of Technology.

The Centre is an initiative of the Law Foundation of New South Wales. It also receives grants from the Australian Film Commission, the Reichstein Foundation and the Myer Foundation.

For more information contact Director, Jock Given or Administrator, Antonia Norton (Tel: 9663 0551).

National Children's and Youth Law Centre

The National Children's and Youth Law Centre is a community legal centre which aims to promote the rights and interests of children and young people throughout Australia. The Centre is a joint project of the University of New South Wales, the University of Sydney, and the Public Interest Advocacy Centre. The Centre occupies premises provided by the University of New South Wales at 32 Botany Street, Randwick.

The Centre provides free legal advice to children and young people, and conducts case work and litigation where the issues are significant to Australian children and young people. The Centre has a website which provides legal information to young people on a broad number of issues in an accessible, colourful and approachable format. The site's address is: <http://www.lawstuff.org.au>. Rights Now, a leading bulletin on young people and law, contains news and comments on a variety of children's rights issues, and includes a supplement section on indigenous youth. The Centre can be contacted by telephone (02) 9398 7488, fax (02) 9398 7416 or by mail via UNSW, Sydney NSW 2052. They are also contactable on email: ncylc@unsw.edu.au

Undergraduate Study

The Faculty of Law enrolled its first students in 1971. The Faculty offers two undergraduate degrees: Bachelor of Laws (LLB) and Bachelor of Jurisprudence (BJuris). The LLB degree is designed as a professional degree which will satisfy the academic requirements for admission to practice. It is offered as part of nine undergraduate combined programs involving full-time study, and leading to the award of two degrees. The LLB degree is offered to students who already possess a first degree as a three year full-time program. It is also offered as a part-time program which requires six years' study. The BJuris degree is not designed to provide a professional qualification and is offered as a separate degree, or as part of the combined Jurisprudence/Law program.

The Law School is situated on the main university campus and seeks to take full advantage of the opportunities this provides for interdisciplinary study. Law is a system of authority and regulation in society, and must respond to social needs and changes. The rapidly changing and highly sophisticated society of the next half century will call for lawyers who are not merely competent but who are roundly educated men and women, ready to adapt to continuing change, sensitive to social issues, and equipped to deal with an increasingly educated public. The Law School seeks to produce graduates who are ready to take up the challenges, not only of an expanding role for the practitioner, but of the many other occupations where the value of a lawyer's skills is increasingly recognized.

Bachelor of Laws

The Bachelor of Laws degree (whether taken as part of a combined program or separately) is designed to give students a sound knowledge of a number of areas of law that are fundamental to legal work, a broad conspectus of the legal system as a whole, the experience of working in depth or specializing in a significant number of areas of choice, and an opportunity to develop certain specific legal skills.

These objectives are reflected in the various elements of the program but the real development of the student's potential as a lawyer depends as much on the learning situation as on what is learnt. The aim is to keep formal lecturing to a minimum, with students learning from the beginning to find the law for themselves. The main purpose of class contact is to develop the students' capacity to deal with the law after finding it to interpret it, analyse it, criticize it, see the possibilities of distinction and development, relate it to real problems and use it efficiently and creatively. This requires the active participation of students in sufficiently small groups to allow interaction between the minds of student and teacher, and student and student. A class is normally scheduled over a continuous period of two hours.

Courses taught in the Law School extend over one or two sessions each of 14 weeks; in either case there is usually some form of examination at the end of a session. However, examinations are only one method of assessing students, as other work undertaken during the year is also taken into account.

On the completion of each law course a student is allotted a specified number of units of credit. To obtain the degree each student must complete the designated number of units of credit (as detailed below), and also satisfy all other program requirements.

Students who have attended and satisfactorily completed courses in a Law School at another recognized university may, on application, receive standing for those courses provided their application falls within the University and Faculty rules on advanced standing. Students already enrolled in the Faculty of Law who wish to interpolate a period of study overseas, and who wish to seek advanced standing for law courses studied, are required to seek the approval of the Associate Dean before arrangements for entry to the overseas Law School are finalised.

The relevant Rules are set out separately, compulsory and elective courses are listed in Rule 5, appearing later under Rules for Award of Degrees.

Bachelor of Jurisprudence

The Bachelor of Jurisprudence (BJuris), unlike the LLB degree, is not designed to provide a qualification for the professional practice of law. It provides a basic knowledge of law, an opportunity to study selected legal courses of special interest, and significant study in other faculties. Various combinations of law courses and non-law courses are possible and a course may be moulded to meet various vocational ends, eg for industrial officers or advocates, public servants, business executives, law librarians.

Teaching methods in law courses are the same as in the LLB degree program.

Non-law courses make up approximately one third of the program. Teaching methods in Law courses are the same as in the LLB program.

The BJuris degree is available as a pass degree in the Jurisprudence/Law program, which therefore includes a more extensive coverage of Law courses than any other combined program. The BJuris degree is also available as a separate pass degree to students who decide after admission not to proceed with an LLB degree. Requirements for the award of the BJuris degree are listed in Rule 10 of the Rules for the Award of degrees.

Qualification as a Legal Practitioner

Admission as a legal practitioner in New South Wales is controlled by the Supreme Court of New South Wales and is regulated by Rules of Court. Certificates to practise as a barrister or solicitor are granted by the NSW Bar Association and the Law Society of NSW respectively. Certain information is set out hereunder as background information, but each student desiring to qualify as a legal practitioner should make personal inquiries to the Secretary of the Legal Practitioners Admission Board, Level 4, 99 Elizabeth Street (GPO 3980), Sydney, 2001 Telephone: 9392 0300. The Secretary is in a position to advise authoritatively as to the requirements relative to a particular case, and supply the relevant forms and information.

Under new rules coming into operation students wishing to become legal practitioners must meet certain academic requirements, attend a full-time practical skills program lasting 15 weeks at the College of Law and obtain practical experience. The academic requirements will be satisfied by the possession of the LLB degree of the University. After successful completion of the College of Law program and a period of 24 weeks practical experience, students will be admitted as legal practitioners. To practise as a barrister or solicitor they must also have the appropriate practising certificate, to which conditions will initially be attached.

College of Law

The College of Law was established by the Law Society of New South Wales in 1974 at St Leonards. The College is not an alternative to University education in law, in that it does not offer programs satisfying the academic requirements for admission to practise as a legal practitioner.

The program that it offers is related to actual practice as far as possible and covers basic areas of work encountered in legal practice. Students are grouped into 'firms' and work within up-to-date well-equipped 'offices'. They are provided with a variety of practical experiences in a series of legal situations.

Enquiries regarding the College of Law should be addressed to The Managing Director, The College of Law, PO Box 2, St Leonards, NSW 2065 or Phone: (02) 9965 7000, Facsimile: (02) 9436 1265; email: collaw@collaw.edu.au; Web Page: www.collaw.edu.au.

ANU Legal Workshop

Each year, a program of professional training for the practice of law is conducted at the Australian National University. The program is a six-month in duration, conducted by the Legal Workshop of the Faculty of Law. The Workshop charges fees for attendance. Under reciprocal arrangements, graduates of the Legal Workshop will be entitled to be admitted to practise in New South Wales, but they will at first be given only restricted practising certificates in a manner analogous to students completing the program at the College of Law.

Graduates of the University of New South Wales are eligible to apply for admission to programs run by the Workshop.

Program Outlines

13. A six-year combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Social Work and Bachelor of Laws.

Students in programs in the Law Faculty who discover they have made a wrong choice of program within the Faculty should consult a student adviser as soon as possible. It is sometimes possible to effect changes without seriously affecting progress in the new program; the earlier the change can be made the easier the transition.

During 1993 the Faculty made changes to Contracts and introduced a new compulsory course – Public Law. These changes do not affect students who entered the Law School prior to 1994.

During 1995 the Faculty added LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 to the compulsory core of courses in order to meet the uniform national admission requirements. This change does not affect students who entered the Law School prior to 1996.

Bachelor of Laws Degree Program (Full-time) for Graduates or Graduands

LLB

This program enables students who have already completed another degree to obtain the Bachelor of Laws degree (the nature of which has been described earlier in this handbook). The main features of the program are as follows:

1. The program is of three years' full-time study leading to the award of the Bachelor of Laws degree.
 2. The program is available to graduates or graduands of another faculty of this or another approved university.
 3. There are no program or faculty prerequisites for entry to the program but students must study Law programs in an approved sequence.
 4. The total of units of credit required is 144 (92 from compulsory law programs and 52 from elective law courses).
- An approved sequence of courses for the program is set out below; other sequences may be approved in special circumstances.
5. Up to 20 units of credit in elective law courses may be substituted with courses studied outside the School of Law provided that the School approves that their content depth and discipline area is such as to appropriately enhance and contribute to the overall objectives of the LLB degree.

Bachelor of Laws Degree Program (Part-time)

LLB

The part-time program is only available to graduates and people over 21 who have achieved professional maturity equivalent to degree status. The program is not available to people who proceed direct from the Higher School Certificate. The program is a six year part-time program leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws (LLB) and satisfies academic requirements for admission to practice. It involves attendance at the Kensington campus on two afternoons a week from 2 pm to 6 pm during the academic year.

The courses of the LLB degree program are set out in Rule 5 appearing later under Rules for Award of Degrees. However, it will not be possible to provide the full range of electives at times convenient to part-time students.

The total of units of credit required is 144 (92 from compulsory law courses and 52 from elective law courses), but see rules 7 (1) (d) and (e). An approved sequence of courses for the program is set out below; other sequences may be approved in special circumstances.

Bachelor of Jurisprudence Degree Program

BJuris

The Bachelor of Jurisprudence (BJuris) degree program, unlike the LLB degree program, is not designed to provide a qualification for the professional practice of law. It provides a basic knowledge of law, an opportunity to study selected legal courses of special interest, and significant study in other faculties. Various combinations of Law courses and non-Law courses are possible and a program may be moulded to meet various vocational ends, e.g. for industrial officers or advocates, public servants, business executives, law librarians.

Non-Law courses make up approximately one half of the program.

The main features of the program are as follows:

- The program is a three year full-time program leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Jurisprudence (BJuris).
- The Law programs must include LAWS1051 Legal System, LAWS1061 Torts, LAWS7410 Legal Research and Writing, LAWS2140 Public Law, LAWS1001 Criminal Law 1, LAWS1011 Criminal Law 2, LAWS2160 Administrative Law, LAWS1071 Contracts 1, LAWS1072 Contracts 2, and LAWS8320 Legal Theory or LAWS8820 Law and Social Theory.
- Students are required to obtain the approval of the Faculty of Law for their proposed program of non-Law courses; the program should provide an integrated pattern of legal and non-legal studies.
- The non-Law courses shall include, unless otherwise approved, a major sequence, approved by the faculty offering the major sequence, of three years study.
- Students must satisfy any course prerequisites (but not general faculty prerequisites) for courses studied in other faculties. There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.
- The total of units of credit required in law courses is 72 (48 from compulsory law courses and 24 from elective law courses), but see Rule 7 (1) (d) and (e). An approved sequence of courses for the program is set out below; other sequences may be approved in special circumstances.

Year 1

Major non-law sequence – Year 1 (12 units of credit)

Additional non-law course (12 units of credit)

LAWS1051	Legal System

Combined Jurisprudence/Law Program

Bachelor of Jurisprudence/Bachelor of Laws

BJuris LLB

This program offers the most extensive legal education. Non-law courses make up approximately one sixth of the combined program.

The main features of the combined Jurisprudence/Law program are as follows:

1. The program is a five year full-time combined program leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Jurisprudence and Bachelor of Laws (BJuris LLB).
2. The first three years of the program include non-Law courses together with Law. The degree of Bachelor of Jurisprudence may be awarded after successful completion of all courses and units prescribed for the first three years of the program.
3. Students who complete an approved program of studies in an area outside the Faculty of Law which shall include, unless otherwise approved, a full major sequence approved by the offering Faculty. Students are required to obtain the approval of the Faculty of Law for their proposed program of non-Law courses, with an indication of Law electives they intend to study.
4. Students must satisfy any course prerequisites (but not general faculty prerequisites) for courses studied in other faculties. There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.
5. The whole of the final two years of the program, as well as part of the first three years, may consist of all Law courses
6. Students will complete a further 18 units of credit of elective study from approved courses offered either within the Law School or by another Faculty.
7. The total of units of credit required in law courses is 156 (92 from compulsory courses and 64 from elective courses).

Non Law requirements

The non-Law courses shall include, unless otherwise approved, a major sequence, approved by the faculty offering the major sequence, of three years study. Another non-law course is studied for one year.

Year 1

Major Non-Law Sequence Year 1 (12 units of credit)

Additional non-law course (12 units of credit)

Year 5

Law electives to the value of 48 units of credit

Combined Commerce/Law and Economics/Law Programs

These programs provide an opportunity to obtain two degrees of professional importance to business, administration and commercial law practice. The Law component is the same as for the combined Arts/Law program, although the overall program is probably somewhat heavier, particularly in Year 3.

In Commerce the student may choose one of the six specializations Accounting, Finance, Information Systems, Industrial Relations, International Business or Marketing.

The main features of the combined Commerce/Law and Economics/Law programs are as follows:

1. The programs are of five years' fulltime study leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Commerce (Accounting, Finance, Information Systems, Industrial Relations, International Business or Marketing) and Bachelor of Laws or Bachelor of Economics and Bachelor of Laws (BCom LLB or BEc LLB).
 2. The student must elect to take one of the seven courses at the beginning of Year 1. Changes from one Commerce program or the Economics program to another before the beginning of Year 2 may be arranged; enquiries should be made in the first instance to a student adviser in the Faculty Administration Office.
 3. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Commerce and Economics Faculty and to individual courses in that Faculty. There are no general Faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.
 4. The requirements relating to Honours in the BCom and BEc degree programs are noted at the end of Year 3 of the program for each specialization. Students ordinarily will interpolate an honours year between Years 3 and 4 of the combined program.
 5. Students enrolling from 1995 will be able to graduate from the Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics after the completion of the first three years of the prescribed combined Law program*. Students enrolled prior to 1995 may, under certain circumstances be awarded the Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics before the completion of the full five year program, but in any event, not before the successful completion of the first three years of the combined program. Full details of these conditions may be obtained from the Faculty of Commerce and Economics Students Centre or the Commerce and Economics Handbooks prior to 1995. Any student who fails to complete the full combined program may apply for advanced standing in the Faculty of Commerce and Economics.
- Notwithstanding the above regulations, students undertaking the combined Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics at Honours Level/Bachelor of Laws program may be awarded the degree of Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics at Honours level once they have completed the Honours year and the requirements of the first three years of the combined Bachelor of Commerce or Bachelor of Economics at Honours level/Bachelor of Laws program.
6. The whole of the final two years of the program, as well as part of the first three years, consists of Law courses.
 7. Apart from service courses for other faculties, and unless specified as from which discipline they must be chosen, Commerce and Economics options may be chosen from any offered by the Faculty of Commerce and Economics. No course can be counted both as an option and as a prescribed course.

8. The total of units of credit required in law courses is from 148 to 156* (92 from compulsory courses and from 56 to 64* from elective courses). An approved sequence of courses for each program is set out in the following examples; other sequences may be approved in special circumstances.

*In programs 4710, 4735, 4736, 4738, 4745, students have the option to complete 8 units of credit in either law electives or non-law electives.

*Subject to final approval of program transfer and satisfaction of General Education requirements.

Law electives to the value of 48 units of credit

Combined Arts/Law Program4760*Bachelor of Arts/Bachelor of Laws*BA LLB

This program gives students the maximum freedom to follow their interests in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. The Law courses, while fewer in number than in the Jurisprudence/Law program, satisfy the requirements for the award of the professional LLB degree.

The main features of the combined Arts/Law program are as follows:

1. The program is a five year full-time combined program leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws (BA LLB).

2. The first three years of the program include (1) Law courses totalling at least 60 Law units of credit and (2) studies in at least three schools or programs offering Arts courses, to the value of 84 Arts units of credit or more, of which at least 42 must be obtained by the completion of an approved major sequence in a school or program within the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, and at least 12 must be Upper Level units of credit obtained in other schools or programs. For details of approved major sequences, see Undergraduate Study: How to Structure your Degree Program (1. Bachelor of Arts) in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences Handbook.

3. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Arts and Social Sciences Faculty, and to individual courses in that Faculty. There are no general Faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

4. A student wishing to take the BA degree program at Honours level is required to assume a heavier workload than that required for the study of the BA degree program at Pass level, and approval for his or her program must be obtained from the relevant Arts school and the Head of the School of Law. At least one and possibly two additional years of study are required. Alternatively a student may consider first completing the BA degree program at Honours level (4 years) and then seek admission to the three year LLB degree program for graduates.

5. A student who does not wish to proceed to the combined degree BA LLB, may apply to transfer to the BA program with credit for all courses completed.

6. The whole of the final two years of the program, as well as part of the first three years, consists of Law courses.

7. The total of units of credit required in law courses is 156 (92 from compulsory courses and 64 from elective courses).

A typical combined Arts/Law program is set out below. For complete details of Arts courses students must consult the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences Handbook.

Combined Social Science/Law Program

4761Bachelor of Social Science/Bachelor of Laws*BSocSc LLB

This program provides an opportunity to obtain two degrees of professional importance to the public sector, community service, business and law practice. In addition, the student has the option to work towards a research career in a variety of disciplines.

The main features of the combined Social Science/Law program are as follows:

1. The program is of five years full-time study leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Social Science and Bachelor of Laws (BSocSc LLB).
2. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Arts and Social Sciences Faculty, and to individual courses in that Faculty. There are no general Faculty prerequisites to programs offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.
3. The first three years of the program include:

(1) Law courses totalling at least 60 Law units of credit; (2) the Bachelor of Social Science core program totalling 48 Social Science units of credit; and (3) an approved major sequence in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences of at least 36 Arts units of credit (some schools require more than 36 units of credit). The major sequence must be taken in one of the following schools: Economic History, Economics, Geography, Geology, History, Human Resource Management, Industrial Relations and Organizational Behaviour, Philosophy, Political Science, Psychology, Science and Technology Studies, Sociology, Spanish and Latin American Studies (History), Theatre, Film & Dance.

4. A student who does not wish to proceed to the combined degree BSocSc LLB, may transfer to the BSocSc degree program with credit for all courses completed.
5. A student wishing to take the BSocSc degree program at Honours level should consult with the Co-ordinator of the BSocSc degree program before commencing the 4th year of the combined program.

The structure of the combined Social Science/Law program is set out below. For complete details of Social Science and Arts courses students must consult the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences Handbook.

6. The total of units of credit required in law courses is from 144 to 150* (92 from compulsory courses and from 52 to 58* from elective courses).

*Students may complete 6 units of credit in either law or non-law electives.

Combined Science/Law Program

4770Bachelor of Science/Bachelor of Laws*BSoc LLB

This program gives the students the maximum freedom to follow their interests in the courses controlled by the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics.

The main features of the combined Science/Law program are as follows:

1. The program is a five year full-time combined program leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Laws (BSoc LLB).
2. The first three years of the program include at least 84 units of credit in the Science program together with Law courses totalling at least 60 units of credit.

Combined Civil Engineering/Law Program

Bachelor of Civil Engineering/ Bachelor of Laws

BE LLB

Combined Civil Engineering/Law Program

This program will provide students with professional qualifications in areas of very great importance to the community. The program will prove attractive to students who have in mind a career involving constructive developments. Most large construction projects raise a formidable range of legal issues, and there appears to be a need for highly qualified personnel who are able to understand both the engineering and the legal dimensions of such projects, both in Australia and overseas.

1. The program is a six year full-time combined program leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Engineering and Bachelor of Laws (BE LLB).

2. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Faculty of Engineering and to individual courses in that Faculty. Students must study Civil Engineering courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Engineering. There are no general Faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study law courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

3. The total of units of credit required in law courses is 144 (92 from compulsory courses and 52 from elective courses).

4. The combined Civil Engineering/Law program is set out below.

This program is administered by the Faculty of Law and candidates enrol through the Faculty of Law. Further information can be obtained from the Faculty of Law Handbook.

5. The degree Bachelor of Engineering may be conferred as a Pass degree or as an Honours degree. There are two classes of Honours, Class I, and Class II in two divisions. The award and grade of Honours are made in recognition of superior performance throughout the program with greater weighting on courses in the later years.

6. Students must complete a Civil Engineering thesis to be considered for honours in engineering.

7. There will be a testamur for each degree in the combined program with both degrees being conferred at the completion of the full six-year program.

8. Students who decide not to continue in the LLB may complete the BE but must contact the Head of School of Civil and Environmental Engineering for any credit towards advanced standing in the BE of completed Law subjects.

3. The 84 units of credit from the Science program must include a minimum of 36 and a maximum of 48 level 1 units of credit. Students must satisfy the requirements of a specific major as outlined in the Science Handbook.

4. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics and to individual courses there.

There are no general faculty prerequisites to courses offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

5. Students desiring to enrol in the BSc degree program at Honours level are not able to complete the program in five years and must obtain approval from the Faculty of Law and the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics for their programs. With the approval of the relevant school and of the Head of the School of Law, a student may follow a standard Honours program in Science which may be completed by an additional year of study. Alternatively the student may consider first completing a BSc degree program at Honours level (4 years) and then seek admission to the three year LLB degree program for graduates.

6. The degree of Bachelor of Science is not awarded until the completion of the full five year program, but any student who fails to complete the full program may apply for advanced standing in the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics.

7. The total of units of credit required in law courses is from 148 to 156* (92 from compulsory courses and from 56 to 64* from elective courses).

*Students may complete 8 units of credit in either law or non-law electives.

Students contemplating enrolling in this program should consult fully with the Board of Studies in Science and Mathematics and with the School of Law before enrolment.

A typical structure of a combined Science/Law program is set out below. Subject to timetable restrictions, the full range of Science majors are available to Law students.

Combined Social Work/Law Program

4785Bachelor of Social Work/Bachelor of Laws*BSW LLB

This unique and challenging six-year full-time program qualifies students for the professional practice of both social work and law. In the first five years, core social work and legal courses are combined, while in the final year students are able to choose from a wide range of specialised law electives.

Graduates will be equipped with the knowledge and skills to work in a variety of emerging areas which require an understanding of the law, social work theory and practice and a commitment to social justice. Such areas include consumer protection, tenancy obligations and entitlements, land rights, child custody and family property disputes, social security and welfare rights.

The main features of the combined Social Work/Law program are as follows:

1. The program is a six-year full-time combined program leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Social Work and Bachelor of Laws (BSW LLB).

2. There are no general program prerequisites for the Social Work program but students must study Social Work courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences.

There are no general Faculty prerequisites to programs offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study Law courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.

3. The degree of Bachelor of Social Work is not awarded until the completion of the full six-year program, but any student who fails to complete the full program may apply for advanced standing in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences Social Work program. Alternatively a student may apply for advanced standing in the Faculty of Law Jurisprudence program.

4. The total of units of credit required in law courses is from 144 to 150* (92 from compulsory courses and from 52 to 58* from elective courses).

*Students may complete 6 units of credit in either law or non-law electives.

The structure of the combined Social Work/Law program is for students who enter program in 2000 or thereafter. There will be different program requirements for students who entered the program prior to 2000. Please contact the Social Work or Law offices.

Combined Art Theory/Law Program

Bachelor of Art Theory/Bachelor of Laws

BArTh LLB

Students undertaking this combined degree program complete the core requirements of both the Bachelor of Art Theory and the Bachelor of Laws. The combined degree allows students to undertake a focussed study in the visual arts and culture.

Students completing the BArTh LLB are likely to gain employment in Arts Law, but broader opportunities exist for careers in arts management and policy. The professional contexts courses of the BArTh will enable students to develop career-related skills and experiences and the theoretical/historical contexts courses will provide depth of knowledge about the arts.

1. The program is a five year full-time combined program leading to the award of the two degrees of Bachelor of Art Theory and Bachelor of Laws (BArThLLB).
2. Students must satisfy the normal prerequisites for entry to the COFA Faculty, and to individual courses in that Faculty. There are no general prerequisites to programs offered by the Faculty of Law but students must study law courses in a sequence approved by the Faculty of Law.
3. The total units of credit required in law courses is from 148 to 156* (92 from compulsory courses and from 56 to 64* from elective courses).

*Students may complete 8 units of credit in either law or non-law electives.

A typical combined Art Theory/Law program is set out below. For complete details of Art Theory courses students must consult the College of Fine Arts (COFA) Handbook.

UOC6 HPW4 WKS14 S1

This course examines the principles of criminal law and liability. The aims of the course are: to promote and refine research and social policy analysis skills; develop a rigorous analytic and socially oriented approach to the study of criminal law; investigate the constitution of concepts like crime, criminal and criminal law; question traditional approaches which assume a unified set of principles; suggest an approach to criminal law as a number of diverse fields of regulation; acknowledge the importance of forms of regulation outside the criminal law; examine empirical material on the actual operation of the NSW criminal process such as court statistics and a court observation exercise; examine the substantive rules developed in selected criminal offence areas; stress the importance and relevance of criminal law in an understanding of law, even (and especially) for those who do not intend to practice in the area. Topics may include: the phenomenon of crime, the criminal process, criminal responsibility and selected offences and defences.

LAWS1011

Criminal Law 2

Staff Contact: A/Prof Sandra Egger
UOC6 HPW4 WKS14 S2

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1001 Criminal Law 1 or equivalent

This course examines the principles of criminal law and liability. The aims of the course are the same as for Criminal Law 1. Topics may include homicide offences, public order offences, drug offences, offences against the person, offences of dishonest acquisition, general defences, complicity, conspiracy, sentencing and penal practices.

LAWS1051

Legal System

Staff Contact: Mr Angus Corbett/Ms Prue Vines
UOC3 HPW4 WKS14 S1

This course considers the legal significance of the arrival of the British in Australia, the principal institutions of the legal system and their historical roles, interrelationships, operation and techniques. The course considers the State Constitutions development up to Federalism, and the move to independence from British institutions such as the Imperial Parliament and the Privy Council. The course emphasises the doctrine of precedent and statutory interpretation in theory and practice in relation to these institutions. A number of torts are then studied, notably the intentional torts, nuisance and the rise of the tort of negligence.

LAWS1061

Torts

UOC6 HPW4 WKS14 S2

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1051 Legal System or equivalent

The forms of argument used in tort law as exemplified in the law of negligence are examined. There is a detailed discussion of specific issues such as recovery for personal injury, for nervous shock, for pure economic loss and the liability of statutory authorities and occupiers. Vicarious liability, defences and the law relating to the assessment of damages are covered as well as breach of statutory duty and aspects of produce liability and compensation under statutory schemes. The course is studied through extensive discussion of a relatively limited number of leading cases and statutes so that students are able to build up their understanding through their own analysis of case law and statutes. A second strand of the course introduces students to the wide ranging debates about the appropriate role and function of tort law. This requires developing a working knowledge of feminist, economic and various other theories (eg corrective justice of tort law. In developing this working knowledge students will be exposed to secondary materials which build upon and refer to the cases and statutes which are included in the course.

Contracts 1

Staff Contact: Mr Angus Corbett
UOC3 HPW2 WKS14

LAWS1071 Contracts 1 is the first of two compulsory components of the undergraduate curriculum which together examine the law governing the formation and performance of contracts. This course initially examines the distinctive nature of contractual obligations and distinguishes these from obligations incurred under other branches of the legal system. It then notes briefly the historical development of contract law and some contemporary social and economic influences upon it. After dealing with these aspects, the course examines systematically the legal principles governing the formation of contracts. Finally, it gives special attention to the manner in which recent developments in the law of estoppel can result in a non-contractual statement attracting significant legal enforceability.

LAWS1072

Contracts 2

Staff Contact: Mr Denis Harley
UOC6 HPW4 WKS14 S2

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1071 Contracts 1 or equivalent

Corequisite/s: None

Contracts 2 is the second of the two compulsory contract law components of the undergraduate curriculum. The course presupposes that students have acquired knowledge of the content of LAWS1071 Contracts 1. Topics examined in LAWS1072 Contracts 2 include: the identification and interpretation of contractual terms; factors which may vitiate the formation of a contract, such as misrepresentation, mistake and common law and statutory unconscionability; the effect of exemption clauses; the nature of performatory obligations; breach such obligations; circumstances in which contractual obligations are terminated; and remedies for contractual breach. Students are encouraged to examine the role of contract law from an historical and contemporary standpoint.

LAWS1081

Property, Equity and Trusts 1

Staff Contact: A/Prof Chris Rossiter

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1051 Legal System, LAWS1061 Torts, LAWS2140 Public Law, LAWS1071 Contracts 1, LAWS1072 Contracts 2

Property, Equity and Trusts 1 is one of the compulsory 'core' subjects of the law course. One objective of the course is to ensure that students gain a sound understanding of basic principles of the law of property, including an introduction to equitable concepts. Course coverage: the conceptual nature of proprietary interests; the nature of possession; remedies to protect possession of goods and possession of land; an introduction to native title; the doctrine of tenure; fragmentation of proprietary interests and the doctrine of estates; future interests; creation and assignment of proprietary interests in land at law and in equity; the history of equity and the nature of equitable interests in land; the express, implied and constructive trust; express trusts and powers and duties of trustees; estoppel as founding interests in land; priority between competing legal and equitable interests in land.

LAWS1082

Property and Equity 2

Staff Contact: A/Prof Chris Rossiter

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1051 LAWS1071 Contracts 1, LAWS1072 Contracts 2 Legal System, LAWS1061 Torts, LAWS2140 Public Law, LAWS1081 Property, Equity and Trusts 1

Property and Equity 2 is one of the compulsory "core" subjects of the law course. The course builds upon the foundation work covered in Property and Equity 1. Course coverage: the Torrens system of land title; creation of interests under the Torrens system and the resolution of priority conflicts; the caveat system and protection of unregistered interests; alienability of interests in land and the rule against perpetuities; the doctrines of accretion and erosion; the law of leases; the law of mortgages and securities; co-ownership and statutory trusts for partition and sale; planning the use of land; easements and covenants.

LAWS2140

Public Law

Staff Contact: Mr Robert Shelly

UOC3 HPW2 WKS14

Notes: Taken concurrently with LAWS1071 Contracts 1 as a composite course

This course introduces the students to the concept of public law, its methods of reasoning, history and fundamental principles. It deals with the fundamental principles of constitutional and administrative law, with the ethical precepts underlying our constitutional system; with the essential features of our system of government, and with the increasing role of public international law. The course also introduces students to comparative law, especially the public law assumptions of the Civil Law system. Topics include the concept of public law; theories and history of constitutionalism; comparative methods of enforcing constitutional precepts; Australia's constitutional development; the separation of powers, responsible government and constitutional conventions; and the republicanism debate.

LAWS2150

Federal Constitutional Law

Staff Contact: Prof George Winterton / Mr Keven Booker

UOC6 HPW4 WKS14

Federal constitutional law, stressing the legislative and judicial powers of the Commonwealth and the judicial interpretation by the High Court of the extent of those powers, in particular: trade and commerce, external affairs, corporations, appropriation, grants and taxation powers, inconsistency of Commonwealth and State laws, freedom of interstate trade and commerce, excise and implied limitations on Commonwealth and State powers, including implied rights. Techniques and approaches adopted by the High Court in interpreting the Australian Constitution. Further study of constitutional law may be undertaken in LAWS2292 The High Court of Australia.

LAWS2160

Administrative Law

Staff Contact: Ms Melinda Jones/Prof Mark Aronson

UOC6 HPW4 WKS14

This course considers the law concerning the accountability and control of government officials. Topics covered include: delegated legislation; official corruption; the duty to give reasons for administrative decisions; freedom of information, the Ombudsman, Administrative Appeals Tribunals; and judicial review of administrative action (the principles of legality and procedural fairness).

Litigation 1

UOC6 HPW4 WKS14 S1

This course examines civil pre-trial procedure and criminal pre-trial procedure. Civil procedure: focuses on selected topics largely in the context of the Supreme Court - actions, parties to an action, pleadings, discovery and exchange of information. Supreme Court Rules are examined to determine the extent to which they facilitate just, accurate and speedy resolution of disputes. Problems of delay and cost are also addressed with particular reference to caseflow management techniques and alternative dispute resolution. Criminal pre-trial procedure: the law and related issues associated with arrest, warrants, police searches, interrogation and the formulation of pleadings. Comparisons are drawn between the civil and the criminal pre-trial processes.

LAWS2321

Litigation 2

Staff Contact: A/Prof Jill Hunter/Ms Dome Boniface
UOC6 HPW4 WKS14 S2

Prerequisite/s: LAWS2311 Litigation 1 or equivalent

This course gives a basic understanding of the legal philosophical principles relating to the presentation of evidence in court. The Evidence Acts 1995 (Cth) and (nsw) form the basis of the course. A comprehensive examination of the rules of evidence, including those designed to protect the accused at trial; the rule against hearsay evidence; the use of expert evidence; the treatment of unreliable evidence, proof and probability theory and questioning of witnesses in court.

LAWS4010

Business Associations 1

Staff Contact: Mr Angus Corbett

UOC6 HPW4 WKS14

Prerequisite: LAWS1081 Property, Equity and Trusts 1.

LAWS1082 Property and Equity 2

Notes: If taken as an elective, it is LAWS1091 (UOC8)

An introduction to a number of important legal and theoretical aspects of the operation of business corporations. In addition, there is a brief overview of partnership law. The corporate law component of the course falls into two parts. The first deals with the process and incidents of incorporation, including the derivation of the modern corporation and an introduction to regulatory structures; an introduction to the corporate constitution, organs and capital; the separate personality of the corporation and its exceptions. The balance of the course is concerned with the structure and governance of the corporation. It examines the corporate organs (the board of directors and the general meeting) and the division of corporate powers between them; the duties and liabilities of directors and other officers; the remedies available to shareholders for the enforcement of directors duties and protection against oppression or overreaching by controllers. While much of this legal doctrine is equally applicable to the large corporation as to the small enterprise, the course stresses the problems, processes and transactions typically encountered by small incorporated businesses.

LAWS6210

Law, Lawyers and Society

Staff Contact: Dr Stan Ross/Ms Melinda Jones
UOC6 HPW4 WKS14

This course is a course in practical legal ethics. It explores the lawyer/client relationship, including who exercises control and the lawyers duties to accept work, to keep client confidences, to act competently and to avoid conflicts of interest; the social implications of lawyers professional behaviour. It investigates the adversary system of litigation and the lawyers role therein, both generally and specifically as defence counsel and as prosecutor in criminal cases. These issues are examined in the context of the structure of the profession and methods of regulation including the concept of professionalism, control of admission and discipline. Issues relating to the delivery of legal services, including specialization in lawyers practice, the structure and availability of legal aid, the regulation of lawyers fees, the extent of the lawyers monopoly and the role of non-lawyers in delivering legal services. The course has a clinical components involving two visits to Kingsford Legal Centre and participation in workshops.

LAWS7410

Legal Research and Writing

Staff Contact: Ms Carolyn Penfold
UOC3 HPW2 WKS14

This subject introduces students to the literature relevant to the law in Australia. It introduces students to primary and secondary legal materials, and to both traditional and electronic research methods used in law. This subject also covers principles of legal writing including plain legal language, citation practice, and logical argument.

LAWS7420

Advanced Legal Research

Staff Contact: Ms Carolyn Penfold
UOC2 HPW2 WKS14

This subject revises and expands upon the legal research skills acquired in LAWS 7410 Legal Research and Writing. Further, the subject introduces students to more specialised legal research tools including digests, loose leaf services and encyclopaedias. This subject also introduces students to some of the tools used in researching foreign and international law, and teaches students to update law. There is considerable emphasis in this subject on the use of electronic research tools.

LAWS8320

Legal Theory

Staff Contact: Prof Martin Krygier
UOC6 HPW4 WKS14

Note/s: If taken as an elective, it is LAWS2331 (UOC8)

Introduction to philosophical questions which underline the practical workings of the law. The course concentrates on questions to do with legal reasoning, particularly the reasoning of judges, and of moral reasoning; and the interrelationships between law and morals and law and politics.

LAWS8820

Law and Social Theory

Staff Contact: Prof Martin Krygier
UOC6 HPW4 WKS14

Note/s: If taken as an elective, it is LAWS2332 (UOC8)

This course has to do primarily with interrelationships between law and other institutions and practices in society, particularly modern society; with what law does in society and what other elements of society do to it. These questions are approached, first, by examination of the great social theorists - especially Marx, Durkheim and Weber - who sought to explain the distinctive character of modern societies, and then by examination of transformations in contemporary law and society, and of different theoretical attempts to understand that law and those transformations. Those attempts include feminist and post-modernist analyses. LAWS8320 and LAWS8820 form part of the compulsory core of the LLB and BJuris degree courses with respect to students who entered the Faculty in 1981 or later. Students are required to take one of these two courses to fulfil compulsory requirements and are permitted to take the other as an elective.

Electives*

Prerequisites for Elective Courses

The Faculty has decided not to impose an elaborate set of course prerequisites and corequisites. The Faculty in effect prefers to maintain a flexible attitude toward admission to particular courses and to the variety of pre-law study backgrounds of its many students.

As the elective program is of its nature an advanced stage of the various programs, teachers plan their courses and their teaching and assessment strategies on the general assumption that students entering any particular elective have completed LAWS1051 Legal System, LAWS1061 Torts, LAWS7410 Legal Research and Writing, LAWS1001 Criminal Law 1, LAWS1011 Criminal Law 2, LAWS1071 Contracts 1, LAWS1072 Contracts 2, LAWS2160 Administrative Law and LAWS1081 Property, Equity and Trusts 1, LAWS1082 Property and Equity 2

Elective courses for which specific prerequisites or corequisites have been set are:

LAWS1002

Advanced Criminal Law

Prerequisite: LAWS 1001 Criminal Law 1 and LAWS1011 Criminal Law 2
Corequisite: LAWS 2311 Litigation 1

LAWS1092

Business Associations 2

Prerequisite: LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 (6UOC) or LAWS1091 Business Associations 1 (8UOC)

LAWS2021

Industrial and Intellectual Property

Prerequisite: LAWS1081 Property, Equity and Trusts 1 and LAWS1082 Property and Equity 2

LAWS2052

Advanced Revenue Law

Prerequisite: LAWS2051 Elements of Income Tax Law

LAWS2132

Law and Politics in Post-Mao China

Prerequisite: LAWS2131 Legal Institutions in Post-Mao China or equivalent.

LAWS2274

The Law, Procedures and Practice of Parliament

Prerequisite: LAWS 2150 Federal Constitutional Law

LAWS2303

Clinical Legal Experience (Intensive)

Co/Prerequisite: LAWS2311 Litigation 1, LAWS6210 Law, Lawyers and Society

LAWS2304

Prerequisite: LAWS 2311 Litigation 1 and LAWS2321 Litigation 2

LAWS2313

Evidence and Advocacy

Prerequisites: LAWS2311 Litigation 1, LAWS2321 Litigation 2, LAWS6210 Law, Lawyers and Society

LAWS2314

Dispute Resolution

Prerequisite: LAWS2311 Litigation 1

LAWS2393

Succession

Prerequisite: LAWS1081 Property, Equity and Trusts 1 and LAWS1082 Property and Equity 2

Students in any doubt about their preparedness for any particular elective course should be certain to speak to the Associate Dean well in advance of seeking enrolment in that course.

* Students should note that it may not be possible to offer all electives as listed. Up-to-date information is contained in re-enrolment details issued to each student at the end of each year and in timetables published several weeks before the next academic year. The number of students who can be taken into any elective depends on the number of teachers available.

LAWS1031

Information Technology Law

Staff Contact: Prof Graham Greenleaf
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

This computer law course - known informally as Cyberspace Law - examines the law governing the use of computing and data communications technologies, with a strong emphasis on the law of the internet / cyberspace. The main topics are the legal structure of cyberspace (particularly encryption technologies and internet self-regulation), property in cyberspace, computer crime, impact of telecommunications laws, data protection, privacy and surveillance, internet censorship, and tortious and other civil liability issues. A range of electronic commerce issues are touched on. No prior computing knowledge is required, and no computer use is required during the course. Computing and data communications concepts are explained where necessary. Please note that this course is usually taught via the internet rather than by fac-to-face classes. Further details are on the course web pages (<http://www2.austlii.edu.au/itlaw/>).

LAWS1032

Computer Applications to Law

Staff Contact: Prof Graham Greenleaf
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

A hands-on introduction to the uses lawyers can make of computer technology, including expert systems (systems that give legal advice), hypertext, free-text retrieval and automated document generation. There is a strong emphasis on the use of these technologies over the internet. The strengths and limitations of each technology are assessed in light of the particular needs of legal reasoning, source materials and practice. Examples of the practical uses of each technology are demonstrated and considered critically, particularly litigation support systems. Students will design and create their own internet legal resources including databases, hypertext, document generators and expert systems using programs provided, and with the world-wide-web as the main development platform. Prior computer knowledge is not required, but some experience in the use of microcomputers, and particularly word processing, is an advantage. It is also desirable to have completed, or take at the same time, Advanced Legal Research, or to have equivalent experience in computerised legal research, particularly internet legal research. Classes take place in the Faculty Microcomputer Lab and enrolment is therefore limited. The course will be taught by a combination of internet delivery and intensive computer lab instruction, with approximately 20 hour lab class attendance required during the course, plus required internet interaction.

LAWS1033

Communications Law

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

An examination of the tension between the democratic right to communicate freely, and the regulation and control of communications by the Courts and Parliaments. The course is in two parts. The first half covers such topics as: freedom of speech, defamation, contempt, privacy, censorship and the rights and responsibilities of journalists. These courses are examined in the context of traditional media, and the rapidly expanding new electronic media. The latter half of the course concentrates on the regulation of Australia's broadcasting and telecommunications industries. Particular attention is paid to the law as it affects the internet, and like new technologies.

LAWS1062

Issues in the Law of Tort A

Staff Contact: Ms Prue Vines
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1061 Torts or equivalent

This course considers a variety of torts including intentional torts, nuisance and misfeasance in public office. The course then explores the boundaries between these torts and between tort law and other areas of law. For example, we consider the boundaries between torts and administrative law through an examination of misfeasance in public office and tortious liability of statutory authorities, and we consider the boundary between contract and tort through considering tortious liability for pure economic loss in building construction. The course is taught in conjunction with Issues in the Law of Tort B, but may be taken separately.

LAWS1063

Issues in the Law of Tort B

Staff Contact: Mr Angus Corbett
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1061 Torts or equivalent

This course involves an advanced consideration of the application of the role of tort law in the legal system. It considers a variety of torts and involves attention to economic analysis, regulatory, corrective justice and feminist theories of tort law. In particular, attention is given to the increasing use of statutory regulation in a number of torts. The course is taught in conjunction with Issues in the Law of Torts A but may be taken separately.

Business Associations 2

Staff Contact: Mr Angus Corbett
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 (UOC6) or LAWS1091 Business Associations 1 (UOC8)

Areas of company law and securities regulation not covered in LAWS1091 Business Associations 1, and particularly those of relevance to larger companies. Students who wish to complete a comprehensive study of company law and securities regulation are advised to take this course in addition to LAWS4010 or LAWS1091. The areas of law covered in this course are: The role of the ASX and ASIC as bodies regulating companies and securities markets; The restrictions on the capital structure of the company, ie: the creation of classes of shares and the rights attaching to those shares, the issue of shares at a discount, and the reduction of capital; The restrictions arising out of the various forms of the capital maintenance doctrine, ie: the circumstances in which a company may buy back its own shares, the rules against the giving of financial assistance, and the restrictions on the payment of dividends; The terms and conditions upon which companies may raise funds from the public, ie: the issue and content of prospectuses; The structure and regulation of the market for corporate control (ie: takeovers). The course approaches these topics in two different ways. The first way of approaching each of the topics will be to focus specifically on the scheme of regulation established by that law. The second way of approaching each of the topics will be to establish some themes common to each of these areas of law. In particular, the course will focus on the approaches to regulation adopted in each of these areas.

LAWS1093

The Modern Corporation

Commercial Finance

Staff Contact: Mr Ian Cameron
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Notes: This course may be studied on its own but students wishing to complete an introductory study of commercial law are advised to take LAWS2026 Commercial and Consumer Sales as well. Other areas of commercial law are dealt with in LAWS2037 Consumer Protection Law.

Aims, with LAWS2026 Commercial and Consumer Sales, to provide an introduction to principal areas of commercial law of relevance to legal practice. Topics: 1. negotiable instruments, including a study of commercial bills against the background of a description of the operation of the commercial bills and money markets; 2. secured transactions. Students are introduced to the law on securities over personal property including priorities. Reference is made to credit arrangements in use in the distribution and sale of goods and services; 3. introduction to law of bankruptcy.

LAWS2025

Advanced Contract Law

Staff Contact: Mr Denis Harley
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1071 Contracts1 and LAWS1072 Contracts 2 or equivalent

This course normally covers some significant topics of the law of contract which are usually omitted from the compulsory contract law courses, LAWS1071 Contracts 1 and LAWS1072 Contracts 2 (eg illegality; agency). It then deals in depth with a selection from the following list of topics which are very important in commercial practice, but are dealt with somewhat briefly in the initial courses: uncertainty and incompleteness in contract formation; economic duress; termination for breach and frustration; privity and third party rights; interpretation). The course constantly considers the increasing impact of equitable principles, and of the law of restitution, on the common law of contract. There is likely also to be an examination of some leading theories on the nature and likely development of contract law.

LAWS2026

Commercial and Consumer Sales

Staff Contact: Dr Gail Pearson
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

An introduction to principal areas of commercial law of relevance to legal practice. This course deals with the intersection of property and contract law in the sale of goods, a species of personal property. It includes a study of product liability, including the liability of the sellers, manufacturers and credit providers. It provides a foundation for the study of risk in the rules for the transfer of property in goods. A major component of the course is the study of Trade Practices law particularly the prohibition against misleading and deceptive conduct. Students wishing to continue with an introductory study of commercial law are advised to take LAWS2024 Commercial Finance. More advanced study of consumer protection is available in LAWS2037 Consumer Protection Law. Other areas of commercial law are dealt with in LAWS2084 International Trade and LAWS2033 The Law of Banking.

Legislative strategies for the protection of consumers and the effect of this legislation upon markets. The following protective strategies are considered: advertising self regulation; statutory regulation of advertising; the regulation of packaging and labelling; protection against sales promotion techniques; franchising; the licensing of persons dealing with consumers; product liability; statutory regulation of unconscionable conduct; and special procedures for consumer claims.

LAWS2038Mining Law

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

The framework of regulation for mining in Australia and the possible legal structures that might be used in establishing a natural resources project. The legal questions that arise in the financing of such a project. The course focuses on New South Wales which, like other States, has extensive legislation relating to the mining industry. This entails, however, substantial treatment of federal regulation in the areas of foreign investment, export control, exchange control, Aborigines, uranium and offshore exploration and mining. Constitutional problems arising from the Federal/State relationship. The revenue, environmental and international trade aspects of minerals projects in Australia. Policy questions raised by these matters.

Prerequisite/s: LAWS2051 Elements of Income Tax Law or equivalent

Notes: Students should have completed LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 (6UOC) or LAWS1091 Business Associations 1 (6UOC) or be taking that course concurrently with LAWS2052.

Areas of income tax introduced in LAWS2051 Elements of Income Tax Law in greater depth. Several areas of income tax law and other revenue law not touched on in the earlier course. Topics: 1. taxation of partnerships, trusts and companies, including capital gains tax; 2. assignment of income; 3. tax avoidance and evasion - analysis of general, and specific, anti-avoidance legislation and penalties legislation; 4. an introduction to aspects of international tax including some international tax agreements; 5. tax decisionmaking and review in the context of a mass decision making process; 6. an introduction to goods and services tax.

LAWS2081Public International Law

Staff Contact: Dr Stephen Hall, Dr Sarah Pritchard, Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

International law seeks to order human affairs at the international level. It accordingly covers a vast field, extending to issues such as autonomy or otherwise of peoples and territories, the allocation of resources (land, maritime and air), the preservation of the environment, the regulating of interstate transactions, the resolution of disputes and the maintenance of international peace and security. This course aims to provide a solid introduction to certain central topics within the overall field of international law. Topics covered include: the nature and sources of international law, the relationship between international law and domestic law, international agreements, statehood and title to territory, territorial and maritime jurisdiction, recognition of states and governments, immunities, state responsibility, the use of force, and peaceful settlement of international disputes.

LAWS2082

Conflict of Laws

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

The Conflict of Laws or Private International Law is a species of private law which deals with problems involving a foreign or an interstate element. The introduction of that foreign or interstate element necessitates an examination by a New South Wales court of three main issues: 1. Whether or not the court has jurisdiction to deal with the problem, and even if it does, whether or not it will assume jurisdiction. 2. If it has assumed jurisdiction the court must then ask itself what is the most appropriate law to apply to the problem before it. 3. Or, the court may have to decide whether or not to recognize and enforce a judgment of a foreign court or the court of another state. Those problems which involve interstate elements may be affected by provisions of the Commonwealth Constitution or by some federal legislation. Failing that, the solution to these interstate problems may call for an approach that is different to the solution of international problems simply on the basis that we are dealing with States of the same Commonwealth. For the purposes of this course the solutions that courts and legislatures have offered to such problems are examined in a few selected areas such as family law, contracts, torts and property. Wherever possible, emphasis is placed on the development of more appropriate solutions to these problems.

LAWS2084

International Trade Law

Staff Contact: Dr Stephen Hall
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Notes: There are no prerequisites for this course, however students may find that having taken, or taking concurrently, Public International Law, would prove very helpful.

An introduction to the public regulatory framework of the international economy. The topics to be considered include: the Bretton Woods system's background and objectives; trade in goods; trade in services; capital mobility; expropriation of property rights; labour standards and mobility; international monetary stability; economic development. Each topic will be considered in the context of the global regulatory regime (eg World Trade Organisation/GATT, IMF, World Bank) and the more significant regional arrangements (eg the European Union, NAFTA, ASEAN and APEC).

LAWS2085

Comparative Law

Staff Contact: Prof George Winterton
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Some of the principal legal systems of the world, and the advantages in looking at legal problems from a perspective broader than that of one's own legal system. Three parts: 1. an introduction to the Modern Civil Law, Roman, Hindu and Islamic legal systems, wherever possible comparing them with the Common Law system, and with each other. The history and uses of Comparative Law, and a discussion of the manner in which the Civil Law and Common Law systems have interacted with the others, and with each other; 2. a more detailed study of the Civil Law system, through the medium of criminal procedure and administrative law in Europe, especially France, against the background of the common law; 3. student-led seminars examining, comparatively, topics of world-wide concern, eg consumer protection, the role of the corporation in modern society, protection of civil liberties, judicial review of administration action, and environmental protection.

Roman Law: A Guide to Legal Thinking

Staff Contact: Dr Richard Bauman

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

There are no prerequisites and no special knowledge of Latin is required other than the usual legal tags. The law of Ancient Rome presented so as to illustrate the following: (a) how laws emerged to meet the needs of a developing society, (b) how law reform in the more developed stages of that society adapted to changing social, political and economic conditions, (c) aspects of Roman Law which are especially meaningful to students who are being trained in a Common Law system, (d) Roman law concepts which form the basis of modern Civil Law systems and today play a key role in the European Economic Community. Historical topics: Equity as an instrument of law reform; the opinions of those learned in the law; legislation; codification; Justinian. Substantive topics: Family law with special reference to marriage and divorce; property with special reference to possession, ownership and servitudes (easements); testamentary succession; trusts; contract with special reference to stipulation, sale, lease, partnership (including corporate personality); delict (torts); criminal law with special reference to jury-courts.

LAW2152

Roman Law in Medieval and Modern Europe

Staff Contact: Dr Richard Bauman

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Notes: There are no prerequisites for this course and no special knowledge of Latin is required other than the usual legal tags.

The interaction between law and society is strikingly illustrated by the evolution of Civil Law in Medieval and Modern Europe. The course proceeds from the Germanic invasions of Western Europe over the 4th and subsequent centuries, and the impact on the law of both invaders and invaded. It then turns to the rediscovery of Roman Law in Europe in the 11th and subsequent centuries and the gradual absorption of Roman Law into the legal systems of the German Empire, France, Spain, Italy and Scotland. The culmination is the Reception of Roman Law in those countries, followed by the Napoleonic Code and its offshoots which reincorporated Roman Law in a codified form but with the basic principles largely preserved.

LAW2153

Roman Law and Modern Civil Law

Staff Contact: Dr Richard Bauman

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

How did Roman Law, that supreme monument to the legal thinking of the ancient world, establish itself as an integral part of so many modern legal systems? The course is divided into two segments. The first (weeks 1-7) covers the historical process by which Roman Law was assimilated in Medieval and Modern Europe. After noting the laws of the Germanic invaders who destroyed the Western Roman Empire, the discussion turns to the rediscovery of Roman Law in the 11th and subsequent centuries and its gradual absorption into the legal systems of the Holy Roman Empire, France and other countries. Then follows the formal Reception of Roman Law, and finally the Napoleonic Code and its offshoots which reincorporated Roman Law in a codified form. The second segment (Weeks 8-14) deals with the substantive law of modern systems descended from Roman Law, with special reference to contract and delict (torts). The French and Roman-Dutch systems are used as models. These two systems occupy somewhat different positions on the Civil Law spectrum. French Law is based on a code, whereas Roman-Dutch Law is uncoded. The segment makes useful comparisons between two systems which have both similarities due to their common origin and differences due to their post-Roman histories. Comparisons with Australian Law are also made at appropriate points. Enrolments are invited from both undergraduate and postgraduate students. There are no prerequisites and no knowledge of Latin or any modern language is required. Translations of all necessary material are provided. LLM students may arrange, in consultation with the Associate Dean (Postgraduate), to substitute additional written work for part of the lecture component.

LAW2154

Human Rights in Ancient Rome

UOC4 HPW2 WKS 14

An in-depth examination of a proposition enunciated in Richard A. Bauman, Human Rights in Ancient Rome. The argument will be that human rights are, at best, a derivative of the Roman model. The course will include comparisons of selected aspects of the Roman and modern versions. The base line for the latter is the United Nations' Declaration of Human Rights in 1948.

LAW2181

International Humanitarian Law

Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Strictly speaking, humanitarian law consists of the international rules governing the conduct of hostilities, the methods and means of warfare, and international rules designed to protect the victims of armed conflict. However, broadly speaking, humanitarian law can also be said to cover international rules relating to treatment of displaced persons and refugees where these persons are fleeing from armed conflict. This course will examine the laws relating to the conduct of armed conflicts, including the four 1949 Geneva Conventions and their historical antecedents; the 1977 Protocols; the laws of the Hague; problems of enforcement of humanitarian law; war crimes; humanitarian intervention; and the role of NGOs, the Red Cross, and the UN. It will also examine the principles of international law relating to the protection of refugees including problems of definition and eligibility, status, admission and asylum; expulsion and non-refoulement; and the role of the UNHCR.

LAW2182

Human Rights Law

Staff Contact: Dr Sarah Pritchard

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Study of the measures developed for the protection of human rights in international law, of the ways in which these standards and processes are operated, and of their influence on Australian law and government. Topics include: the development of the international system; the human rights provisions in the UN Charter; the Universal Declaration of Human Rights; the International Covenants on Civil and Political Rights, and on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights; other international human rights instruments; regional arrangements for protection of human rights; the cultural relativism debate; the influence of international standards on Australian law and government; human rights and foreign policy; the treaty based system; the Charter based system; human rights and development; self-determination, proposals to strengthen the international system.

LAW2211

Indigenous People and the Law

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

A study of laws relating to Australia's indigenous peoples and of the impact of general law on Aboriginals and Torres Strait Islanders. Topics include: elements of pre-contact and post-contact history, questions of definition and identity; the nature of Indigenous law, and Australian responses to Indigenous laws; issues of sovereignty and autonomy; native title and statutory land rights, issues of racial discrimination, criminal justice and child welfare; proposals for Reconciliation. Reference is made to developments in international law and to comparative materials from countries such as Canada, USA and New Zealand.

LAWS2232Law after Communism

Staff Contact: Martin Krygier
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Notes: Exclusion: EURO2700

When European communist states collapsed like a pack of cards, there was an explosion of euphoria in the region and around the world. Post-communism has turned out, however, to be a more complex, variable, and uncertain condition than was anticipated by many of those who greeted it with such enthusiasm. This course will seek to introduce students to some of the characteristic features of the post-communist world, to some of its difficulties, problems, challenges and triumphs; and to similarities and differences among the developments in post-communist societies. The course will discuss some of the major successes of post-communist countries and some of their major failures, and students will be encouraged to reflect on similarities and differences between post-communist realities and those of the society/ies which they know. In particular law students will focus on the attempts to build or rebuild legal institutions to replace or transform those which were inherited from communism, and of the problems and prospects facing such attempts.

LAWS2241Talmudic Law

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

The course provides a comprehensive introduction, taught in three sections, to the history, philosophy and principles of Jewish Law. The first section addresses some of the fundamental principles of Talmudic Law, including its role as a legal system, its seat of authority, its flexibility, the place of equity and custom, the relationship between halachah (Talmudic Law) and the State of Israel, and its influence on other legal systems. The second section deals with the main headings of the Talmudic legal system - property, torts, contracts, partnership, agency, trusts, employer and employee, criminal law, privacy, marriage and divorce, inheritance, conflicts and choice of law, international law and legal procedure. The third section introduces text material (in English translation) on Talmudic civil and criminal law.

LAWS2251Legal History

Staff Contact: Mr Brendan Edgeworth
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

The theme of this course is the rule of law. It examines the role played by law and legal institutions in the division of political power, and falls into three parts: 1. the struggles between the courts, the parliament and the monarchy in seventeenth century England, with special attention to the conflict between Sir Edward Coke and James I, the English Civil War and the Glorious Revolution; 2. the political consolidations of eighteenth century England with special attention to Blackstone, as well as to the assessments of modern historians like E.P. Thompson and Douglas Hay; 3. the reception of legal ideas into the penal colony of New South Wales. The role played by rule of law in the political formation of a new society.

LAWS2272Australian Immigration Law and Practice

Staff Contact: Dr Kathryn Cronin
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Examines Australian immigration law and practice. Focus is on the role of law in immigration selection and control, the developing concept of citizenship and alienage and exclusion principles and practices. Looks at different legal models of selection and control - free movement systems, explicit exclusion models and the controls after entry on illegal immigrants. Topics include: freedom of movement, residence and citizenship, entry for migrants, and temporary residents, admission and stay under international obligation, illegal entry, compliance functions, the detention and removal of illegal immigrants, the immigration appeal system. Course assessment include a clinical case advice component.

LAWS2273Local Government Law

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Local government as a particular example of the role of government in general in providing public goods; policy questions such as the optimal size of local jurisdictions in terms of efficiency and political responsibility, and legal and administrative comparisons with specialist statutory authorities such as county councils and central government departments and corporations; the law governing formal structure of local authorities, elections, servants, meetings, control of corruption; the range of council powers and duties in providing local public goods and the rules which govern their provision by compulsory acquisition, revenue raising by rating (including land valuation), and the management of public property, introduction to councils role in land use and environmental control through subdivision, zoning, building and public health regulation and the licensing system in this area; aspects of remedial law special to local government, actions by and against councils, with some emphasis on council liability in tort.

LAWS2274The Law, Procedures and Practice of Parliament

Staff Contact: Prof Adrian Brooks
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS2150 Federal Constitutional Law or equivalent

LAWS2282Advanced Administrative Law

Staff Contact: Prof Mark Aronson
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Builds upon the administrative law topics covered in the compulsory part of the curriculum. The core of the course is concerned with the public/private distinctions, issues of regulatory design, and with the administrative law consequences of deregulation, outsourcing, Corporatisation, self-regulation and privatisation. Other topics included are judicial and tribunal review of administrative action, freedom of information; contracts and torts of the Crown, and other public authorities; ombudsmen; delegated legislation; and public corporations.

LAWS2292The High Court of Australia

Staff Contact: Prof George Winterton / Mr Keven Booker
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

The role of the High Court of Australia as a legal, political and social institution in the framework of Australian government. Topics include:

the relationship of the High Court to the other institutions of government; the relationship of the Court to other courts within the judicial system; the historical development of the Court and its distinctive features through different periods of that development; the Court's composition and internal working, its style of legal reasoning, its contribution to the development of distinctively Australian law in selected areas and the place of its individual members in the Australian judicial tradition. The course is divided broadly into four parts. 1. The structure and operation of the Court; 2. the Court's role and record in public law; 3. the Court's role and record in private law; and 4. an analysis, building on the earlier part, of issues relating to the judicial process in the Court. About half of the course is based on discussion of prepared materials, and the other half on research essays by each student presented to the class in the style of a seminar.

LAWS2293

Constitutionalism

Staff Contact: Dr Arthur Glass, Prof Martin Krygier
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

This course will introduce students to discussion and criticism of the institutional and theoretical underpinnings of a liberal-democratic constitutional order. It will do this by way both of examination of some of the key moments in constitutional development and design, and of discussion of some of the central issues of political and legal theory which constitutionalism raises. Among the topics which will be considered are: 1. Philosophical history of the notion of constitutionalism and of such related ideas as: sovereignty, rights, the rule of law, separation of powers, republicanism, and federalism; 2. Issues in the design of constitutional order: the American Founding Fathers, the nineteenth century idea of the Rechtsstaat (law-governed state), and contemporary constitutional experiments in post-communist Europe; 3. Constitutional interpretation, particularly the problem of applying constitutional texts; judicial review; the accommodation of a rigid constitutional text to social change; 4. The sources of constitutional legitimacy.

LAWS2301

Remedies

Staff Contact: Dr Anne Cossins
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

A study of the principal private law remedies evolved by the common law and by equity through an examination of relevant historical, economic and political perspectives and the use of appropriate case studies. The course analyses the nominate remedies of Australian law by reference to the remedial goals of the legal system, namely compensation, restitution, punishment and coercion. The relationship between the various remedies is also explored, as are the ways in which remedies are enforced in practice. The course aims to synthesise the law studied in courses, such as torts, contracts and property and equity from a remedial perspective.

LAWS2303

Clinical Legal Experience (Intensive)

Staff Contact: Ms Frances Gibson
UOC16 HPW16

Corequisite/s: LAWS2311 Litigation 1,
Prerequisite: LAWS6210 Law Lawyers and Society

Clinical legal education takes students out of the classroom and places them in a legal practice. This enables students to analyse the effect of law in practice, engenders in students an appreciation of the ethical, social and practical complexity of the legal system. Students are required to attend the Faculty's clinic, Kingsford Legal Centre, two full days a week. The clinic is a community legal centre which provides a free legal service to the local community. Students manage clients' files under the supervision of experienced solicitors. Students take responsibility for the interviewing of clients and the research, drafting and preparation necessary to resolve legal difficulties by litigation or other means. In addition to two days attendance, students are asked to attend evening advice sessions during which they interview people attending for legal advice from the volunteer lawyers. A daily meeting and a weekly class provide an opportunity for discussion and analysis of students' experiences, and for instruction in legal procedure and skills. There are regular opportunities to attend Court and Tribunals. Major areas of work in which students will be involved include domestic violence, discrimination, consumer credit, victims compensation, family law, employment law, wills and legal aid and criminal justice issues. As well as clients' files, students have the opportunity to take part in community education, and in policy and reform work. The course is offered in both teaching sessions and over summer. A student who has enrolled in and who has passed or failed LAWS2304 Clinical Legal Experience may not enrol in this course without the approval of the Associate Dean.

Clinical Program – Employment Law

Staff Contact: Frances Gibson
UOC16 HPW16 WKS14

Prerequisite: LAWS6210 Law Lawyers and Society
Exclusions: LAWS2303 or LAWS2304, Clinical Legal Experience

The Employment Law clinic requires students to undertake work for real clients while providing the student with opportunities to analyse the effect of the law in practice. Through their work for disadvantaged clients on case, education and policy files students develop their understanding of substantive and procedural law and ethical issues facing the legal profession.

Students undertaking this Clinic will be working in a legal practice at Kingsford Legal Centre on employment law matters. They will be required to attend the Centre two days a week 9am to 5pm. A weekly seminar of two hours and four public advice sessions. Students will be responsible for files under the supervision of the staff solicitor. Students will conduct interviews with clients, make strategic decisions about conduct of the file, undertake research, draft all documents and where appropriate undertake advocacy in court or tribunals for the client.

A daily tutorial and regular lectures provide opportunities for discussion and analysis of students' experiences and for instruction and development of legal procedure and skills.

The course is offered in both teaching sessions and over summer. Students should not that due to requirements of caseloads, students will be required to attend during midsession holidays and study breaks. A student who has enrolled in and who has passed or failed LAWS2303 or LAWS2304 Clinical Legal Experience may not enrol in this course.

LAWS2312Trial Process

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Prerequisites: LAWS2311 Litigation 1 and LAWS2321 Litigation 2

An advocacy training course concerned with the procedural and practical aspects of trial litigation and focusing on the role of the lawyer. Preparation of cases for trial, from initial investigation to final submission. Major emphasis is given to developing skills of interviewing, collecting facts, examining and cross-examining witnesses, and addressing judges. Begins with a series of practice exercises simulating real life litigation problems and students initially play all the courtroom roles: lawyer, witness, orderly and judge. Concludes with a series of mock trials derived from actual cases and presided over by judges and barristers. The course is based upon the conduct of civil trials.

LAWS2313Evidence and Advocacy

Staff Contact: A/Prof Jill Hunter, Dr Kathryn Cronin
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Prerequisites: LAWS2311 Litigation 1 and LAWS2321 Litigation 2, Corequisite: LAWS6210 Law, Lawyers and Society

This course is designed to follow and expand upon the compulsory Litigation course. Students are therefore expected to know the fundamentals of evidence and trial procedure. Evidence and Advocacy concentrates on the criminal trial and is designed to allow a hands-on approach to learning evidence law and developing expertise in trial practice and procedure. The course is not a replacement for the Trial Process course. The advocacy component will involve students preparing cases for trial. This work will be undertaken in groups both in and out of class. Effectively, students will be learning what US advocacy writers term, case theory. This is the pre-trial preparation of examination-in-chief, cross-examination, opening and closing addresses for particular trial scenarios. The evidence component concentrates on the participants in the criminal trial: the judge, jury, accused, witnesses and lawyers. The roles of these participants are examined from a multidisciplinary perspective, incorporating the observations of historians, psychologists, sociologists and linguists. The course assumes a fundamental knowledge of evidence law based on the Evidence Act 1995 (NSW). Classes: two 2 hour classes per week involving trial exercises and class discussion based on readings from the course text, Hunter, Cronin, Evidence, Advocacy & Ethical Practice: A Criminal Trial Commentary (1995). This course may be available in the summer or winter sessions. Please check Law School timetable (see Law School Webpage) Assessment: Students undertake a mid-session assignment. All students will be required to complete certain trial exercises.

LAWS2314Dispute Resolution

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Corequisites: LAWS2311 Litigation 1

Most legal education in common law systems revolves around the interpretation and development of the law by decisions made by courts in the process of litigation. In doing so it tends to foster the assumption that litigation, or legal advice predicting the outcome of litigation, is the normal method of resolving disputes, and both substantive and skills training is largely geared to this assumption. In fact only a small proportion of disputes are resolved by litigation and there is a growing dissatisfaction with the costs, slowness and adversarial character of litigation, and a corresponding interest in alternative forms of dispute resolution. The courts themselves are introducing court annexed mediation. This course will critically examine the growth of alternative methods, analyse their comparative advantages and disadvantages, introduce students to the skills involved (particularly in negotiation and mediation) and examine the implications for the future of the law and of legal practice and for individual and social justice.

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS8320 Legal Theory or LAWS8820 Law and Social Theory or equivalent

This course examines three of the most important and diverse research programs in contemporary legal and social theory; hermeneutic, discourse theory and theories of post-communist transformations. Hermeneutics, stemming from the work of HG Gadamer, systematically explores the conditions for understanding and interpreting the meaning of human creations; from the general level of cultures as a whole through to particular aspects of culture such as literary and legal texts. Discourse theory, centring on the recent writings of J Habermas, investigates the social, political and legal preconditions necessary to sustain the plurality, diversity and functional integrity of contemporary advanced - capitalist societies. Transformation theory analyses the particular issues that currently confront societies that want to construct legal - democratic institutions and cultures out of the remnants of formerly communist systems of government. All three approaches reflect the highly interdisciplinary character of contemporary legal theory; synthesising aspects from literary theory, analytical and continental philosophy of language and communication as well as social and political theory. By examining these three different but often overlapping theoretical currents students will be encouraged to engage in in depth investigations into modes of thinking that are at the forefront of contemporary debates concerning the place and character of law in modern/postmodern societies.

LAWS2334Legal Isms

Staff Contact: Prof Martin Krygier
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

This course is concerned with the views of the world that lie behind and shape, often unconsciously, our views of life and, within life, of law. These views are the isms of the title. In western societies conventional isms include liberalism, conservatism, legalism, literalism, positivism, constitutionalism, moralism, modernism, and, some would say, racism, colonialism, sexism. Critical isms have included radicalism, marxism, anarchism, post-modernism, feminism, interpretativism. The class will select several isms for close analysis, with a particular focus on political isms and with a view to uncovering their assumptions and implications for our understanding of law and life. The particular isms chosen will vary with the individual choices made by particular classes.

LAWS2335Economic Analysis of Law

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

The use of concepts of economics as a means of evaluating the appropriateness of legal rules. The concepts drawn from microeconomic theory and public economics (dealt with at a comparatively elementary level) are used to analyse existing and hypothetical legal rules within selected areas of law, such as property, tort, contract, constitutional law, environmental law, trade practices and business regulation, consumer protection and crime. Prior training in economics is not essential for students taking the course.

LAWS2341Feminist Legal Theory

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Examines the complex role played by legal rules and practices in the construction and maintenance of inequality between women and men. Introduces students to feminist jurisprudence and significant debates within it, including the multiple meanings of equality (for example, the sameness/difference debate and critiques of it); the public/private dichotomy; and the ways in which black letter law is gendered. In addition to the broad theoretical material, topics covered may include the three-part system by which women have access to financial support: viz, paid work, dependence on men, and dependence on the state; injuries to women and the ways in which women are distinctively harmed; the legal construction and regulation of women's connection with others: as wives, mothers etc; strategies for change (is the practice of law, in particular the adversary system, the only alternative for dealing with disputes; would gender neutral legal language change a gender-specific world?).

LAWS2361Environmental Law

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

This course examines environmental law in both a theoretical and a practical sense. From the theoretical point of view, environmental law is considered through interdisciplinary perspectives in a policy setting. The non-legal perspectives in terms of which environmental law is considered include ecology, economics and philosophy. The practical orientation of the course is toward developing an understanding of the legal framework for environmental decision making in Australia, particularly in N.S.W. Topics to be covered include the relevance of ecology to environmental law, environmental ethics, international environmental law, Commonwealth powers with respect to the environment, a range of Commonwealth and NSW legislation relating to the environment, and different legal techniques for enhancing protection of the environment (eg. regulation through the criminal law, through traditional common law techniques such as nuisance and private covenants, through economic incentive schemes, and through systems of consents and licenses). Litigation and alternative dispute resolution techniques are examined. Attention is also given to: (1) the part played by political and administrative discretion in the field of environmental decision-making, with some emphasis on the tensions which exist between various levels and bodies of government; (2) the role of public participation in the decision making process; and (3) environmental law in other countries, particularly the U.S. Students are encouraged to take an interest in topical environmental issues.

LAWS2391Family Law

Staff Contact: A/Prof Owen Jessep
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

This course examines the constitutional framework of family law; marriage and divorce; the legal recognition and regulation of different types of domestic relationships and families, including de facto and gay and lesbian relationships; the resolution of disputes between married and unmarried domestic partners relating to care and custody of children, personal protection, property and maintenance; child support; legal status of children (including legal issues arising from artificial insemination and current techniques of assisted reproduction, and the rights and responsibilities of parents and others relating to children; adoption of children; and procedural aspects of family law, including the roles of lawyers and court counsellors.

LAWS2392Children and the Law

Staff Contact: A/Prof Owen Jessep
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

The course is intended both for students who are interested in legal practice relating to children, and those who wish to broaden their understanding of the legal system by a critical examination of how it operates in a controversial and rapidly changing area. The present law in New South Wales is considered as well as the historical development of laws relating to children, proposed reforms, and comparative material from other jurisdictions. The materials draw on disciplines other than law (such as sociology, child development theory) so that legal developments can be related to the position of children in society and different perspectives on their rights and interests. There may be some variation in the topics to be covered, according to the interests of the particular teacher and students, but in general the course deals with the concept of children's rights; child welfare laws; the application of the criminal law to children and the jurisdiction and procedures in children's courts; education; foster care, and other forms of alternative care. It is desirable that students have completed LAWS2391 Family Law.

LAWS2393Succession

Staff Contact: Ms Prue Vines
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1081 Property & Equity 1 and LAWS1082 Property & Equity 2

The law governing succession to property on death including the rules relating to wills, administration of assets, family provision and intestate succession. Equitable doctrines relating to the law of wills and administration of estates, including construction of wills, marshalling, satisfaction, ademption, and donaciones mortis causa. Emphasis is placed on Australia, but there is a significant comparative aspect to this course: Civil law systems, Aboriginal customary law and Islamic law of inheritance, inter alia, are considered. Although the rules of equity constitute a theme common to this course and LAWS2034 and LAWS2023, there is no significant overlap. Students interested in both the law of trusts and the law of succession should do both LAWS2023 and LAWS2393; in that event it is preferable to do LAWS2023 first.

LAWS2401Health and Medical Law

Staff Contact: Staff Office
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Health and Medical Law is a relatively new discipline in Australia. It does not have a unified body of doctrine. It cuts across several different areas of law, which have been applied or adapted to specific medical situations. The major areas of law applied are tort, contract and criminal law, with substantial modifications through statute. It is also an area where history, politics, economics, ethics and philosophy have played a major role. Law is just one of the forces which has shaped the way that health services are provided in Australia. The course aims to give seminar participants a good grounding in the major black letter law and ethical topics while encouraging an awareness of the important policy considerations that shape law and ethics. We examine how appropriate and effective the law's impact on medicine is and the nature of alternative laws.

LAWS2411Disability, Rights and the Law

Staff Contact: Ms Melinda Jones
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Real concerns have arisen in recent years about the rights of people with disabilities. This has resulted in the enactment of the Disability Discrimination Act 1992 (Cth) and in a number of legislative reforms at State level including the Guardianship Act 1987 (NSW) and amendments to the Anti-Discrimination Act 1977 (NSW). In order to understand these developments, this course examines the legislation in the light of the historical treatment of disability, both physical and intellectual, and critically evaluates the social construction of disability and the ensuing policies and practices. A variety of models explaining disability will be discussed and evaluated. The theoretical and legal context for disabilities will then be tested by an examination of a number of case studies. These may include case studies on integration in education, sexuality, medical treatment, employment and treatment in the criminal justice system. Finally, the role of law and social policy in facilitating change for people with disabilities will be considered.

LAWS2412Discrimination and the Law

Staff Contact: Ms Dorne Boniface
UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

This course deals with the law and policy of anti-discrimination and equal opportunity. The problem of arbitrary denials of equality to many different sorts of groups, in many different aspects of life, is one which is increasingly recognised. The law has an important role as an instrument of public policy in this area. The course examines legal mechanisms and agencies, particularly those in Australia, which seek to end or control discrimination and in particular the principles and doctrines which are applicable in this area of law. For the purposes of illustration, discrimination on the grounds of race and sex are stressed but other grounds will also be discussed. Some aims of the course are to provide an understanding of the concept of discrimination; examine international instruments eg the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, relevant to the prohibition of certain kinds of discrimination; provide a good working knowledge of Australian anti-discrimination law (broadly understood, and covering legislation, informal and formal decision making and procedures and their practical operation); provide a critical assessment of law and its limits in addressing the perceived problems of discrimination.

LAWS2413Housing Law

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

This course examines residential tenancy law, practice and procedure with particular reference to the Residential Tenancies Act. Other relevant legislation will be examined such as the Strata Titles Act and Landlord and Tenant (Amendment) Act. In addition, attention will be given to housing policies, the provision of public housing, alternatives to traditional homelessness strategies and tenancy law reform. There will be some focus on residential tenancy law and policy in other jurisdictions as well as social theories of the built environment. Part of the assessment scheme will include attendance at, and a report on, the Residential Tenancies Tribunal.

LAWS2414Social Security Law

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

The role of the state in the provision of community resources, in particular in the redistribution of taxation revenue through the income maintenance system, and the role of law in the redistribution process. The major focus is an examination of the law, policy and practices of the Australian Social Security system. Other matters covered include: an examination of the causes and extent of poverty in Australia; the role of the state in the alleviation of poverty; the relationship between the Social Security Act 1991 (Cth) and other Commonwealth and State laws, such as the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 (Cth); the Family Law Act 1975 (Cth) the Child Support legislation and common law and statutory compensation systems; the role of law in effecting social change in general and redistribution in particular. Some of these topics will be dealt with in outline only.

LAWS2421Research Project

Staff Contact: Prof Paul Redmond
UOC2 HPW0 WKS14 S1S2

Prerequisite/s: None specific, but research to be undertaken in a topic area student has already studied or is Corequisite/s: See above

This course permits individual students to undertake a research project upon a legal topic of their choice. The project will be undertaken in a topic area in which the student has studied or is already studying and where the research topic is undertaken in addition to assessment for that course. The indicative length of the Research Project is 2,500 words. The Research Project must have a clearly defined topic which has been approved by the academic supervisor of the project. The supervisor shall also examine the project. Unless the supervisor agrees otherwise, the final date of submission shall be the last day of the session in which the student is enrolled in the Research Project.

LAWS2422Research Thesis: two-session elective ***

UOC16 HPW0

LAWS2423Research Thesis: one-session elective ***

UOC8 HPW0

Enrolment in a Research Thesis shall be approved by the School of Law if: A clearly defined project is proposed; the thesis topic must be approved at the outset but may be modified at a later stage. The student has a sufficient academic background in legal study to enable the thesis to be completed in a satisfactory manner. (An average mark of 65% in previous law courses is normally required. Adequate supervision is available: supervision may be conjoint but at least one supervisor should be a full-time member of the School of Law's academic staff. A group research project may be undertaken (but by no more than two or three students) if a statement of the proposed division of work among members of the group is approved in advance by the supervisor or supervisors. The School of Law will initially limit its approval for a Research Thesis to a 8UOC enrolment (LAWS2424 or LAWS2423). A student who has received approval for a 8UOC enrolment may be given subsequent approval to transfer to a 16UOC enrolment (LAWS2422). Similarly a student who has received approval for a 16UOC enrolment may be given retrospective approval for transfer to a 8UOC enrolment. Thesis The thesis must be typed on A4 bond paper and two copies must be prepared in a cover (spring back folder or bound). References may appear at the foot of each page or at the end of each chapter. As a general rule the thesis shall be a maximum of 12,500 words for a 8UOC enrolment or 25,000 words for a 16UOC enrolment. Examination Each thesis shall have two examiners, one of whom may be the supervisor or one of the supervisors. Unless the supervisor or supervisors otherwise agree, the final date for submission shall be the last day of the session in which the student is enrolled in the Research Thesis. Examiners may require a candidate or group of candidates to attend an oral examination on the course matter of the thesis; examiners may require a thesis to be resubmitted under such conditions as the examiners may determine. * These electives permit selected students to obtain credit for approved research projects undertaken individually or in groups. No student shall be permitted to obtain more than 16UOC in any combination of the courses

LAWS4335Studies in Contemporary Legal and Social Theory - Jürgen Habermas 1

Staff Contact: Robert Shelly
UOC4 HPW2 WKS7

This course is the first in a series to be offered on learning, contemporary legal and social theorists as well as key issues in legal and social theory. In virtue of the abiding importance of Habermas's work in philosophy and social theory in general, and law in particular, and the fact that he is currently at the centre of many of the most significant debates in these domains, it seems that a knowledge of his ideas is important to anyone who wants to be au fait with the most advanced contemporary theoretical work on law. This course can be done as an introduction to doing LAWS4336 (Habermas 2) or simply on its own. It will involve a general and wide-ranging introduction to Habermas's main ideas as set out in his Theory of Communicative Action. It will explore some of Habermas's main concepts such as communicative action and communicative rationality; strategic action and strategic rationality; system and lifeworld; the colonization of the lifeworld, and juridification. It will also begin to draw out his many comments on law in this book, and seek to work these into a general theory of law for contemporary society. Particular focus will be given to seeing exactly where Habermas's ideas are situated in relation to other legal and social theorists, past and present. Habermas's work naturally invites such comparisons by virtue of the way he builds up his own ideas by critically and creatively appropriating the central insights of others. On a general note, students should not think that this course is for experts in legal and social theory. The level of expertise demanded is that of the interested novice or relative novice who wants exposure to one of the leading and most broadbased present-day legal and social theory.

LAWS4336

Studies in Contemporary Legal and Social Theory - Jürgen Habermas 2

Staff Contact: Mr Robert Shelly

UOC4 HPW2 WKS7

Assumed Knowledge: LAWS4335 or equivalent

This course follows directly on from LAWS4335 and will further develop the approach and themes covered in that course, by focussing upon Habermas's more recent work Between Facts and Norms: Contributions to a Discourse Theory of Law and Democracy. This work is currently at the very centre of debate in legal, social and political theory circles and takes its point of departure from the insights into contemporary law and politics alluded to, but not systematically elaborated in, Theory of Communicative Action. But now Habermas takes law as his specific focus with the aim of trying to locate more adequately than other competing theories have done the place and function of law in contemporary modern / postmodern societies. Specific themes to be explored include: the role that law plays in reflexively integrating highly complex, decentred and pluralist societies; the rights and principles law must embody for it to perform this role; the model of democracy that is, in turn entailed by these rights, and finally the reciprocal relations between law, rights, society and democracy that lead Habermas to call his theory a discourse theory of law and democracy. As in LAWS4335, these themes will be explored comparatively, always placing Habermas's theory within the context of other competing theories. The result of this comparative approach is that by the end of this course students should not only acquire a good grounding in one important theorist, but also gain a sense of what is happening in contemporary legal and social theory at large.

Rules for the Award of Degrees

Rules Applicable to Candidates for the Degrees of Bachelor of Laws and Bachelor of Jurisprudence

1. (1) The Bachelor of Laws degree may be conferred on the completion of any of the following programs:

(a) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Jurisprudence and Bachelor of Laws;

(b) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Commerce and Bachelor of Laws;

(c) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Economics and Bachelor of Laws;

(d) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws;

(e) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Arts (Asian Studies) and Bachelor of Laws

(f) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Laws;

(g) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Social Work and Bachelor of Laws;

(h) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Social Science and Bachelor of Laws;

(i) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Engineering (Civil) and Bachelor of Laws.

(j) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Engineering (Environmental) and Bachelor of Laws.

(k) a combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Art Theory and Bachelor of Laws.

(l) a program leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

(2) The programs set out in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j) and (k) of subrule (1) hereof are referred to in these rules as 'combined programs', and shall be programs of full-time study of not less than five years' duration.

3) The program leading to the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws (otherwise than as part of a combined program) shall be either:

(a) a program of part-time and/or external study which (unless otherwise approved by the Faculty for special reasons) shall be of not less than six years' duration; or

(b) a program of full-time study of not less than three years' duration, but no student shall be eligible to enrol in such program unless he or she is a graduate or graduand of any Faculty of the University or another university approved by the Faculty, or has other qualifications or experience deemed acceptable by the Faculty.

2. No person shall be permitted to enrol in any program in the Faculty of Law at the same time as he or she is enrolled for any other degree or diploma in the University or elsewhere, except as may be necessary to complete the requirements of a combined program, or with the approval of the Faculty.

3. Where, in these Rules, reference is made to the requirement that a candidate shall complete a program, the requirement shall be construed as meaning that the candidate shall:

(1) attend such lectures, seminars, tutorials or other classes, and such court sessions, offices or institutions as may be prescribed in that program, and maintain a satisfactory standard of preparation for and participation in such classes and activities;

(2) perform satisfactorily in such exercises, essays, theses and other work (whether written, oral or practical) as may be prescribed in that program and undertake any prescribed reading related to that program; and

(3) attain a satisfactory standard in the examination or examinations, and such other means of assessment of a candidate's results in that program as the Faculty may prescribe.

4. The Faculty of Law shall specify a number of units of credit in respect of each Law course for which credit is given in the award of the degree of Bachelor of Jurisprudence or the degree of Bachelor of Laws (whether taken separately or as part of a combined program). On completion of the course, a candidate shall be credited with the specified number of points.

5. (1) In the case of the Bachelor of Laws degree program credit shall be given for the courses set out in the following table, each of which shall, unless otherwise determined by the Faculty, carry the number of units of credit (if any) specified.

Any other course specified by the Faculty.

* The list is the complete list of all approved electives. The number of students that may take a particular elective may be limited.

 The Faculty has determined that, with the permission of the Associate Dean and the course teacher, undergraduate students may enrol in one or more courses offered in the Master of Laws by Coursework degree. The units of credit so earned shall be the same as are specified in the Course Descriptions for the Master of Laws.

General guidelines: Students may apply to enrol in an LLM course provided they:

- are within the last two years of their course;
- have no failures in the last two years;
- have completed all compulsory courses; and
- have completed any prerequisites.

(2) Such courses shall be taken in a sequence approved by the Faculty.

6. A candidate for the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws (whether taken as part of a combined program or as a separate degree) shall complete:

(1) all of the courses prescribed in Rule 5 under the heading 'Compulsory Courses',

(2) selected courses from the courses prescribed in Rule 5 under the heading 'Elective Courses' so as to comply with Rule 7,

(3) such Legal Research and Writing Programs, Prescribed Readings in Law, Moot Court Work and other work as the Faculty may require.

7. (1) A candidate for the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws shall complete Elective Courses prescribed in Rule 6 to the extent necessary to bring his or her total units of credit for Compulsory and Elective Courses to:

(a) in the case of a candidate for the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Art Theory/Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Commerce (Accounting)/Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Commerce (Finance)/Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Commerce (Information System)/Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Commerce (International Business)/Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Economics/Bachelor of Laws, and Bachelor of Science/Bachelor of Laws. A minimum of 148UOC to a maximum of 156UOC.

(b) in the case of a candidate for the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Commerce(Accounting)/Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Commerce (Industrial Relations)/Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Arts/Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Social Science/Bachelor of Laws, Bachelor of Arts (Asian Studies)/Bachelor of Laws, and Bachelor of Jurisprudence/Bachelor of Laws. 156UOC.

(c) in the case of a part-time candidate for the award of the Bachelor of Engineering (Civil)/Bachelor of Laws, and Bachelor of Engineering (Environmental)/Bachelor of Laws. 144UOC.

(d) in the case of a part-time candidate for the award of Bachelor of Social Work/Bachelor of Laws. A minimum of 144 UOC up to a maximum of 150UOC.

(2) A candidate's choice of Elective Courses shall require the approval of the Faculty.

8. A candidate for the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws as part of a combined program shall not be eligible to be awarded that degree until he or she has completed the additional requirements applicable to the other degree in such combined program.

9. In the case of the combined program leading to the award of the degrees of Bachelor of Jurisprudence and Bachelor of Laws, the requirement for the award of the Bachelor of Jurisprudence degree shall be that, in addition to completing all requirements of the Bachelor of Laws degree program (including Law courses totalling not less than 156 units of credit), the candidate has completed courses in another Faculty or Faculties comprising (unless specially approved by the Faculty) a major sequence of three years' study plus one first year program. Unless he or she obtains special permission from the relevant Head of School, a student shall be bound by any requirements as to course prerequisites normally applicable to a course in another Faculty.

A candidate shall obtain the approval of the Faculty of Law to his or her selection of courses in other Faculties, and to the order in which he or she studies them. In approving such courses, the Faculty shall have regard to the contribution the study of such courses may reasonably be expected to make to the development of his or her capacity as a lawyer and understanding of the law.

10. The requirement for the award of the Bachelor of Jurisprudence degree shall be that the candidate has completed a program of full-time study of not less than three years' duration consisting of:

(1) Law courses totalling not less than 27215 units of credit and including LAWS1051 Legal System, LAWS1061 Torts, LAWS7410 Legal Research and Writing, LAWS1001 Criminal Law 1, LAWS1011 Criminal Law 2, LAWS2160 Administrative Law, LAWS1071 Contracts 1, LAWS1072 Contracts 2, LAWS2140 Public Law, LAWS7420 Advanced Legal Research, and one of either LAWS8320 Legal Theory or LAWS8820 Law and Social Theory;

(2) Courses in another Faculty or Faculties comprising, unless otherwise approved by the Faculty, a major sequence of three years' study plus one first year course.

A candidate shall obtain the approval of the Faculty of Law to his or her selection of courses, and to the order in which he or she studies them. In approving such courses, the Faculty shall have regard to the object of providing an integrated program of legal and non-legal studies.

11. A student shall not be enrolled as a part-time student unless he or she satisfies the Faculty that his or her special circumstances preclude full-time study, and that his or her previous experience and/or study make it appropriate to admit him or her to part-time study for the award of the degree of Bachelor of Laws as a separate degree.

12. In these Rules, unless the contrary is indicated, 'the Faculty' means the Faculty of Law.

The University provides facilities for approved students to engage in advanced studies and research in Law leading to the award of higher degrees.

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) is available in the Faculty of Law (Program 1730); this requires the completion of a program of research over a period of at least three years' full-time study leading to the preparation of a thesis. The degree of Doctor of Juridical Science (SJD) (Program 1740), requires completion of at least three years of full-time study (one year of coursework and two years of research leading to the preparation of a thesis).

The degree of Master of Laws (LLM) may be undertaken either by coursework (Program 9200 - one year full-time study) or by research (Program 2440 - a program of research over a period of at least three sessions full-time study leading to the preparation of a thesis). The degree of Master of Law and Management (MLM) (Program 9210), is offered in part-time mode only over a minimum of five sessions in conjunction with the Australian Graduate School of Management.

The Graduate Diploma in Law (GradDiplLaw) (Program 5740) is undertaken by coursework and requires the completion of two sessions of part-time study.

The conditions for the above awards and full details of graduate scholarships available are set out later in this book in the section Conditions for the Award of Higher Degrees.

Program Outlines

Doctor of Juridical Science

1740

SJD

The Doctor of Juridical Science degree provides an opportunity to combine a doctoral thesis with the coursework component of an LLM degree and allows significant research into an area of interest developed within the coursework program. In addition to the contact with academic staff fostered by the program, SJD students will become part of the mainstream student body of the law school and enjoy the advantages of contact with other committed research students. The degree consists of one third coursework (equivalent to one year full time) and two thirds research (equivalent to two years full time) which may be in an area encountered by the student while undertaking coursework.

The SJD is intended to be equivalent to a PhD and therefore one of the highest degrees that a university can award. The degree is intended to prepare candidates for an academic career, or for high level research and policy formulation. While exceeding the requirements of most practising lawyers who wish to undertake a higher degree, the SJD is widely accepted by the profession as an indicator of expertise and original contribution to an area of knowledge as is the case in North America and elsewhere overseas.

The coursework component of the degree is described under the entry for LLM by Coursework. All coursework units must be completed before the commencement of the dissertation. After completion of at least four coursework units, students intending to enrol in the dissertation may submit an outline of a proposed topic to the Associate Dean (Postgraduate). The topic of the dissertation, which may be a development of one or more coursework units, must be nominated by the candidate and approved by the Higher Degree Committee of the Faculty of Law. The dissertation must amount to an original contribution to a field of study, and be of publishable quality. It will be assessed by not less than three examiners appointed by the Higher Degree Committee. Assessment is as for other final research degrees, ie award / not award / re-submit. A final result of non-award of the SJD will lead to an LLM being conferred on the candidate.

Master of Laws Degree by Coursework

LLM

The Master of Laws by Coursework offers law graduates an opportunity to study in an organised fashion areas of speciality and greater difficulty than are met within a Bachelor of Laws program, some of which call for advanced interdisciplinary perspectives. Courses offered in the LLM by Coursework program combine a degree of sophistication or technical difficulty in terms of legal content with a substantial consideration of relevant interdisciplinary aspects of the subject matter and a focus on policy. Each course contains a significant research component. All courses are not necessarily available in any one year.

The LLM by Coursework may be taken full-time in two sessions or part-time in a minimum of three sessions. Students must undertake and satisfactorily complete six session-long (single semester) courses or the equivalent. A total of 48 units of credit are required for the award of the degree. Students may elect to complete a major sequence of courses (see below). Postgraduate courses are taught in a variety of formats both during the University's formal academic sessions and over teaching breaks. While many are taught for two hours per week over a teaching session, in others the class hours are arranged more intensively to permit students to focus fully on a research project. Some courses of particular interest to students in employment are scheduled in a venue situated in the CBD.

A student may apply to the Associate Dean (Postgraduate) to complete a research paper of about 30,000 words in place of one year-long course, or one or two research papers of about 15,000 words each in place of one or two session-long courses.

A student may apply to the Associate Dean (Postgraduate) for permission to take, as appropriate to the student's overall program, up to two single-semester courses offered at postgraduate level by another University, and three single-semester LLB courses offered by the Faculty, but no student may be permitted to take in all more than three single-semester courses of either type (or their equivalent in year-long courses). A student taking an LLB course is assessed in a manner and at a level appropriate to an LLM course.

Specialist Major Sequences

1. Candidates for the LLM by Coursework may undertake study incorporating a major sequence in any one of the following specialist areas:

- Criminal Justice
- Media, Communications and Information Technology Law
- Corporate, Commercial and Taxation Law
- International Law
- Asia-Pacific Law
- Comparative Law

2. In order to incorporate a major sequence in the degree a student will be required to obtain no less than 24 of the 48 units of credit required for the award of the degree from the courses allocated to that major sequence (outlined below).

3. From time to time the allocation of courses to major sequences may be altered.

4. The Associate Dean (Postgraduate) may when considering it appropriate authorise the inclusion of a Special Elective within, or the deletion of a Special Elective from among, the courses allocated to a major sequence.

5. The Associate Dean (Postgraduate) may when considering it appropriate approve as part of an individual student's major sequence a course or courses taken by that student on a cross-institutional basis.

6. Where a special case is made, or where an individual student's assessment program for the course concerned is tailored specifically to issues relevant to a major sequence, the Associate Dean may approve a course not otherwise allocated to a major sequence as part of that student's major sequence.

7. Research Thesis courses may be counted towards the units of credit required for a major sequence where, in the opinion of the Associate Dean, the subject matter of the thesis topic concerned is substantially related to the specialist area of the major sequence.

8. When a student completes the LLM by Coursework incorporating a major sequence as above, the student's academic transcript will identify the major sequence and the courses which constitute it and the student's Testamur will contain the words 'Master of Laws specialising in... (the major sequence completed)' or words to like effect.

6. Comparative Law

In order to complete a major sequence in Comparative Law a student will be required to have followed a program of study structured to develop a sophisticated understanding of comparative law and/or of legal system, law and culture in jurisdictions other than any in which the student has already graduated.

To that end each such student will be required to obtain no less than 24 of the 48 units of credit required for the award of the degree from courses which the Associate Dean (Postgraduate) has authorised or approved in that student's case as part of such a program of study.

Master of Law and Management

MLM

The Master of Law and Management by coursework is a specially designed masters degree which provides advanced study in the disciplines of law and management. Participants will be able to establish or reinforce a legal specialisation whilst acquiring or consolidating an understanding of the functional areas of management.

The degree is primarily directed towards three target groups. First, lawyers in mid-career who already specialise or who wish to begin specialising in one or more areas of the law and who are working in the corporate environment. Second, practising managers in industry with a law degree who seek to broaden both their management and legal expertise. Third, lawyers with partnership status at senior or managing partner level and therefore significant management responsibilities within the firm.

The MLM is offered jointly by the Faculty of Law and the Australian Graduate School of Management (AGSM), with support from the Australian Taxation Studies Program (ATAX).

A minimum of three courses (24 units of credit) must be drawn from the choice offered by Law and ATAX and a minimum of four core management courses from the AGSM. The Law courses include most of those listed for the LLM in this Handbook. The ATAX courses are listed in the relevant Handbook. All courses will not necessarily be available in any one year.

The AGSM compulsory courses are: Managing People; Marketing Principles; Managers, Markets and Prices; and Corporate Finance. The elective management courses, from which a maximum of two may be selected, are: Total Quality Management; Accounting and Financial Management; Skills for Managing People; and Enhancing Workforce Management.

The Law courses will normally be taught in the evening. However, many courses are available in alternative formats both during the academic sessions and over the summer teaching break. The AGSM courses are available in four locations in the Sydney CBD and in five other major city venues interstate (participants may attend these synchronised classes if travelling). ATAX courses are available by distance learning with audioconferences scheduled to suit busy professionals. Most classes are between 1.5 and 2 hours in duration. In addition, the AGSM courses have on average two half-day Saturday workshops. Both the AGSM and ATAX courses are supported by comprehensive open learning self-directed study materials. For AGSM courses no other study resources need be obtained.

A total of 60 units of credit are required for the award of the degree. The MLM by coursework is offered part-time only over a minimum of five sessions.

In relation to Law courses, students may apply to the Program Director for permission to take, as appropriate, one or two single-semester courses (or the equivalent year-long courses) offered at postgraduate level by another university.

Graduate Diploma in Law

Grad Dip Law

The Graduate Diploma in Law by formal coursework offers graduates the opportunity of advanced graduate study in law either generally or within specialised areas without undertaking a full Master of Laws degree.

Most courses within the program are also available to students enrolled in the Master of Laws degree. There is no difference between the Graduate Diploma and the Master of Laws by formal coursework degree in terms of the content and depth with which particular courses are studied – the Graduate Diploma merely requires completion of fewer courses than would be required for a Master of Laws degree. Courses combine a degree of sophistication or technical difficulty in terms of legal content with a substantial consideration of relevant interdisciplinary aspects of the subject matter and a focus on policy.

The Graduate Diploma may be completed in two sessions. Students must undertake and satisfactorily complete four session-long (single semester) courses or the equivalent. A total of 32 units of credit are required for the award of the diploma. Students may elect to complete a major sequence of courses (see LLM by Coursework). All courses will not necessarily be available in any one year.

A student may apply to the Associate Dean (Postgraduate) to complete a research paper of about 30,000 words in place of one year-long course, or one or two research papers of about 15,000 words each in place of one or two session-long courses.

A student may apply to the Associate Dean (Postgraduate) for permission to take, as appropriate to the student's overall program, one single-semester course offered at postgraduate level by another University, and two single-semester LLB courses offered by the Faculty but no student may be permitted to take in all more than two single-semester courses of either type. A student taking an LLB course is assessed in a manner and at a level appropriate to a postgraduate course.

Course Descriptions

Descriptions of all courses are presented in alphanumeric order within organizational units. For academic advice regarding a particular course consult with the contact for the course as listed. A guide to abbreviations and prefixes is included in the chapter 'Handbook Guide', appearing earlier in this book.

LAW3001

Sentencing: Law, Policy and Practice

Staff Contact: A/Prof George Zdenkowski
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

The overall aim of the course is to acquaint students with aspects of law, policy and practice relating to the sentencing process. The following topics are generally covered although the content may vary from year to year: theories of punishment; legal framework for sentencing; information systems, public opinion and the media; the sentencing process (discretion, procedure, role of victims and prosecution, appellate review); sentencing options; conditional release; administration of the sentence; special categories of offenders; sentencing reform.

LAW3002

Community Corrections

Staff Contact: Prof David Brown
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

At any one time in Australia three forms of community corrections: probation, parole and community service orders involve three times as many people as those in prison. The percentage of people under some form of community supervision is steadily increasing. A number of legal and social issues and implications arise from these tendencies and insufficient attention has been devoted to them. In addition there are even newer developments such as home detention based on forms of electronic monitoring, the privatisation of penal practices, the development of a range of specialist diversionary schemes both pre and post trial. This course will examine these important issues. Topics include: the development of community corrections, community corrections as social control. Analysis of the legal foundation and operation of a range of specialist diversionary schemes. An examination of the agencies gathering information used in determining eligibility for such schemes. Probation, community service orders, parole, parole supervision. Release on licence provisions. The legal, social and ethical issues surrounding the development of home detention schemes and forms of electronic monitoring of people on conditional release. The development in the USA of extensive privatisation of corrective functions and personnel, Australian developments. Examination of reform directions.

LAW3003

Crime Prevention Policy

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Crime prevention policy has traditionally been regarded as synonymous with the operations of the criminal justice system. Clearly the operations of the major criminal justice agencies - the police, courts and prisons are an important part of the response to crime. However, research shows that these agencies have a very limited effect on the incidence of crime. This is hardly surprising when we consider that the causes of criminal offending lie in economic, social and cultural factors which by and large lie outside the criminal justice system. It is therefore imperative to develop approaches to crime prevention which focus on a broad range of areas and social agencies outside the traditionally defined criminal justice system. The emphasis should be on the attempt to link these various areas and to develop crime prevention policy. Topics include: The nature of crime prevention policy. Forms of victimisation - gender, age, race and class aspects. Crime victim surveys. Community policing strategies, eg Neighbourhood Watch. The private security industry. Crime prevention aspects of the contract of insurance, security conditions and their evaluation. Crime prevention in the planning, design and construction of public housing; the concept of defensible space; the provision of security hardware and insurance. Crime problems on public transport. Environmental town planning, local government and the development of crime impact statements. Crime prevention impact of employment programs, especially youth programs. Crime prevention impact of child care policies and services, community arts policies, neighbourhood crime prevention committees, refuges, educational facilities. Crime control effects of liquor licensing and drug prohibition.

LAW3004

The New Prosecutors

Staff Contact: A/Prof Sandra Egger
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

There have been dramatic changes in the prosecutorial arena in recent years. To the traditional (police) prosecuting agencies have been added federal and state DPPs, the NCA, the ICAC, specialist Task Forces, specialist prosecution units in specific offence areas and numerous Royal Commissions. In addition to the proliferation in prosecution agencies a range of new investigative and prosecutorial techniques and practices have emerged. These in turn have generated a range of legal, social and ethical issues around questions of independence, accountability and control. Proposed topics include: the emergence of the new prosecutors and key themes in their evaluation; the legal constitution and operation of a number of agencies such as DPPs, NCA and ICAC; an analysis of some investigative and prosecutorial techniques and practices, such as witness immunities, phone tapping, electronic surveillance and assets forfeiture.

LAW3005

Juvenile Justice

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Juvenile delinquency has emerged in recent years as an important political issue. The various agencies and practices of the criminal justice system as they apply to juveniles are sufficiently distinctive to warrant special examination. Specific policing schemes are in operation such as juvenile cautioning. There are specific legal requirements in relation to police interrogation of juveniles. The Children's Court although broadly assimilated into the Local Court system has various distinctive features. Welfare-based intervention is more extensive. There are specific issues and problems in the juvenile corrections area. An increasing number of lawyers, social and youth workers and policy advisors are working in the juvenile justice area. Topics include: historical aspects of juvenile delinquency, the child-saving movement, patterns of juvenile offending, juvenile crime prevention, policing, children as victims, children as complainants and witnesses, police interrogation practices and cautioning schemes, the Children's Court, juvenile advocacy, juvenile institutions, community correctional programs, specialist youth services, issues and problems in reform. The primary concentration will be on theory, policy practices and developments in juvenile justice in NSW.

LAW3006

Policing

Staff Contact: A/Prof David Dixon
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course focuses on policing as a set of social and legal practices and institutions. It is particularly concerned with the potential role of law in policing, both as a resource and as a regulator. Comparative material is used, drawing out similarities and contrasts between policing in New South Wales and elsewhere. The course's approach is inter-disciplinary, drawing on a wide range of historical, socio-legal and criminological research. Policing is placed in its social and historical contexts by assessing conflicting interpretations of its history and of police public relations. This leads to an investigation of some developments in modern policing. In particular, the course investigates police uses of law, the relevance of law to policing, and the effectiveness of statutory and other rules in influencing and controlling police decisions and activities. Classes will also discuss drug policing, police culture, the policing of social divisions, police corruption and deviance, the policing of public order, fictional representations of policing, investigative methods, developments in community, private and international policing, and the limits and possibilities of police reform in the wake of the Royal Commission into the NSW Police Service.

LAWS3007

Punishment in Contemporary Society

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course takes a critical look at current debates around and issues of punishment, its practices and procedures. It aims to provide a guide to understanding the strategic importance of punishment today. Topics include: problems of method; sociological visions of punishment and control; punishment and normalisation; punitive discourse; truth and the sentence; contemporary panoptics; reforming the sentence and the genealogy of the person.

LAWS3031

Electronic Communications: Delivery Systems

Staff Contact: Mr Jock Given
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Since 1988, the laws governing telecommunications and radiocommunications in Australia have been through several major reforms. Each set of changes has involved substantial increases in the scale and complexity of communications laws. This has been part of a world-wide trend to liberalise and privatise the provision of communications services. New policy imperatives - competition, foreign investment exports - have joined the long-standing concerns about equity of access to affordable basic telecommunications services. This course examines Australia's telecommunications and radiocommunications law and relevant provisions of the Trade Practices Act which affect competition in communications markets. Major topics include an overview of developments in relevant communications technologies; the regulation of industry structures; interconnection amongst telecommunications networks; anti-competitive conduct; and consumer issues, such as universal service, privacy and pricing.

LAWS3032

Electronic Communications: Content and Control

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course covers the laws which regulate who controls Australia's electronic media enterprises and what they do with them. This particularly includes the Broadcasting Services Act. Major topics include the regulation of the Internet and on-line services; the constitutional context for the regulation of communications services in Australia; trade in audiovisual services; the licensing of commercial, community and other broadcasting services; ownership and control of the electronic and other media; and the regulation of electronic media content. The course is one of two Electronic Communications courses available in the LLM, and is best taken after LAWS3031.

LAWS3033

Defamation, Privacy and the Media

Staff Contact: Prof Michael Chesterman
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course deals with the laws which seek to strike a balance between protection of reputation and privacy, on the one hand, and freedom of speech for the media, on the other. Topics include: relevant aspects of constitutional protection of freedom of speech in Australia; the law of defamation (the concept of reputation; what the plaintiff must prove; the available defences; remedies; procedural aspects); other causes of action protecting reputation; criminal libel; legal protection of privacy. Attention is paid to the operation of the relevant laws in practice, to the impact of new technologies of communication and to theoretical, historical, comparative and policy aspects of the various topics.

LAWS3035

Developing Computer Applications to Law

Staff Contact: Prof Graham Greenleaf
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Notes: Exclusion: LAWS1031 Information Technology Law or equivalent; LAWS1032 Computer Applications to Law or equivalent.

The theory and practice of developing computer applications for use in the law, emphasising the use of text retrieval and hypertext techniques, and the use of knowledge-based technologies such as expert systems (systems that give legal advice) and automated legal document generators. There is a strong emphasis on the use of these technologies over the internet. The special requirements of legal materials are emphasised. Systems in use in public administration and private practice will be demonstrated and discussed critically. Topics may include: principles, deficiencies and performance measurement of free-text retrieval; distributed retrieval over the internet; hypertext and distributed text retrieval over the internet; the nature of legal knowledge and reasoning and its capacity for computerised representation; rule-based expert systems; non-deductive expert systems; special problems of statute-based and case-law representation and reasoning; principles of automated document generators; implications for the delivery of legal services and the role of law. Each student will design and implement an internet-based computer application in an area of law of the student's choice. The use of appropriate development tools is taught during the course. Familiarity with the use of a microcomputer and a word processing program is a prerequisite, but a knowledge of programming is not required. Familiarity with computerised legal research is desirable, particularly internet legal research. Classes take place in the Faculty Microcomputer Lab and enrollment is therefore limited. The course will be taught by a combination of internet delivery and intensive computer lab instruction, with approximately 20 hours lab class attendance required during the course, plus required internet interaction.

LAWS3037

Data Surveillance and Information Privacy Law

Staff Contact: Prof Graham Greenleaf
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

The social and legal implications of data surveillance (the techniques of social control through the use of information technology) in both public administration and electronic commerce, and legal responses such as information privacy (or data protection) laws, telecommunications interception and surveillance laws. There is a strong emphasis on the impact of new technologies such as the internet, encryption, biometric identifiers, and surveillance techniques. Topics include: uses and effectiveness of data surveillance in government administration, prevention of credit and insurance fraud, direct marketing and criminal investigation; identification law and practice (population registers, smart cards, digital signatures etc); marketing surveillance and other privacy invasions on the internet; telecommunications interception; data surveillance law as a new method of public administration; the effectiveness of general law (eg breach of confidence) and specific privacy legislation, privacy aspects of freedom of information laws, official secrets laws, credit reporting legislation and spent convictions legislation; international standards and regulation of data exports, particularly the European Union's privacy Directive. Each student will conduct research on the legality, use and effectiveness of data surveillance techniques, and the effects of data protection law, on one area of public administration or commercial practice. The course will be taught by a team of academics and practitioners of various aspects of privacy law and policy, and will be supported by extensive internet resources.

LAWS3041

Contempt and the Media

Staff Contact: Prof Michael Chesterman
UOC4 HPW2 WKS7

Notes: This course will be taught during the first half of Session 2

Exclusion: LAWS3034, The Media and the Law: Prohibited Publications

This course deals with the laws which seek to strike a balance between protection of the integrity of legal and parliamentary proceedings, on the one hand, and freedom of speech for the media, on the other. Topics include: relevant aspects of constitutional protection of freedom of speech in Australia; the principles of contempt of court, together with associated statutory provisions, in their application to media publications (scandalising the court); the sub-judice doctrine; restrictions on reporting court proceedings or jury deliberations; remedies; procedural aspects). Attention is paid to the operation of the relevant laws in practice, to the impact of new technologies of communication and to theoretical, historical, comparative and policy aspects of the various topics.

LAWS3042

Censorship and Free Speech

Staff Contact: Prof Michael Chesterman
UOC4 HPW2 WKS7

Note/s: This course will be taught during the second half of Session 2.

Exclusion: LAWS3034, The Media and the Law: Prohibited Publications

This course deals with the laws which prohibit the publication of material on the ground that it is deemed to offend some community standard, such as racial tolerance or respect for religious sensibilities. These laws are evaluated in the light of legal, political and philosophical principles of freedom of speech. Topics include: the concept of freedom of speech; legal protection of freedom of speech; laws directed against vilification on grounds of gender, race or religion; censorship on grounds of obscenity or pornography; the law of blasphemy. Attention is paid to the operation of the relevant laws in practice, to the impact of new technologies of communication and to theoretical, historical, comparative and policy aspects of the various topics.

LAWS3091

Corporate Control Transactions

Staff Contact: Prof Paul Redmond
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 (UOC6) or LAWS1091 Business Associations 1 (UOC8)

The overall aim of this course is to examine the legal regulation of the transfer of corporate control through takeovers, schemes and alternative modes of compulsory acquisition of corporate securities. The course also explores legal doctrines defining the elusive concept of control of a corporation. The following topics are covered: restrictions upon acquisition of voting shares; takeover offers and announcements under the Corporations Law; other forms of compulsory acquisition of securities under the Corporations Law, including schemes of arrangement, selective capital reduction and constitutional amendment; defensive measures in contests for corporate control.

LAWS3092

Securities Regulation

Staff Contact: Prof Paul Redmond
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 (UOC6) or LAWS1091 Business Associations 1 (UOC8)

The broad aim of this course is to examine the structure and regulation of markets for corporate securities. The study is primarily a legal analysis although it considers some financial theory relevant to legal responses to market operations. The following topics are covered: the legal structure of co-regulation of securities markets including the role and powers of the Australian Stock Exchange and the Australian Securities Commission; the efficient market hypothesis and its implications for mandatory corporate disclosure and prospectus regulation; prospectus disclosure and the liability of those associated with prospectus preparation and issues; the licensing of securities dealers and investment professionals; the conduct of securities business; abusive trading on secondary markets, including stock market manipulation and insider trading.

LAWS3093

Derivatives Regulation

Staff Contact: Prof Paul Redmond
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Derivative financial products are a class of financial contract whose value depends upon that of underlying assets or indices of asset values. Derivatives have become an integral part of modern financial risk management. The course examines the legal regime governing derivatives trading together with legal issues facing those designing these financial products. This course covers the following topics: the general structure and regulation of exchange traded derivatives and over the counter derivatives; definition of futures contracts and dealings; the licensing of brokers and advisers; brokers duties; market offences such as bucketing, churning, fraud, manipulation, and dissemination of false and misleading information; over the counter markets; options; swaps, forwards and hybrids; FOREX and capital markets; ISDA documentation; netting; enforceability issues; self-regulatory organisations.

LAWS3094

Regulation of Collective Investments

Staff Contact: Dr Kam Fan Sin
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

The objective of this course is to examine the regulatory framework of managed investment schemes and their implications for investors. The focus is on the risks to investors in participating in such schemes and the extent to which regulation can contain such risks. Besides policies and principles of regulation, the course will examine practical issues from a compliance perspective. Topics include the concept of managed investments; objectives, techniques and width of regulation; scheme constitution; responsible entity and its officers, their fiduciary and statutory duties, licensing and compliance plans; custody of scheme assets, their investment, and portfolio regulation; scheme units, their issue, redemption, pricing and marketing; and rights of investors.

Corporate Insolvency

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS4010 Business Associations 1 (UOC6) or LAWS1091 Business Associations 1 (UOC8)

The course examines the theory and practice of corporate insolvency focussing on company receivership and liquidation. It covers the winding up of a corporation, the appointment of a provisional liquidator, the powers and duties of the receiver and manager, the operation of the administration procedures under the Corporation Law (with UK analogies), and the powers and duties of the liquidator including an examination of the realisation and distribution of the corporation's assets, the position of unsecured creditors, and the potential liability of a corporation's controllers. Reference will be made, as appropriate, to the insolvency regimes in force in other countries, and to the theoretical difficulties in loss sharing in common pool activities.

LAWS4021

Issues in Intellectual Property

Staff Contact: A/Prof Jill McKeough
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS2021 Industrial and Intellectual Property or equivalent.

The aim of this course is to develop themes and issues concerning the protection of ideas, business reputation or innovations and commercialising and trading in such course matter. The course pursues in depth issues which assume in the student an understanding of intellectual property law. General principles will not be covered, rather, specific topics. International, policy and theoretical aspects may be addressed. Typically, the topics may include: global information policy and the role of copyright in a technological society; the collective administration of copyright; patenting of biotechnological inventions; international and regional developments in trade, parity of protection for ideas, current treaty negotiations; aspects of technology transfer, issues for developing countries; practical dimensions of litigation of intellectual property matters; reform and development of intellectual property; other topical issues.

LAWS4022The Frontiers of Contract

Staff Contact: Denis Harley
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course attempts an overview of the place of contract law in the Australian legal system. It does this primarily by examining the essence of contractual obligation and comparing contractual rights and obligations with those recognised by other branches of private law; some aspects of contracts with public bodies may also be considered. After examining the usual division of the law of obligations into the laws of contract tort and restitution, the course considers the extent to which the traditional province of contract law has been reshaped by a resurgence of equity, and has been encroached upon by recent developments in the law of tort, the law of restitution, and statutes controlling misleading conduct in trade or commerce. Also explored are the potential consequences for contract law of judicial reconsideration of some doctrines which have often been thought to define its boundaries (eg the doctrine of privity; and the rule that the supply of consideration is a precondition for enforcement of a promise not set out in a deed). Finally, some important overlaps and differences between the law of contract and the law of property, and some borderlands between the two, are considered. The course takes particular note of major scholarly writings concerning the essence of contractual obligation and the possible futures of contract law.

LAWS4023Commercial Contracts: Problems of Performance, Breach and

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course focuses in depth upon principles of contract law which govern the performance, breach and termination of many commercial and conveyancing transactions; it is concerned with complex applications of general contract law principles rather than with more specific rights that are sometimes conferred by statutes dealing with consumer contracts. The course systematically examines a large number of issues which may arise in the course of contractual performance but can seldom be fully considered in undergraduate contract law courses despite their considerable practical importance. In the course of this examination the course addresses a range of difficult questions that have been raised in recent judgments of the High Court of Australia but often remain unanswered. While the course seeks primarily to reveal frequently unrecognised interrelations between legal principles, very considerable class time is devoted to discussion of issued problems which highlight the practical significance and dimensions of conceptual issues. Some specific topics likely to be considered are: contingent conditions precedent to the duty of performance, and their elimination; confusion arising from the multiple classifications of serious breaches; problems in identifying a repudiation and acting upon it; the effect of an unaccepted repudiation; the consequences of repudiation where the victim is not ready, willing and able to perform its own obligations; unconscionable exercises of a right to affirm, or a right to terminate, following serious breach; problems raised by Shevill's case; identification of rights surviving termination.

LAWS4024Commercial Litigation

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course examines the basis upon which the enforcement of supposed contractual obligations might be resisted in terms of principle, evidence and the strategy and tactics of litigation. Topics include the rules of common law, equity, statutory obligations; contract law, including validity, enforceability, variation, abandonment, replacement, frustration, misrepresentation, duress and mistake, estoppel, election, waiver, penalties and forfeitures. In addition, implied contracts and implied terms, whether by law, custom or usage will be examined, as well as rectification of contracts, and the consequences of defective performance by a plaintiff.

LAWS4025Commercial Property Transactions

Staff Contact: A/Prof Chris Rossiter
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS1081 Property, Equity and Trusts 1 and LAWS1082 Property & Equity 2 or equivalent

This course is designed to equip students with a knowledge of contract, equity and property law and cognate statute law governing the conduct of commercial land dealings. The course goes beyond a study of the standard form contract for sale of land used in New South Wales and treats topics of national interest and importance and of significance for cross border transactions. Where a study of state legislation is made, the New South Wales model will be used although reference may be made, for comparative purposes, to the legislation in other states. Topics to be studied include: Issues of formation - formal and informal agreements; intention; agreements deferring essential terms; machinery for settlement of terms; exclusive dealing and restitution for expenses incurred; letters of comfort; agreements to negotiate in good faith; estoppel; foreign investment; FIRB requirements; Enforcement - statutory formalities; part performance; estoppel; Options - nature of put and call options; formalities for creation; assignment of options; exercise of options; relief against forfeiture of options; rights of pre-emption; Vendor disclosure - the common law and caveat emptor; mandatory vendor disclosure legislation; the Trade Practices Act, 1974 and the Fair Trading Act, 1987; Title - the fee simple; strata title; community land title; native land title; objections to and requisitions on title; termination for defective title; compensation and damages for defective titles; Remedies - rescission and termination; rescission for non-fulfilment of condition; discharge for breach under the general law; termination for failure to complete - the essentiality of time and notices to complete; anticipatory breach and repudiation; the obligation to tender performance and the right to dispense with tender of performance; express avoidance clauses; damages under the general law; liquidated damages and penalties; compensation for errors and misdescription; remedies under the Trade Practices Act, 1974; specific performance; forfeiture of land and development contracts and relief against forfeiture.

LAWS4026Banking And Finance Law

Staff Contact: Prof Paul Redmond
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

The overall aim of the course is to acquaint students with the law and practice governing the financing of commercial enterprise. The particular focus of the course is upon issues in the raising of debt finance in its principal forms including secured transactions, subordinated and unsecured lending, bank finance and capital market borrowings, and syndicated loan financing. The following topics are covered: negotiable instruments; stamp duty considerations; project and infrastructure financing; security and guarantees; insolvency issues in banking and finance, including voluntary administration; securitisation, leasing; selected lending techniques including syndication, transferable loan facilities and co-financings; international capital markets. This course may be offered in conjunction with the following: ATAX 0306/0406 Current Problems in Tax Decision-Making.

LAWS4081Advanced Issues in International Law

Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS2081 Public International Law or equivalent

This course will study selected currently relevant topics of public international law in more depth than is available/possible in the basic Public International Law course. The focus of the course will vary from year to year depending on current international events. The operation of the rules of International Law will be examined and assessed in action in the context of the chosen topic/event. In 1996 the topic was international criminal law and the establishment of a permanent international criminal jurisdiction. In 1999 the topic was state responsibility

LAWS4082Peaceful Settlement of International Disputes

Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course examines the adjudicatory and non-adjudicatory procedures for settling disputes between States. The course will examine the role of negotiation, good offices, mediation and conciliation and the role of the UN in settling international disputes peacefully. It will then examine the system of inter-state arbitration, both ad-hoc and that occurring within the framework of established tribunals such as the Iran-US Claims Tribunal and ICSID. The practice and procedure of the International Court of Justice in both its contentious and its advisory capacity will be examined, as will settlement mechanisms for resolving international disputes about human rights, trade and law of the sea.

LAWS4083International Commercial Arbitration

Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Many cases of injury to multinational companies which would formerly have been pursued as a diplomatic claim by the national State of the company are now resolved by arbitration directly between the company and the respondent State. In this sense, international commercial arbitration can be seen as a natural extension of inter-State dispute settlement procedures, of great and growing importance. This course will examine the law and practice relating to the arbitral process and recognition and enforcement of arbitral awards. Reference will be made to the Model Arbitral Rules and the case law emanating from a number of Arbitral Bodies and Tribunals such as the ICC, UNCITRAL, ICSID and to the decisions of ad-hoc arbitral tribunals.

LAWS4084History and Theory of International Law

Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course will examine some of the fundamental issues underlying international law, against the background of its history. Attention will be paid both to classical analysis of the nature of international law (positivism and its alternatives) and to some of the recent critiques of international law from perspectives such as critical legal studies, - feminist legal theory, international relations theory, etc. Particular topics to be examined will be chosen having regard to the interests of students taking the course.

LAWS4085International Organisations

Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course will examine the law of international institutions with particular reference to the United Nations and Specialized Agencies and the law of regional organizations, such as the organizations of the European Union, the Organization of American States, the Organization of African Unity, ASEAN and the South Pacific Forum. Common institutional problems will be examined as will the impact of international organization on the doctrine of sovereign equality of States.

LAWS4086Law of the Sea

Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course will examine the legal regime which binds States in their international relations concerning maritime matters. The course will examine the major maritime zones recognised in international law, such as the territorial sea, the contiguous and exclusive economic zones, the high seas, and the legal regime relating to the continental shelf. It will also examine the rules relating to the various uses of the seas, such as fishing, navigation, scientific research, regulation of marine pollution and military uses of the sea. It will examine the way in which disputes over conflicting uses of the seas arise and the manner in which they are handled and will look at the interrelationship between the public international law of the sea and municipal law.

LAWS4087Legal Regulation of the Use of Force

Staff Contact: Ms Rosemary Rayfuse
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course will cover the law on the use of force and the law and practice relating to United Nations enforcement action and peace-keeping operations. The course will examine the limitations, both pre- and post-UN Charter, on the unilateral use of force by States. It will then examine the system for collective measures established by the UN Charter and regional organisations, including regional peace-keeping. Finally, it will examine cases of ad-hoc improvisation by the UN in default of an established system of peace-keeping and collective security and the recent UN developments towards a firmly established system.

LAWS4121Trade and Investment Law in the People's Republic of China

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

China is now one of the largest trading nations in the world. This course discusses the economic, political and legal environments for trade and investment in China. It examines the origins and effects of China's Open Door Policy and economic and legal reforms implemented since the landmark change of direction in 1978 as China moves to establish and institutionalize a socialist market economy. Topics include: an introduction to the Chinese legal system and constitutional framework; history of trade in China and economic reform; foreign trade and investment law and policies, including contract law, investment vehicles (joint and wholly-owned ventures), technology transfer, intellectual property, company law, banking and finance, foreign exchange controls, securities regulation, labour law, land use, special economic zones, and dispute resolution. Special topics may also be considered including Hong Kong, Macao and Taiwan.

LAWS4122Personal Status Law in South-East Asia

Staff Contact: Dr Gail Pearson/MsPrue Vines
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course investigates the law relating to the individual, the family and inheritance in selected South-East Asian countries. The countries focused on include Vietnam, Cambodia, Thailand, Indonesia and Malaysia. The course includes an historical background to the legal systems, the common themes being colonialism and the reception of new legal systems, and the role of religious law. We then consider the countries in turn. Topics include: The tension between the concept of individual rights in secular law and the law of community status and obligations will be the focus of the material on the individual. The concept of citizenship or nationality, the rights of individuals and minorities under the constitution, status and gender, and state responsibilities, if any, for individuals. The general pattern of family in the particular cultures and who is regarded as significant in the family for particular purposes - for example, for debt, law, inheritance or living arrangements. The requirements for marriage and the obligations arising from it, and whether divorce is permitted and its consequences. The child and rights and obligations in relation to the child from the parents and the state. The law of inheritance - whether the laws of inheritance are customary, religious or statutory, and what property is transmissible.

LAWS4123Trade and Investment in Japan

Staff Contact: School Office
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

The aim of this course is to expose students to the practical expectation which Australian legal practitioners and advisers may reasonably hold in their dealings in/with Japan and Japanese corporations. To familiarise students with the legal, political, economic and cultural sources and contexts of regulatory power in Japan the following topics will be examined: Introduction to Japan, Japanese psychology (including the concepts of amae, honne, tatemae, giri, on and intai), the legal system and legal profession, the Japan Inc. Triumvirate (the relationships between politicians, bureaucrats and private enterprise) administrative guidance and the Administrative Procedures Law 1993, company law, corporations (sogo shosha and keiretsu), establishing a foreign operation, dispute resolution and commercial arbitration, contract law, antimonopoly law, intellectual property, the tendering process, banking finance and securities, consumer awareness and marketing, product liability, negotiating with the Japanese and the practical etiquette of doing business in Japan. These topics may vary according to the availability of local and visiting guest speakers.

LAWS4124

Japanese Law

Staff Contact: Ms Annette Marfording
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course is intended to convey an introduction to the Japanese legal system in its historical, cultural, political and economic context. By the end of the course, students should have developed an understanding of the relationships between Japanese society and attitude to law, legal institutions and substantive law. Japanese law provides a superb opportunity to examine the role of law in affecting social change. By the end of the course, students should have developed an understanding of the possibilities and limitations of using law as a tool of social engineering. The course will introduce students to the study of comparative law by looking at issues such as the classification of legal systems into families of law and the reception of foreign law. By the end of the course, students should have developed an informed view on the classification of Japanese law and should be able to discuss the possibilities and limitations in transplanting law from one country to another. Students will learn to analyse and evaluate legal institutions and substantive laws of a foreign legal system and to compare them in a meaningful way with similar laws and institutions in the Australian legal system. They will develop skills to critically assess whether, and if so what, Australia can learn from Japan in a legal context. Students will be introduced to the background knowledge necessary to advise on business transactions with Japanese companies, foreign investment in Japan and its barriers and the Japanese system of dispute resolution. Topics include: Pre-modern law and traditions, Japanese society; the reception of Western law and legal scholarship from 1868-1945; Occupation reforms after World War II; sources of law: the legal profession; the judiciary and court organisation; the dispute resolution process; the process of law-making in Japan (the legislature, administrative guidance, the courts: judicial reasoning and judicial review); overview of contract law (contract formation, common clauses, attitude to contract); overview of company law. Other topics will be chosen according to student interest and/or availability of guest lecturers.

The overall aim of the course is to acquaint students with the following dimensions of business law in India: the principles of laws governing business, particularly those relevant to foreign trade and investment; the institutions and practices relevant to the regulation of business; the cultural, economic and political context of the operation of laws and practices. The following topics are covered: the legal system; the New Industrial Policy; structuring and financing investment; tax policy; technology transfer; industrial restructuring and infrastructure development; environmental controls and commercial dispute resolution.

LAWS4141

Pacific Islands Legal Systems

Staff Contact: Dr Owen Jessep
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

An introduction to the emerging legal systems of the Pacific Islands states, including issues of constitutional development, the recognition and application of customary law, modern and traditional legal institutions, land tenure regimes, personal law, and the legal recognition of economic activity, such as international trade, foreign investment and national resources projects. In addition to surveying the position of particular states, there will also be consideration of the nature and role of regional organisations, such as the South Pacific Forum and the Forum Fishing Agency.

LAWS4151

European Union: Institutions and Legal Systems

Staff Contact: Dr Stephen Hall
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

A comprehensive introduction to the constitutional history, institutional structure and legal system of the unique quasi-federation which is the European Union. Particular attention will be paid to the composition, powers and functions of the main legislative and executive organs (Council, Commission and European Parliament) and to the judicial organs (European Court of Justice and Court of First Instance). The course will then focus on the most important aspects of the legal system: supremacy and direct effect of Union law; general principles of law including fundamental rights; Union citizenship; the role of Union and national courts in enforcing and applying Union law.

LAWS4152

Trade Law of the European Union

Staff Contact: Dr Stephen Hall
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

A comprehensive introduction to the substantive law of the European Union; the world's largest integrated market economy and a principal economic and trade partner for both Australia and the Asia-Pacific region. The Common Market and the Internal Market with particular reference to: the free movement of goods, persons, services and capital; the Common Commercial Policy towards non-EU countries; Introduction to EU competition law; Economic and Monetary Union; State Aids.

LAWS4153

Modern Civil Law Systems

Staff Contact: Dr Richard Bauman
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Law students in this modern age are finding that they require some knowledge of European law. Comparative law contributes to that objective and also helps to clarify our thoughts about our own law. The aim of this course is to acquaint students with the principles and methods of comparative law in a practical way, by focussing on and comparing: French private law, which is based on Roman law as modified by the French Civil Code (the Code Napoleon). These elements form the basis of much of modern European Civil Law. This component will be expounded in formal lectures; Australian private law will, after an introductory lecture, be developed in class papers presented by students. The following topics are covered: the structure and operation of the French superior courts, with special reference to judicial precedent, family law, with special reference to divorce; property, with special reference to abuse of rights; contract, with special reference to general principles; and tort, with special reference to fault.

LAWS4181Issues In Human RightsStaff Contact:* Dr Sarah Pritchard

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS2182 Human Rights Law or equivalent

The course examines issues of current concern in Human Rights Law. The issues selected will vary from time to time. They will include consideration of the adequacy of International Law standards and processes; regional approaches to human rights protection; the adequacy of Australian law and machinery, with comparative references to other relevant countries.

LAWS4211Indigenous Legal IssuesStaff Contact:* Prof Garth Nettheim

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

A study of laws relating to Australia's Indigenous peoples, and of the impact of general law on Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders. Topics include: elements of pre-contact and post-contact history; questions of definition and identity; the nature of Indigenous law, and Australian responses to Indigenous laws; issues of sovereignty and autonomy; statutory land rights and native title; issues of racial discrimination, criminal justice and child welfare; proposals for Reconciliation. Reference is made to developments in international law and to comparative material from countries such as Canada, USA and NZ.

LAWS4271Australian Legal SystemStaff Contact:* Ms Prue Vines

UOC8 HPW4 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: Approval of the Associate Dean (Postgraduate and Research)

This course provides a basic understanding of common law and the Australian legal system. It is intended for students whose legal background is in non-common law jurisdictions. It has a strong focus on techniques of common law legal reasoning, which are essential for the non-common law practitioner to understand when dealing with common law legal systems. It deals with the principal institutions of the legal system, particularly the courts; the legislature and the executive arms of government; the judiciary; the legal profession - its history, role, interrelationships, operation and techniques; the doctrine of precedent and statutory interpretation, practice and theory; sources of Australian law including the past and present status of Aboriginal customary laws; the origins of common law; the colonisation of Australia; classifications within the common law, and the jurisdiction of Australian courts.

LAWS4291Comparative Constitutional LawStaff Contact:* Prof George Winterton

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: LAWS2150 Federal Constitutional Law or equivalent

Examines and compares the operation of major institutions and doctrines of constitutional law in Australia, the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom, India and elsewhere. Differences and similarities are noted and assessed. Topics include: review of legislative and executive action; the role of the judiciary; federalism and devolution; national-regional financial relations; relations between legislature and executive; civil liberties; emergency powers; constitutional reform.

LAWS4301Issues in EvidenceStaff Contact:* A/Prof Jill Hunter

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Prerequisite/s: Undergraduate study of evidence and procedural law or subject to approval, professional experience in evidence and procedural law

The course is designed to: - Stimulate interest in a broad range of trial issues, especially those not traditionally canvassed in evidence courses. - Foster in-depth and critical analysis of issues in evidence law and trial practice. - Encourage a multi-disciplinary, comparative study of a range of topics associated with trials. - Explore the impact of the Evidence Acts (NSW & Cwth) 1995. - Topics vary from year to year. The following matters are core topics in all years. The history of court procedure and the development of the rationalist tradition in evidence law in an adversarial framework; issues relating to jury trials including the dynamics of the trial; the judge's role in the trial; analysis of witness credibility from legal and socio-psychological perspectives; the impact of the uniform Evidence Acts (NSW & Cwth) 1995. Other topics vary according to students' interests. In the past these topics have included confessions; the rule against hearsay; right to silence; prosecutorial (and defence) disclosure; identification evidence. Assessment will be on the basis of class participation and a flexible mixture of seminar presentations, set essay topics and/or research essay. An examination is a possible option.

LAWS4302Law of DamagesStaff Contact:* Dr Anne Cossins

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course is an advanced analysis of the remedial relationship between three distinct causes of action that give rise to civil liability: breach of contract, breach of the tortious duty of care and breach of fiduciary duty. By studying the boundaries between three causes of action, it is possible to engage in an analysis of some of the major doctrinal issues that arise in relation to assessment of damages in tort, contract and equity, in particular: - To what extent are contract and tort principles for assessing damages merging? - To what extent are common law and equitable principles for assessing damages merging? - Should the assessment of compensation in equity remain immune from the influence of common law principles? - Are fiduciary principles a realistic alternative to tort principles for protecting human and personal interests and, if so, what are the implications for assessing damages?

LAWS4303RestitutionStaff Contact:* Mr Denis Harley

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course examines legal principles which seek to define circumstances where the recipient of a benefit must be compelled to disgorge it (or its value) lest he/she be unjustly enriched at the expense of the party conferring that benefit. After noting situations where the common law has long allowed claims in quasi contract, the course then observes the way in which the older imputed contract to return the benefit rationale for allowing these claims has been increasingly discarded by courts in favour of a more candid acknowledgment of the need to impose restitutionary obligations to avoid an unjust enrichment. Two major parts of the modern law of restitution are then identified: ie (i) principles applicable to situations where no branch of law, other than the law of restitution, would recognise a basis of liability; and (ii) principles applicable to situations where some other branch of law would recognise a basis of liability, but a restitutionary remedy might also be available in the circumstances. The main focus of the course is upon the former of the two areas, and attention is given to the extent to which proprietary, as well as personal, actions may be available to a plaintiff. Differing modern theories as to the rationale for, and appropriate limits upon, restitutionary claims are also considered. Some topics that may be covered are: Recovery in respect of money paid, services rendered, or property transferred under a mistake of fact or law; Recovery in respect of benefits conferred under ineffective transactions; Rights to contribution; Rights to recoupment following compulsory discharge of another's liability; Restitution in respect of benefits conferred in an emergency; Subrogation.

LAWS4331Law, Language and PowerStaff Contact:* School Office

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

An examination of the relationship between law, language and power as considered from a number of theoretical approaches. Topics include: 1 Introduction to discourse theory; 2 The order of discourse, theories of legal narrative, the politics of truth, governmentality, (Foucault); 3 Law and literature; 4 legal discourse and languages of law; 5 feminist critiques of legal discourse; 6 law and theories of interpretation.

LAWS4334

Legal Reasoning

Staff Contact: Dr Arthur Glass
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Legal reasoning and legal interpretation are activities central to legal practice. This course examines the extent to which legal reasoning and legal interpretation can be explained as rational procedures and what it means here to justify a legal argument or a legal interpretation. These topics will be approached by way of a discussion of contemporary writings in philosophy of law and by a consideration of other related disciplines (for example hermeneutics and rhetoric).

LAWS4335

Studies in Contemporary Legal and Social Theory - Jürgen Habermas 1

Staff Contact: Robert Shelly
UOC4 HPW2 WKS7

This course is the first in a series to be offered on leading, contemporary legal and social theorists as well as key issues in legal and social theory. In virtue of the abiding importance of Habermas's work in philosophy and social theory in general, and law in particular, and the fact that he is currently at the centre of many of the most significant debates in these domains, it seems that a knowledge of his ideas is important to anyone who wants to be au fait with the most advanced contemporary theoretical work on law. This course can be done as an introduction to doing LAWS4336 (Habermas 2) or simply on its own. It will involve a general and wide-ranging introduction to Habermas's main ideas as set out in his Theory of Communicative Action. It will explore some of Habermas's main concepts such as communicative action and communicative rationality; strategic action and strategic rationality; system and lifeworld; the colonization of the lifeworld, and juridification. It will also begin to draw out his many comments on law in this book, and seek to work these into a general theory of law for contemporary society. Particular focus will be given to seeing exactly where Habermas's ideas are situated in relation to other legal and social theorists, past and present. Habermas's work naturally invites such comparisons by virtue of the way he builds up his own ideas by critically and creatively appropriating the central insights of others. On a general note, students should not think that this course is for experts in legal and social theory. The level of expertise demanded is that of the interested novice or relative novice who wants exposure to one of the leading and most broadbased present-day legal and social theory.

LAWS4336

Studies in Contemporary Legal and Social Theory - Jürgen Habermas 2

Staff Contact: Mr Robert Shelly
UOC4 HPW2 WKS7

Assumed Knowledge: LAWS4335 or equivalent

This course follows directly on from LAWS4335 and will further develop the approach and themes covered in that course, by focussing upon Habermas's more recent work Between Facts and Norms: Contributions to a Discourse Theory of Law and Democracy. This work is currently at the very centre of debate in legal, social and political theory circles and takes its point of departure from the insights into contemporary law and politics alluded to, but not systematically elaborated in, Theory of Communicative Action. But now Habermas takes law as his specific focus with the aim of trying to locate more adequately than other competing theories have done—the place and function of law in contemporary modern / postmodern societies. Specific themes to be explored include: the role that law plays in reflexively integrating highly complex, decentred and pluralist societies; the rights and principles law must embody for it to perform this role; the model of democracy that is, in turn entailed by these rights, and finally the reciprocal relations between law, rights, society and democracy that lead Habermas to call his theory a discourse theory of law and democracy. As in LAWS4335, these themes will be explored comparatively, always placing Habermas's theory within the context of other competing theories. The result of this comparative approach is that by the end of this course students should not only acquire a good grounding in one important theorist, but also gain a sense of what is happening in contemporary legal and social theory at large.

Families and Financial Adjustment

Staff Contact: A/Prof Owen Jessep
UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

This course provides a critical examination of a set of linked areas of law associated with family property adjustment and financial transactions. Although there may be some variations from year to year, topics will normally comprise: 1 Law, procedure and practice relating to property adjustment under the Family Law Act 1975 (C wealth) and under the Property (Relationships) Act 1984 (NSW); 2 The law of financial agreements (Family Law Act) and Property (Relationships) Act; 3 Family law aspects of social security; 4 Family law aspects of bankruptcy; 5 Family law aspects of inheritance and family provision (TFM); 6 Family law aspects of taxation. The treatment will emphasise the interaction of different areas of law, and the significance of this interaction both for practice and for an understanding of the policies involved. Experienced family law practitioners may participate in some classes. There are no prerequisites, but students who have not studied or practised in family law may need to do some background reading.

Civil Liberties and the Law

Staff Contact: Ms Melinda Jones

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

It is generally thought that Australia is a democracy, a free Western society. Yet all too often the content of freedom and the idea of democracy are taken for granted. This course examines the requirements of freedom and democracy, and sets about assessing the extent to which Australian law is the guardian of civil liberties or its detractor. The concern of this course is with the treatment of Australian minorities: Aborigines, Communists, Seventh Day Adventists, women: with issues arising from the multicultural nature of Australian society; and with the exercise of personal freedom independent of constraints imposed by the state. Topics covered will include the constitutional protection of liberty; common law rights in theory and practice; voting rights and political freedom; freedom of the individual such as privacy, and public morality; and equality and economic rights.

Enrolment in a Research Thesis shall be approved by the School of Law if:

1. A clearly defined project is proposed: the thesis topic must be approved at the outset but may be modified at a later stage.
2. The student has a sufficient academic background in legal study to enable the thesis to be completed in a satisfactory manner.
3. Adequate supervision is available: supervision may be conjoint but at least one supervisor should be a full-time member of the School of Law's academic staff.

The School of Law will initially limit its approval for a Research Thesis to an 8UOC enrolment (LAWS4424 or LAWS4423). A student who has received approval for an 8UOC enrolment may be given subsequent approval to transfer to a 16UOC enrolment (LAWS4422). Similarly a student who has received approval for a 16UOC enrolment may be given retrospective approval for transfer to an 8UOC enrolment.

Thesis

The thesis must be typed on A4 bond paper and two copies must be prepared in a cover (spring back folder or bound). References may appear at the foot of each page or at the end of each chapter. As a general rule the thesis shall be a maximum of 15,000 words for an 8UOC enrolment or 30,000 words for a 16UOC enrolment.

Examination

Each thesis shall have two examiners, one of whom may be the supervisor or one of the supervisors. Unless the supervisor or supervisors otherwise agree, the final date for submission shall be the last day of the session in which the student is enrolled in the Research Thesis. Examiners may require a candidate or group of candidates to attend an oral examination on the subject matter of the thesis; examiners may require a thesis to be resubmitted under such conditions as the examiners may determine.

 These electives permit selected students to obtain credit for approved research projects undertaken individually or in groups. No student shall be permitted to obtain more than 40 credit points in any combination of the subjects LAWS4422, LAWS4424, LAWS4423.*

Legal Research

Staff Contact: Ms Irene Nemes

UOC8 HPW2 WKS14

Notes: Exclusion: Completed LAWS7420, or equivalent, in the last two years

This course covers legal research skills, techniques and methodology. It aims to familiarise students with sophisticated techniques for finding the law as well as the conventions of presenting their research in a written form. The interdisciplinary nature of legal research involves an appreciation of empirical and social science methodology, including the ethics of research. The course will focus on both hard copy and electronic resources, allowing students the opportunity of evaluating and comparing them in different situations. Students will receive hands on training in researching case law, statute law, secondary material, current awareness services and the Internet. The ultimate objective of the course is to help students achieve an appreciation of the process and method of legal research.

Conditions for the Award of Degrees

First Degrees

Rules, regulations and conditions for the award of first degrees are set out in the appropriate Faculty Handbooks.

For the list of undergraduate programs and degrees offered see Table of Programs by Faculty (Undergraduate Study) in the Calendar.

Higher Degrees

For the list of postgraduate degrees by research and course work, arranged in faculty order, see UNSW Programs (by faculty) in the Calendar. The conditions for the award of postgraduate degrees, diplomas and certificates appear in the relevant Faculty Handbook.

Doctor of Juridical Science (SJD)

1. The degree of Doctor of Juridical Science may be awarded by the Council on the recommendation of the Higher Degree Committee of the Faculty of Law (hereinafter referred to as the Committee) to a candidate who after satisfactorily completing a qualifying program comprising 6 single semester courses in the LLM by coursework degree has through the submission of a thesis based on his or her research made an original and significant contribution to knowledge in the field of law.

Qualifications

2. (1) A candidate for the degree shall have been awarded an appropriate degree of Bachelor of Laws from the University of New South Wales or a qualification considered equivalent from another university or tertiary institution at a level acceptable to the Committee, and shall have completed the qualifying program to an approved standard. The standard required is an average of 75% or better in the candidate's best 4 (of 6) coursework courses in the qualifying program, excluding the course Legal Research. In addition, a research proposal must be submitted as soon as feasible after completion of 4 of the 6 coursework courses in the qualifying program. Admission to the SJD will be conditional on the viability of the research proposal.

(2) In exceptional cases an applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional qualifications as may be approved by the Committee may be permitted to enrol for the degree.

(3) If the Committee is not satisfied with the qualifications submitted by an applicant, the Committee may require the applicant to undergo such assessment or carry out such work as the Committee may prescribe before permitting enrolment.

Enrolment

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the degree shall be made on the prescribed form which shall be lodged with the Faculty in October or May before the commencement of the session in which enrolment is to begin.

(2) In every case before making the offer of a place the Committee shall be satisfied that initial agreement has been reached between the School and the applicant on the provision of adequate facilities to be prescribed and that these are in accordance with the provisions of the guidelines for promoting postgraduate study within the University.

(3) The candidate shall be enrolled as either a full-time or part-time student.

(4) A full-time candidate will present the thesis for examination no earlier than 2 years and no later than 3 years from the date of enrolment for the SJD degree (ie after completion of the qualifying program) and a part-time candidate will present the thesis no earlier than 4 years and no later than 6 years from the date of enrolment, except with the approval of the committee.

(5) The candidate must complete the qualifying program as an internal student; that is at a campus, or other approved facility with which the University is associated. He or she may undertake the research as an internal student or as an external student who is not in attendance at the University except for such periods as may be prescribed by the Committee.

(6) An internal candidate will normally carry out the research on a campus or at a teaching or research facility of the University except that the Committee may permit a candidate to spend a period in the field, within another institution or elsewhere away from the University provided that the work can be supervised in a manner satisfactory to the Committee. In such instances the Committee shall be satisfied that the location and period of time away from the University are necessary to the research program.

(7) The research shall be supervised by a supervisor and where possible a co-supervisor who are members of the academic staff of the School or under other appropriate supervision arrangements approved by the Committee. Normally an external candidate within another organisation or institution will have a co-supervisor at that institution.

Progression

4. The progress of the candidate shall be considered by the Committee following a report from the School in accordance with the procedures established within the School and previously noted by the Committee.

(1) The progress of a candidate during both the qualifying program and the period of research shall be reviewed at least once annually, and as a result of any such review the Committee may cancel enrolment or take such other action as it considers appropriate.

Thesis

5. (1) On completing the program of study a candidate shall submit a thesis of between 60,000 and 70,000 words which makes an original and significant contribution in the field of law.

(2) The candidate shall give in writing to the Registrar two months notice of intention to submit the thesis.

(3) The thesis shall present an account of the candidate's own research.

(4) Four copies of the thesis shall be presented in a form which complies with the requirements of the University for the preparation and submission of theses for higher degrees.

(5) It shall be understood that the University retains the three copies of the thesis submitted for examination and is free to allow the thesis to be consulted or borrowed. Subject to the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1968, the University may issue the thesis in whole or in part, in photostat or microfilm or other copying medium.

Examination

6. (1) There shall be not fewer than three examiners of the thesis, appointed by the Committee, at least two of whom shall be external to the University unless the Committee is satisfied that this is not practicable.

(2) At the conclusion of the examination each examiner shall submit to the Committee a concise report on the thesis and shall recommend to the Committee that:

(a) The thesis merits the award of the degree, or

(b) The thesis merits the award of the degree subject to minor corrections as listed being made to the satisfaction of the Head of School, or

(c) The thesis requires further work on matters detailed in my report. Should performance in this further work be to the satisfaction of the Higher Degree Committee, the thesis would merit the award of the degree, or

(d) The thesis does not merit the award of the degree in its present form and further work as described in my report is required. The revised thesis should be subject to re-examination, or

(e) The thesis does not merit the award of the degree and does not demonstrate that resubmission would be likely to achieve that merit.

(3) If the performance at the further work recommended under (2)(c) above is not to the satisfaction of the Committee, the Committee may permit the candidate to re-present the same thesis and submit to further examination as determined by the Committee within a period specified by it but not exceeding eighteen months.

(4) The Committee shall, after consideration of the examiners' reports and the results of any further work, recommend whether or not the candidate may be awarded the degree. If it is decided that the candidate be not awarded the degree the Committee shall determine whether or not the candidate be permitted to resubmit the thesis after a further period of study and/or research. If the decision of the Committee results non-award of the SJD the candidate may take out a Master of Laws degree on the basis of the coursework completed before the SJD thesis.

Fees

7. A candidate shall pay such fees as may be determined from time to time by the Council.

Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)

1. The degree of Doctor of Philosophy may be awarded by the Council on the recommendation of the Higher Degree Committee of the appropriate faculty or board (hereinafter referred to as the Committee) to a candidate who has made an original and significant contribution to knowledge.

Qualifications

2. (1) A candidate for the degree shall have been awarded an appropriate degree of Bachelor with Honours from the University of New South Wales or a qualification considered equivalent from another university or tertiary institution at a level acceptable to the Committee.
- (2) In exceptional cases an applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional qualifications as may be approved by the Committee may be permitted to enrol for the degree.
- (3) If the Committee is not satisfied with the qualifications submitted by an applicant the Committee may require the applicant to undergo such assessment or carry out such work as the Committee may prescribe, before permitting enrolment as a candidate for the degree.

Enrolment

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the degree shall be lodged with the Registrar at least one month prior to the date at which enrolment is to begin.
- (2) In every case before making the offer of a place the Committee shall be satisfied that initial agreement has been reached between the School* and the applicant on the topic area, supervision arrangements, provision of adequate facilities and any coursework to be prescribed and that these are in accordance with the provisions of the guidelines for promoting postgraduate study within the University.
- (3) The candidate shall be enrolled either as a full-time or a part-time student.
- (4) A full-time candidate will present the thesis for examination no earlier than three years and no later than five years from the date of enrolment and a part-time candidate will present the thesis for examination no earlier than four years and no later than six years from the date of enrolment, except with the approval of the Committee.
- (5) The candidate may undertake the research as an internal student i.e. at a campus, teaching hospital, or other research facility with which the University is associated, or as an external student not in attendance at the University except for periods as may be prescribed by the Committee.
- (6) An internal candidate will normally carry out the research on a campus or at a teaching or research facility of the University except that the Committee may permit a candidate to spend a period in the field, within another institution or elsewhere away from the University provided that the work can be supervised in a manner satisfactory to the Committee. In such instances the Committee shall be satisfied that the location and period of time away from the University are necessary to the research program.
- (7) The research shall be supervised by a supervisor and where possible a co-supervisor who are members of the academic staff of the School or under other appropriate supervision arrangements approved by the Committee. Normally an external candidate within another organisation or institution will have a co-supervisor at that institution.

Progression

4. The progress of the candidate shall be considered by the Committee following report from the School in accordance with the procedures established within the School and previously noted by the Committee.
 - (i) The research proposal will be reviewed as soon as feasible after enrolment. For a full-time student this will normally be during the first year of study, or immediately following a period of prescribed coursework. This review will focus on the viability of the research proposal.
 - (ii) Progress in the program will be reviewed within twelve months of the first review. As a result of either review the Committee may cancel enrolment or take such other action as it considers appropriate. Thereafter, the progress of the candidate will be reviewed annually.

Thesis

5. (1) On completing the program of study a candidate shall submit a thesis embodying the results of the investigation.
- (2) The candidate shall give in writing to the Registrar two months notice of intention to submit the thesis.
- (3) The thesis shall comply with the following requirements:
 - (a) it must be an original and significant contribution to knowledge of the subject;
 - (b) the greater proportion of the work described must have been completed subsequent to enrolment for the degree;
 - (c) it must be written in English except that a candidate in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences may be required by the Committee to write a thesis in an appropriate foreign language;
 - (d) it must reach a satisfactory standard of expression and presentation;

(e) it must consist of an account of the candidate's own research but in special cases work done conjointly with other persons may be accepted provided the Committee is satisfied about the extent of the candidate's part in the joint research.

(4) The candidate may not submit as the main content of the thesis any work or material which has previously been submitted for a university degree or other similar award but may submit any work previously published whether or not such work is related to the thesis.

(5) Four copies of the thesis shall be presented in a form which complies with the requirements of the University for the preparation and submission of theses for higher degrees.

(6) It shall be understood that the University retains the four copies of the thesis submitted for examination and is free to allow the thesis to be consulted or borrowed. Subject to the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1968, the University may issue the thesis in whole or in part, in photostat or microfilm or other copying medium.

Examination

6. (1) There shall be not fewer than three examiners of the thesis, appointed by the Committee, at least two of whom shall be external to the University.

(2) At the conclusion of the examination each examiner shall submit to the Committee a concise report on the thesis and shall recommend to the Committee that one of the following:

(a) The thesis merits the award of the degree.

(b) The thesis merits the award of the degree subject to minor corrections as listed being made to the satisfaction of the Head of school.

(c) The thesis requires further work on matters detailed in my report. Should performance in this further work be to the satisfaction of the higher degree Committee, the thesis would merit the award of the degree.

(d) The thesis does not merit the award of the degree in its present form and further work as described in my report is required. The revised thesis should be subject to re-examination.

(e) The thesis does not merit the award of the degree and does not demonstrate that resubmission would be likely to achieve that merit.

(3) If the performance in the further work recommended under (2)(c) above is not to the satisfaction of the Committee, the Committee may permit the candidate to submit the thesis for re-examination as determined by the Committee within a period determined by it but not exceeding eighteen months.

(4) After consideration of the examiners' reports and the results of any further examination of the thesis, the Committee may require the candidate to submit to written or oral examination before recommending whether or not the candidate be awarded the degree. If it is decided that the candidate be not awarded the degree, the Committee shall determine whether or not the candidate be permitted to resubmit the thesis after a further period of study and/or research.

Fees

7. A candidate shall pay such fees as may be determined from time to time by the Council.

"School" is used here and elsewhere in these conditions to mean any teaching unit authorised to enrol research students and includes a department where that department is not within a school, a centre given approval by the Academic Board to enrol students, and an interdisciplinary unit within a faculty and under the control of the Dean of the Faculty. Enrolment is permitted in more than one such teaching unit.

Master of Laws by Research (LLM)

1. The degree of Master of Laws by research may be awarded by the Council on the recommendation of the Higher Degree Committee of the Faculty of Law (hereinafter referred to as the Committee) to a candidate who has demonstrated ability to undertake research by the submission of a thesis embodying the results of an original investigation.

Qualifications

2. (1) A candidate for the degree shall have been awarded an appropriate degree of Bachelor of Laws from the University of New South Wales or a qualification considered equivalent from another university or tertiary institution at a level acceptable to the Committee.

(2) In exceptional cases an applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional qualifications as may be approved by the Committee may be permitted to enrol for the degree.

(3) When the Committee is not satisfied with the qualifications submitted by an applicant the Committee may require the applicant, before being permitted to enrol, to undergo such examination or carry out such work as the Committee may prescribe.

Enrolment and Progression

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the degree shall be made on the prescribed form which shall be lodged with the Registrar at least one calendar month before the commencement of the session in which enrolment is to begin.

- (2) In every case before making the offer of a place the Committee shall be satisfied that initial agreement has been reached between the School and the applicant on the topic area, supervision arrangements, provision of adequate facilities and any coursework to be prescribed and that these are in accordance with the provisions of the guidelines for promoting postgraduate study within the University.
- (3) The candidate shall be enrolled as either a full-time or part-time student.
- (4) A candidate shall be required to undertake an original investigation on an approved topic. The candidate may also be required to undergo such examination and perform such other work as may be prescribed by the Committee.
- (5) The research shall be supervised by a supervisor or supervisors who are members of the academic staff of the School, or under other appropriate supervision arrangements approved by the Committee. Normally an external candidate within another organisation or institution will have a co-supervisor at that institution.
- (6) Full-time and part-time (or external) candidates for the degree shall submit, within one or two sessions of enrolment respectively, a substantial piece of written work forming part of or relating to the approved topic. If this work is unsatisfactory or not forthcoming, the Committee will review the candidate's enrolment. In any case, the progress of a candidate shall be reviewed annually by the Committee following a report by the candidate, the supervisor and the head of the school, and as a result of such review the Committee may cancel enrolment or take such other action as it considers appropriate.
- (7) No candidate shall be granted the degree until the lapse of three academic sessions in the case of a full-time candidate or four academic sessions in the case of a part-time or external candidate from the date of enrolment. In the case of a candidate who has been awarded the degree of Bachelor with Honours or the equivalent of Honours or who has had previous research experience the Committee may approve remission of up to one session for a full-time candidate and two sessions for a part-time or external candidate.
- (8) A full-time candidate for the degree shall present for examination not later than six academic sessions from the date of enrolment. A part-time or external candidate for the degree shall present for examination not later than ten academic sessions from the date of enrolment. In special cases an extension of these times may be granted by the Committee.
- (9) The candidate may undertake the research as an internal student, i.e. at a campus, teaching hospital, or other research facility with which the University is associated, or as an external student not in attendance at the University except for periods as may be prescribed by the Committee.
- (10) An internal candidate will normally carry out the research on a campus or at a teaching or research facility of the University except that the Committee may permit a candidate to spend a period in the field, within another institution or elsewhere away from the University provided that the work can be supervised in a manner satisfactory to the Committee. In such instances the Committee shall be satisfied that the location and period of time away from the University are necessary to the research program.

Thesis

4. (1) On completing the program of study a candidate shall submit a thesis embodying the results of the original investigation.
- (2) The candidate shall give in writing two months notice of intention to submit the thesis.
- (3) The thesis shall present an account of the candidate's own research. In special cases work done conjointly with other persons may be accepted, provided the Committee is satisfied about the extent of the candidate's part in the joint research.
- (4) Three copies of the thesis shall be presented in a form which complies with the requirements of the University for the preparation and submission of higher degree theses.
- (5) It shall be understood that the University retains the three copies of the thesis submitted for examination and is free to allow the thesis to be consulted or borrowed. Subject to the provisions of the Copyright Act, 1968, the University may issue the thesis in whole or in part, in photostat or microfilm or other copying medium.

Examination

5. (1) There shall be not fewer than two examiners of the thesis, appointed by the Committee, at least one of whom shall be external to the University unless the Committee is satisfied that this is not practicable.
- (2) At the conclusion of the examination each examiner shall submit to the Committee a concise report on the merits of the thesis and shall recommend to the Committee that:
- the thesis merits the award of the degree; or
 - the thesis merits the award of the degree subject to minor corrections as listed being made to the satisfaction of the Head of School; or
 - the thesis requires further work on matters detailed in the examiner's report. Should performance in this further work be to the satisfaction of the Higher Degree Committee, the thesis would merit the award of the degree; or
 - the thesis does not merit the award of the degree in its present form and further work as described in the examiner's report is required. The revised thesis should be subject to re-examination; or
 - the thesis does not merit the award of the degree and does not demonstrate that resubmission would be likely to achieve that merit.
- (3) If the performance at the further examination recommended under (2)(c) above is not to the satisfaction of the Committee, the Committee may permit the candidate to re-present the same thesis and submit to a further oral, practical or written examination within a period specified by it but not exceeding eighteen months:

(4) The Committee shall, after consideration of the examiners' reports and the reports of any oral or written or practical examination, recommend whether or not the candidate may be awarded the degree. If it is decided that the candidate be not awarded the degree the Committee shall determine whether or not the candidate may resubmit the thesis after a further period of study and/or research.

Fees

6. A candidate shall pay such fees as may be determined from time to time by the Council.

Master of Laws by Coursework (LLM)

1. The degree of Master of Laws by Coursework may be awarded by the Council to a candidate who has satisfactorily completed a program of advanced study.

Qualifications

2. (1) A candidate for the degree shall have been awarded an appropriate degree of Bachelor of Laws from the University of New South Wales or a qualification considered equivalent from another university or tertiary institution at a level acceptable to the Higher Degree Committee of the Faculty of Law (hereinafter referred to as the Committee).

(2) In exceptional cases an applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional qualifications as may be approved by the Committee may be permitted to enrol for the degree.

(3) When the Committee is not satisfied with the qualifications submitted by an applicant the Committee may require the applicant, before being permitted to enrol, to undergo such examination or carry out such work as the Committee may prescribe.

Enrolment and Progression

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the degree shall be made on the prescribed form which shall be lodged with the Registrar at least two calendar months before the commencement of the session in which enrolment is to begin.

(2) A candidate for the degree shall be required to undertake such formal courses and pass such assessment as is prescribed.

(3) The progress of a candidate shall be reviewed at least once annually by the Committee and as a result of its review the Committee may cancel enrolment or take such other action as it considers appropriate.

(4) No candidate shall be awarded the degree until the lapse of two academic sessions from the date of enrolment in the case of a full-time candidate or three sessions in the case of a part-time candidate. The maximum period of candidature shall be three academic sessions from the date of enrolment for a full-time candidate and six sessions for a part-time candidate. In special cases an extension of these times may be granted by the Committee.

Fees

4. A candidate shall pay such fees as may be determined from time to time by the Council.

Master of Law and Management (MLM)

1. The degree of Master of Law and Management may be awarded by the council to a candidate who has satisfactorily completed a program of advanced study approved by the Higher Degree Committees of the Faculty of Law and the Australian Graduate School of Management (hereinafter referred to as the Committees).

Qualifications

2. (1) Applicant for enrolment in the degree shall have been awarded an appropriate degree of Bachelor from the University of New South Wales or a qualification considered equivalent from another university or tertiary institution at a level acceptable to the Committees.

(2) Applicants shall in addition have had a minimum of two years' relevant work experience.

(3) In exceptional cases an applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional qualifications as may be approved by the Committees may be permitted to enrol for the degree.

(4) If the Committees are not satisfied with the qualifications submitted by an applicant the Committees may require the applicant to undergo such assessment or carry out such work as the Committees may prescribe, before permitting enrolment.

Enrolment and Progression

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the degree shall be made on the prescribed form which shall be lodged with the Registrar at least two calendar months before the commencement of the session in which enrolment is to begin.

- (2) Applicants shall in addition submit a study plan for approval by the Committees, which outlines the courses that they wish to take and explains the relationship between these courses and their current and future career development. The Committees may delegate this function to the Program Director.
- (3) A candidate for the degree shall be required to undertake such formal courses and pass such assessment as is prescribed by the Committees.
- (4) The progress of a candidate during the period of candidature shall be reviewed at least once annually, and as a result of any such review the Committees may cancel enrolment or take such other action as they consider appropriate.
- (5) No candidate shall be awarded the degree until the lapse of four academic sessions from the date of enrolment. The maximum period of candidature shall be twelve academic sessions from the date of enrolment. In special cases an extension of these times may be granted by the Committees.

Fees

4. A candidate shall pay such fees as may be determined from time to time by the Council.

Graduate Diploma in Law (GradDiplLaw)

1. A Graduate Diploma may be awarded by the Council to a candidate who has satisfactorily completed an approved program of study.

Qualifications

2. (1) A candidate for the Diploma shall have been awarded an appropriate degree of Bachelor from the University of New South Wales or a qualification considered equivalent from another university or tertiary institution, at a level acceptable to the Higher Degree Committee of the Faculty of Law (hereinafter referred to as the Committee).
- (2) An applicant who submits evidence of such other academic and professional attainment, as may be approved by the Committee, may be permitted to enrol for the Diploma.
- (3) If the Committee is not satisfied with the qualification submitted by an applicant the Committee may require the applicant to undergo such assessment or carry out such work as the Committee may prescribe, before permitted enrolment.

Enrolment and Progression

3. (1) An application to enrol as a candidate for the diploma shall be made on the prescribed form which shall be lodged with the Registrar by the advertised closing date, which shall be at least two calendar months before the commencement of the session in which the enrolment is to begin.
- (2) A candidate for the diploma shall be required to undertake the courses, and pass any assessment, prescribed.
- (3) The progress of a candidate shall be reviewed by the end of two sessions by the Committee and as a result of its review the Committee may cancel the enrolment or take such other action as it considers appropriate.
- (4) The normal duration of the program is two academic sessions from the date of enrolment in the case of a full-time candidate or four sessions in the case of part-time candidate. In special circumstances a variation of these times may be approved by the Head of School.

Fees

4. A candidate shall pay such fees as may be determined from time to time by the Council.

The scholarships listed below are available to students whose courses are listed in this book. Each Faculty Handbook contains in its scholarships section the scholarships available for study in that Faculty. Travel scholarships are shown separately. Applicants should note that the scholarships and their conditions are subject to review and the closing dates for awards may vary from year to year.

Scholarship information is regularly included in the University publication 'Focus' and updated on the UNSW Web site: <http://www.infonet.unsw.edu.au/academic/schopriz/htfoc.htm>.

Students investigating study opportunities overseas should also consult "Study Abroad" which is published by UNESCO. The British Council (02 9326 2365) may be of assistance for information about study in Britain. The Australian-American Education Foundation (02 6247 9331) or the U.S. Consulate General Educational Advising Centre (02 9373 9230) can provide information about study in America. Information may also be obtained from the embassy or consulate of the country in which the study is proposed and from the proposed overseas institution. Details of overseas awards and exchanges administered by the Department of Education, Training and Youth Affairs (DETYA) can be obtained from the Awards and Exchanges Section, DEETYA, PO Box 826, Woden, ACT 2606.

KEY

- L Students with Australian Citizenship or Permanent Resident status can apply.
I International students can apply.

Postgraduate scholarships for research or coursework are identified with the following codes:

- R Available for study by research (normally Masters by Research or PhD).
C Available for study by coursework (normally Masters by Coursework or Graduate Diploma).

The scholarship information is normally provided in the following format:

- Amount
- Duration
- Conditions

Unless otherwise stated, application forms are available from the Scholarships and Student Loans Unit, c/- New South Q (Lower Ground Floor, Chancellery). Applications normally become available four to six weeks before the closing date.

Undergraduate Scholarships

Following are details of scholarships available to undergraduate students at UNSW. The scholarships are listed according to the year of study for which the scholarship is available (ie scholarships for first year students; scholarships for second or later year students; scholarships for Honours year students) or whether they are available to undertake travel, and then also by Faculty and course (eg scholarships in Science and Technology or Engineering).
